CHICAGO—Adlai Stevenson pulled out all the stops Saturday night in his last major address of the campaign, declaring President Eisenhower does not have the physical strength to lead the nation.

It was Stevenson's most direct attack on the campaign on the President's physical fitness to serve, although he clearly raised the issue earlier this week at Philadelphia.

The Democratic candidate blamed "the economic squeeze at home" and "deterioration in our position in the world" on "the consequences of part-time government."

HE DEFINED it as government "in which the chief executive has never had the inclination and now lacks the energy for full-time work at the world's toughest job."

Republicans have neither policy nor philosophy to offer the nation, Stevenson declared.

"In fact it seems to have little else but President Eisenhower—"

Huge Fire Sweeps L.A. Yard

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Flames visible 20 miles gutted a lumber yard in the industrial section Saturday night and damaged an adjacent warehouse and loading dock.

Fire Chief William Miller estimated the damage at $250,000. He added: "It may go a great deal higher."

Flames shot 70 feet into the sky as 18 fire companies battled for more than two hours to keep the blaze confined to the yard of the American Hardwood Co., near 15th and Alameda Sts.

Police estimated nearly 10,000 persons crowded nearby streets to watch.

Firemen said Frank Smith, a company guard, reported that the fire broke out in an office and quickly spread to nearby lumber stacks.

L.A.C. Says: Our Testing Time

These are trying days for the American people. They have been jolted out of their lethargy concerning foreign affairs. Now we know the United States cannot be certain what any other nation will do when that nation's vital interests are concerned. There is so much right and wrong on the sides of each of the nations involved in the Middle East crisis it is hard to be objective in discussing the issues. But it is certainly no time for real Americans to use it as a political football.

One thing is certain—this can develop into a devastating world war if the United States and Russia should choose up sides. The only hope for averting such a catastrophe is for the United States to stand firm on its position that the Middle East problem be finally settled by the United Nations. That will require a U. N. police force strong enough to keep order and

90% Election Turnout Due in L.B. Area

Expect 190,000
at Polls; Interest
High on 2 Issues

By MALCOLM EPLEY

Winding up a campaign that has sparked on only two issues—the presidency of the United States and an oil conservation measure—around 190,000 voters of the Long Beach area will go to the polls Tuesday to mark one of the longest ballots in local political history.

The polls in 761 voting places in the 18th Congressional District will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of the 211,005 registered voters in the district are expected to ballot.

VOTERS OF THE Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill area will contribute their ballots to the national decision on the presidency, will vote on a United States senator for California, a representative in Congress, and on 19 state and five county propositions.

Long Beach voters, with 176,890 registered, will also ballot on eight city questions. In the two Assembly districts which split the city and the Congressional district, voters will choose the men to represent them in the lower house at Sacramento's next year.

Despite vigorous campaigning by the candidates, the strictly local phases of the campaign

Washington Smart Money Riding on Ike

Congress Outcome
Is in Doubt Among Political Dopesters

By ROBERT E. LEE
I. P.T. Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON—The smart money here is riding on President Eisenhower's re-election Tuesday and Democratic retention of at least one house of Congress.

If the polls and the professional and amateur experts are sizing it up right, Ike is in.

Washington has been wrong before—notably in 1948—and the experts are not overlooking Adlai Stevenson's tough late-inning offensive. Nor are they ignoring the possible electoral vote effects of the rumble of tanks and roar of warplanes in the Mideast and Central Europe.

BUT THE CONSENSUS in the capital, admittedly far from the grass-roots of America where Presidents are elected, is that the Democratic candidate's attacks and the international situation can't help Stevenson much. Their effect, the experts say, will be too little and too late.

Congress, though, is a different matter.

While there's practically no Stevenson money here, the Democrats have to give Republican bettors odds on which party takes the House and/or Senate. Thus, there's considerable speculation that for the first time in modern history, a President will fail to carry both houses of Congress with him.

IT'S HAPPENED before, but not in modern times and not under anything like the present political setup. Even Vice President Nixon, who has traveled farther and said more than anyone else for the Republican cause this year, admits the chances are slim for the GOP to wipe out the Democrats' 49 to 47-vote majority in the Senate.

Mideast News at A Glance

By Associated Press

LONDON—British and French reject U.N. cease-fire order, say warplanes clear the way for land invasion of Egypt. Prime Minister Eden tells British his government and French acted to prevent entire Middle East becoming inflamed, expresses confidence United States will come to agreement. Admiralty denies ship losses.

CAIRO—Egyptians claim forces near Suez prevented British-French troop landings, sank a British troopship and another vessel and captured three troop carriers. Government declares: "We are at war with Britain and France" in statement countering Eden's "police action" terminology. Nasser says Egypt ready for British-French invasion.

TEL AVIV—Israeli spokesman says advance patrol reached eastern shore of Suez Canal, then pulled back, while nine Israeli forces are about nine miles from the waterway. Says fighting in Sinai ended and claims capture of thousands of Egyptian prisoners and masses of war equipment, including Soviet-built tanks. Continued massing of Syrian and Iraqi forces in Jordan threaten second front on Israeli's east.

Sec. Dulles Has Resection of Colon, Condition Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles was removed from active direction of the nation's foreign policy Saturday by an emergency operation for removal of part of his large intestine, which had perforated.

In the midst of the Middle East crisis, the 68-year-old Dulles was rushed to the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center for sudden surgery which kept him in the operating room for 2½ hours.

Five hours afterward, a special medical bulletin said his post-operative condition has "become stabilized and is satisfactory."

A State Department spokesman said part of the diseased tissue was being subjected to extensive laboratory tests—presumably to determine whether it was malignant.

Hungarians Believe West Failing Them

(Following is the second dispatch from Walter T. Ridder, chief of The Independent Press-Telegram Washington Bureau, who is in Europe to supply this paper with first-hand reports of the situation in Hungary and neighboring countries.)

By WALTER T. RIDDER

VIENNA—As Russian troops gradually strengthened their hold on Hungary, Saturday reports coming out of Budapest indicate Hungarian revolutionaries believe they have been badly let down by the West.

Rightly or wrongly the Hungarians feel that the West has for years encouraged them to revolt and when finally they did so aid of any kind from the West was conspicuously absent. Said one Hungarian who came to Vienna after the fighting: "Whatever we have done in Hungary we have done ourselves. We owe nothing to the West." Similar statements of disappointment are attributed to other Hungarian fighters by Gordon Gaskill of Collier's Magazine who came out of Budapest late Saturday describing the revolution as "the most moving thing I ever covered in my life." Yet Gaskill who had rushed to Budapest to rescue his Huncommandant, operated on both men.

Eisenhower was operated on for ileitis or inflammation of the lower intestine. About 10 inches of the intestine was by-passed in the operation.

Dulles was stricken just as British and French invasion armies were reported on the brink of landing on Egypt's Suez area. The burden of State Department leadership was thrust upon 53-year-old Herbert Hoover Jr., Undersecretary of State, who has handled some of the hottest foreign-policy crises during the Secretary's frequent flying visits overseas.

STATE DEPARTMENT Press Officer Lincoln White could provide reporters with no information to their questions about possible cancer being the cause for the operation. Dr. Heaton was reported at Dulles' bedside and unavailable for a news conference.

When reporters noted that the two terse bulletins issued on Dulles' condition left it "wide open" on this possibility, White replied, "I can't stop you from speculating," but added he did not know anything about this. He said Dulles was resting comfortably and was in "good condition."

The next medical bulletin on Dulles' condition will be released today at 3 p.m. EST, White said.

The Secretary at first had been thought to be suffering from acute appendicitis, but White said the operation did not involve the appendix.

Minister of State Anthony Nutting, second man in the British Foreign Office, told Eden he disagreed with Britain's Middle East policy and had "advised most strongly" against Britain's attack on Egypt.

Nutting, 56, had been regarded as a special protégé of Eden.

'Cease Fire' Requests to All Repeated

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (Sunday) (UP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld announced early today that he was starting work "forthwith" on a plan to send a United Nations police force into Egypt.

He dispatched cables to Egypt, Israel, Britain and France to seek implementation of the cease-fire appeal. Earlier, the U.N. General Assembly voted without dissent to ask Hammarskjöld to prepare the plan within 48 hours.

The vote was 57-0, with 19 abstentions on the resolution introduced by Canada to establish such a force and send it into the fighting zone "with the consent of the nations concerned" to "achieve and supervise the cessation of hostilities" in Egypt.

BRITAIN, FRANCE, Israel and Egypt—the four countries involved in the fighting—abstained. They were joined in abstention by the Soviet bloc, most of the commonwealth countries, Austria, Portugal and Laos.

New Zealand offered the first contributions to a United Nations police force to go into Egypt.

U.S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. immediately endorsed the proposal dramatically put before the Assembly by Canada's Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson.

Pearson made his proposal after a dash back to the U. N. from a meeting of the Canadian cabinet in Ottawa. He did not give details but such a force could be made up of contingents contributed by members of the

Invaders Continue to Delay

LONDON (Sunday) (AP)—The fateful leap of British and French forces into Egypt appeared ever more imminent today.

Appeals from the U.N. for a softer course were brushed aside and the die was cast for force by Britain and France.

Meanwhile, an official spokesman at Tel Aviv, Israel, said Israeli patrols have reached the east bank of the Suez Canal but then withdrew.

HE REPORTED the Israeli main force held positions about nine miles from the canal after overwhelming Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

Other Israeli forces slashing far southward seized the town of Tor, 153 miles south of Suez on the Gulf of Suez.

BUDAPEST (Sunday)—Soviet armored forces seized Budapest in a surprise attack today and captured the government of Premier Imre Nagy.

Russian tanks and troops swarmed into the capital and struck swiftly to capture other key Hungarian cities.

Russian troops captured the Parliament Building in Budapest where Nagy was meeting, with his new Democratic cabinet shortly after 8 o'clock this morning (11 p.m. PST Saturday).

(News of the capture of parliament was the last dispatch received by teleprinter at the U. N. bureau in Vienna from Budapest. Radio Budapest, in the Parliament Building, was cut off suddenly earlier.)

"Russian gangsters have betrayed us," said a Hungarian News Agency (MTI) message from Budapest to the Associated Press in Vienna.

"The Russian troops suddenly attacked Budapest and the whole country. They opened fire on everybody in Hungary. It is a general attack."

MTI said Janos Kadar, Hungarian Communist Party secretary, formed a new government, sided with the Russians and has begun to "annihilate the counter-revolution."

Imre Nagy, the Nationalist Communist who was elevated to the premiership by the anti-Russian revolution, appealed to the world for help.

THE BORDER with Austria on the west was firmly sealed off. The Russians seized railway stations at key points throughout the country.

The Hungarian News Agency said the Parliament Building not far from the U. S. and British boundary lines in those places where wars have always been in process.

It is probable such a settlement would place the Suez Canal under such a U.N. police force. Such a force will have to be created. It would protect the boundaries of Israel and stop the Israelis from attacking their neighbors. There is no other hope for averting continuous war. But the United Nations and its ideals would be completely destroyed if the United States failed to support the organization and its ideals in this crisis.

We are in a better position to localize and end the present conflict than we were at start of World War II. Then we were not a member of the League of Nations. We were so weak militarily no one seemed to worry about what we might do. But today we are a vital force in the United Nations and we are the most powerful military nation on earth. We have a record of unselfish devotion to peace and the freedom of men never before equaled in history. No one can doubt our ability to fight—or, after Korea, our willingness to fight to stop aggression.

It has been a great disappointment that France and Britain moved without first notifying the United States government. But the Suez Canal is the lifeline for France and Britain. It appeared that it might be cut. That is the explanation from our friends. It is doubtful that the full facts will be known for some time as to just how the Israeli attack on Egypt occurred. If it was engineered by France and Britain to give those nations an excuse for intervention, it will be a black mark on their record.

Because the facts are so remote and details magnified or distorted, our only safe course is to be calm and watchful. We must not weaken ourselves by using other nations' corruption or lozies to destroy confidence in ourselves. Any candidate who uses this crisis for attacking our policies without clearly stating what he would have done is a rank demagogue. What is more important is that the people feel a confidence in the President which gives them a feeling of security that we will not go bungling into another world war.

We will find partisanship based on racial and national groups. We have many British and French people in our American family. We have a very large Jewish population. While these people are among our best citizens, it is natural that they are deeply concerned over this crisis. We must not become torn by partisanship on these issues. The real test of being an American is that we do what is right and best for this country. We believe the people trust the President as the individual best qualified for this. That is on experience and moral grounds—which are the most important qualifications needed in these trying days.—L.A.C.

Israel Troops Pull Back From Canal

claimed the British and French tried to land on the Suez Canal Saturday but were repulsed with losses, by shore guns. Egypt said enemy troop carriers were sunk and captured.

The British and French denied any such losses.

The final statements through Saturday midnight from the British and French said their warplanes still were preparing the way for their land forces to kick off the offensive.

In Washington, the Egyptian embassy released a statement received from Cairo, saying: "We are at war with Britain and France."

This apparently was intended to counter British-French references to the fighting as "a police action."

President Nasser declared in a speech in Cairo:

"Egypt was always a grave for invaders. All empires collapsed whenever they invaded Egypt. We will fight and we will never surrender."

"We are waiting for the British and French in the canal and Nile delta."

Massing of Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian troops in Jordan posed the threat of a second front on Israel's eastern border.

The Israelis said on the western front their advance patrols had reached the Suez Canal.

The main Israeli forces were reported about nine miles from the waterway and moving freely throughout the Sinai Peninsula, where fighting has stopped.

AN ISRAELI SPOKESMAN said thousands of prisoners had been taken but most Egyptian officers had fled, leaving their units to be captured in Sinai.

Prime Minister Eden told the nation in a TV address that Britain and France had acted to prevent a greater conflict in the Middle East.

He said he would make certain Israeli troops quit Egypt when British and French forces take over positions in the Suez Canal.

Eden said he was confident the United States would come to agree that Britain and France had acted to prevent the entire Middle East becoming inflamed.

The British cabinet was called into urgent session after Eden spoke last night. The meeting ended early Sunday without any announcement of why it was called.

EDEN WAS SUPPORTED by Sir Winston Churchill, who earlier said:

"I am confident that our American friends will come to realize that, not for the first time, we have acted independently for the common good."

The French Defense Ministry in Paris said allied planes are conducting a tactical phase preceding troop landings in Egypt by smashing highways, railroads and other communications.

Arab retaliation so far appeared to be blocking of the Suez Canal and cutting the Iraq Petroleum Co. pipeline in Syria.

THE ARABS bulwarked their strength on the eastern borders of Israel. The Israelis, victorious in the battle for Sinai and the Gaza Strip, kept a careful watch in the direction of Jordan.

Iraq announced its troops had entered Jordan. Syrian troops were reported also pouring into the desert country of King Hussein, posing the threat of two-front war for Israel. Each side appeared ready for an attack which would widen the scope of the Middle Eastern war.

Reports from Beirut said the zero hour appeared approaching on the Israeli-Jordan frontier. Convoys of white ambulances were seen forming in the Israeli section of Jerusalem. Jordanian leaders in the Arab sector of the city said an Israeli attack was imminent.

THE AGENCY sent an appeal to the Associated Press in behalf of Nagy. The message said:

"I speak in the name of Imre Nagy. He asks help . . . Nagy and the government and the whole people ask for help."

(The Canadian Press reported Budapest Radio, heard in Toronto late Saturday night, said Russian troops had attacked the Hungarian army in Budapest. It said Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy was reported to have appealed to the world for help. The broadcast was heard by a Hungarian-Canadian named Alexander Alt.)

"Russian troops attacked our capital today (Sunday) with the purpose of overthrowing the rightful government of this country. Our troops are engaged in a battle against this aggression. We appeal to the world for assistance." (Alt said radio Budapest played the Hungarian National Anthem repeatedly after Nagy made his dramatic appeal to the world.)

Diana Denies Rod Steiger a Rift Factor

HOLLYWOOD (EP)—English film star Diana Dors said Saturday she had reached a property agreement with her estranged husband, Dennis Hamilton, under which he would get "almost everything."

At the same time, she denied Actor Rod Steiger was involved in the separation of her and her husband who has returned to England.

A report from England said Hamilton had stated the separation concerned only the Hamiltons and Steiger.

But the blond actress said Hamilton had telephoned her and that he denied making such a statement.

She declared there was "absolutely nothing" between her and Steiger and they were "just friends" after working together here in her latest picture.

She said under an agreement with Hamilton, he would continue to manage her business affairs for about 10 per cent of her future earnings. She said he also would receive their home in England and all of their business enterprises.

U.N. along the lines of the U.N. truce observers now on duty in the Palestine area.

THE U.S. PROPOSALS had run into immediate Arab criticism as appeasement.

Acting on instructions of President Eisenhower, Lodge had put before the assembly two resolutions. Each called for creation of separate negotiating committees, one to work out a settlement of the Palestine question and the other the Suez Canal controversy.

The resolutions contained no proposals for immediate action to end the war in Egypt. Lodge told the Assembly they should be considered while efforts went on to stop the fighting.

Hashim Jawad of Iraq assailed the resolutions on the grounds that they presented a form of "appeasement." He demanded that the Assembly consider measures under Article 7 of the Charter, the strongest action that can be taken by the U.N. against an offending nation, and said:

"Any other procedure is an endeavor to avert the attention of this Assembly from the real problem. Diversion toward other problems is nothing but utter defeatism. While we had hoped that the members of this organization would stand against the defiance of the aggressor we find all the elements of appeasement here."

Omar Loufi of Egypt opened the second emergency meeting of the Assembly with a declaration that the "armed aggression" of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt is continuing. He said he could not take a stand on the U.S. resolutions because they have political implications that must be studied at home.

Ike vs. Adlai — How They View Issues

By ROGER GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The thunder of oratory in the 1956 presidential campaign has almost ended. On Tuesday, Nov. 6, the nation's voters will return the verdict.
Here, in their own words, is what the candidates have said on major 1956 issues:

PROSPERITY

EISENHOWER: "Sixty-six million American workers are more prosperous and secure than ever in our history. America looks happy—a darn sight happier than it did four years ago. I wonder if the cry of the political opposition is not simply this: things in America are rapidly going from bad to good."

ADLAI STEVENSON: "We've been hearing a lot about America's prosperity, but I say that every American must be concerned with the weak spots in our economy. We should be thankful for the prosperity and well being we enjoy. But let's not exaggerate. . . . we are being offered a brand of Pollyanna politics labeled peace, prosperity and progress."

"The 30 million Americans who live in families with incomes under $2,000 a year are not so impressed with the prosperity refrain."

H-BOMB TESTS

STEVENSON: "I think the time is ripe and there is an insistent necessity for the world to stop at least the testing of these terrifying weapons. . . . most Americans, I know, are concerned and deeply concerned about mankind's need to tame the hydrogen bomb."

EISENHOWER: "I regret that the American government's policy with respect to the testing of large-scale nuclear weapons has been made an issue. It can only lead to confusion at home and misunderstanding abroad. The testing of atomic weapons (is) an indispensable part of our defense program. . . . I do not believe that any political campaign justified the declaration of a moratorium on common sense."

THE DRAFT

EISENHOWER: "The man who dismisses our military draft as 'an incredible waste' is a man speaking incredible folly. The issue of our military draft is a matter of the safety of our nation. We cannot encourage our allies in the world to shoulder arms while we throw ours to the ground. . . . we must not by weakness invite another war."

STEVENSON: "I, for one, am not content to accept the idea that there can be no end to compulsory military service. The draft is a wasteful, inefficient and often unfair way of maintaining our armed forces, and now it is fast becoming an obsolete way. . . . It should be ended at the earliest moment consistent with national safety."

AGRICULTURE

STEVENSON: "For three years, the Republican leaders watched farm prices fall with philosophical calm. . . . they did nothing—until election year came around."

"The fact is that farm income declined by one quarter during (Eisenhower's) term of office. . . . they (Republicans) have failed to give the farmer a fair share of our national income. Farmers know what's happened to prices and costs and their diminishing share of the consumer's food dollar."

EISENHOWER: "I seek and shall continue to seek to assure our farm families their full share of our nation's unparalleled prosperity today. . . . the future in agriculture looks better—more promising and more dependable—than at any time in this generation. Farm prices this year—the first full year in which the (GOP) administration's programs have operated—have begun to rise without the cruel assistance of wartime demands for the first time since World War II."

CIVIL RIGHTS

EISENHOWER: "Sympathetic understanding has been fostered and intelligent progress has been made in civil rights—segregation ended in restaurants, theaters, hotels and schools in the District of Columbia—ended in government departments, the armed forces, veterans' hospitals."

"The opposition believes that the cause of civil rights can be advanced by a formula of much oratory and little performance."

STEVENSON: "The Supreme Court of the United States has determined unanimously that the Constitution does not permit segregation in the schools. I believe that decision to be right."

"The President has taken no clear position and exercised no leadership in connection with the pressing problem of school desegregation. They (Republicans) have failed to provide any leadership in the mounting crisis over civil rights."

BIG BUSINESS

STEVENSON: "The historic function of the Republican party is to represent the economic and social philosophy of the well-to-do and the privileged. This (GOP) administration has performed that function well."

"We (Democrats) are not against big business. We just do not want to be ruled by it and smothered by it."

EISENHOWER: "To revert to the unsound, anti-business, heavy-tax, heavy-spending, government interference, centralized control policies (of past Democratic administrations) could reverse all the progress we have made."

"The statement that the Democratic party alone is truly interested in the 'little man' is more than political bunk. It is wilful nonsense. It is wicked nonsense."

INFLATION

EISENHOWER: "The cost of living soared almost 50 per cent in the last seven years of their (Democratic) administration—and it has risen less than 3 per cent under this administration. . . . they bravely denounce inflation in the cities—and they go to the countryside with the extravagant promises of loose credit that makes for inflation."

STEVENSON: "By the statistics of (Eisenhower's) own department of labor, the cost of living reached, this July, the highest point in history."

"The housewife knows that prices are at an all-time high. The Republican administration's tight-money policy makes it hard for the small man to get the money he needs, and leaves the big man, with his ample reserves, in a still more favored position."

FOREIGN POLICY

STEVENSON: "What we have is a quick-change foreign policy, and we have lost ground."

"They (Republicans) have lost respect for us around the world, boasted and bluffed, zigged and zagged, contradicted each other, told us fairy tales instead of the grim realities, and made grandstand plays that frightened our friends more than our enemies. When we lose ground abroad, we are assured that all is well, the Communists are on the run and our brinkmanship is brilliant."

EISENHOWER: "The plain truth is that Americans know very well the difference between today—and the days of the Korean casualty lists. . . . are they (Democrats) so deluded as to believe they can conceal from all our people the steady (Republican) policies toward removing the causes of war?"

LABOR

EISENHOWER: "Labor's share in our national income today is 70 cents out of every dollar—a record high for the last 20 years."

"Organized labor is larger in numbers and greater in strength—after four years of Republican administration—than ever in our nation's history."

STEVENSON: "They (the Republicans) have short-changed American labor by neglecting their promises to change the Taft-Hartley act and by loading the National Labor Relation Board with management representatives."

DEFENSE

STEVENSON: "We Democrats have fought hard to prevent the administration from putting dollars ahead of defense."

EISENHOWER: "We have produced the finest and most powerful military forces in our peacetime history."

TAXES

EISENHOWER: "We have had a $7,400,000,000 tax cut—the largest in our nation's history. And despite opposition charges, two-thirds of that cut was given to individuals. . . . these (Democratic) political orators promise bigger government spending on every front—lower taxes for every citizen—all wrapped up in the bright package of a balanced national budget."

STEVENSON: "The President implied that the Republican tax cut of 1954 benefitted everybody. The fact is that 91 cents of every dollar of that tax cut went to corporations and families with incomes above $3,000 a year."

ADLAI STEVENSON: "The draft is a wasteful, inefficient and often unfair way of maintaining our armed forces. . . . It should be ended at the earliest moment consistent with national safety."—(AP Photo.)
THE PRESIDENT: "The man who dismisses our military draft as 'an incredible waste' is a man speaking incredible folly. The issue of our military draft is a matter of the safety of our nation."

Local Candidates Final Statements

Here are campaign-end statements given to the Independent Press-Telegram yesterday by the candidates for local and district offices to be filled by the voters Tuesday:

REP. CRAIG HOSMER, Republican nominee for re-election as 15th District Congressman: "Bloody upheavals in Poland and Hungary and the Middle East crisis have driven lesser issues from the national campaign. Left is the monumental issue of 'who can best keep America's peace in a turbulent world'."

"In the stronger light of the latest fighting, people are viewing the H-bomb test issue with a positive feeling that decisive dealing with it requires somebody who knows about bombs, not an indecisive theorist."

"These issues are permeating the congressional campaign here and those throughout the country, as people come to realize the magnificent leadership of President Eisenhower much be back-stopped by a Congress that will help, not hinder and harass him in his difficult task."

"So, although I feel confident the substantial majority approve my services to our community on our many local problems and issues, there is now appearing additional new support for my re-election out of recent national and international developments."

RAYMOND C. SIMPSON, Democratic nominee for 18th District Congressman:

"I cannot predict the outcome for Tuesday because we are still working to let the people know the truth about what I believe to be Hosmer's bad voting record."

"The race looks close. A prediction of victory must therefore depend upon just how many people we reach. This, of course, is hard to determine, because Hosmer's campaign has been one of billboards, money and partisan threats vs. the shoe leather and heart of hundreds of wonderful Joe Smiths."

"Because I believe in people I have great confidence in the possibility of victory on Nov. 6."

HERBERT R. KLOCKNIEM, Republican incumbent seeking re-election as 44th District Assemblyman:

"I have conducted a campaign designed to present fairly my record as a public official and my philosophy of public service to the people of the 44th District, whom I have been proud to serve for three terms in the Legislature."

"On the basis of the approval of local voters at many elections, and my feeling that I have given honorable and effective service, I look forward with confidence to Tuesday's voting."

"I feel deep gratitude toward the many fine people in both parties who have encouraged me and helped in my campaign. They have placed on me a responsibility which I will discharge with determination and diligence."

RICHARD NUNSELL, Democratic nominee for 44th District Assemblyman:

"I have campaigned on the issues concerning the people of the State of California and the relationship of these issues to the citizens of the 44th Assembly District."

"We have waged a clean and honest campaign. I have personally contacted tens of thousands of voters within the 44th and find that they are delighted to be able to meet a candidate who is seeking their vote. They feel honored by the fact that you humble yourself enough to call upon them."

"I find they want a younger man who is energetic and disinterested in his background who will be able to cope with the task of state government. They feel that such a man is lacking in the 44th at present."

"I will close my campaign by appearing on TV Channel 7 Sunday at 12 and speaking at the University by the Sea at 3 p.m. I feel that in view of the type of campaign we have conducted we will be victorious by a good margin."

W. N. GRANT, Republican incumbent, seeking re-election as 70th District Assemblyman:

"We have again given out program to the public through a run because they were tired of "politicians." I expect support because I offer a constructive program for which I will fight in the State Assembly: aid to the school building program, assistance to child development centers, adequate pensions for the aged, labor legislation to benefit all labor, repeal of the sales tax."

"As the campaign winds up, I want to express my appreciation to all who have helped, and to thank in advance those who vote Tuesday to return me to the Assembly."

DANNY BRICE, Democratic nominee for 70th District Assemblyman:

"The State Legislature needs men who live intimately with the problems of the area they represent and know them well enough to act intelligently on legislation to correct them."

"I feel that I fulfill that qualification. My friends asked me to run because they were tired of have been overshadowed by the presidential contest and the interest in Prop. 4, the oil issue.

THIS AREA gave its voting majority in 1952 to the Republican team of Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon, and campaign leaders for that ticket are predicting a repeat this year. Democratic leaders disagree, and forecast a vote here that will help the Adlai Stevenson-Estes Kefauver ticket carry California.

The registration division between the two parties here is about the same as in 1952 when the Republican tickets, despite a Democratic registration edge, carried in the area and the state by substantial majorities. In the 18th District, there are 117,101 registered Democrats and 87,528 Republicans.

Not since the battles over the McLain old-age pension issues several years ago has a state proposition excited as much interest here as has been evidenced in Prop. 4, the issue over which two groups of oil companies are staging one of the most lavishly financed battles in California political history.

LONG BEACH has been a battleground in this fight because it is an oil city and because subsidence, a major problem here, is involved in the argument. Proponents of No. 4 say that it offers a method by which subsidence may be arrested; opponents deny this. But the subsidence factor has led to endorsement of No. 4 by the City Council, the senior and junior Chambers of Commerce, and more than 25 other organizations. Shipyard workers have made support of No. 4 a major project.

All of this has made No. 4 the second biggest issue of the campaign here.

Considerable interest has also developed here in support of Prop. 3, the state construction bond issue. If this proposal passes, it will speed development of the physical plant at Long Beach State College, and it is indicated there will be a strong if not overwhelming local majority for the measure.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, going for his third term as 18th District Congressman, came through the primary with a substantial total vote lead over Democrat Raymond C. Simpson. Simpson has continued to campaign vigorously, as has Hosmer, and their broadsides have furnished a highlight of the campaign.

In the 44th Assembly District, Assemblyman Herbert R. Klocke meets a vigorous challenge from Richard Nussell, who lost to Klocke two years ago. In the 70th District, veteran Assemblyman W. S. Grant is faced by Democrat Danny Brice who is making his first try for election. Both GOP incumbents received total vote leads in the primary, where they crossed. The Democrats did not cross.

Soviets Use Violence and Point to Suez

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (U.P.)—The situation in Hungary is most confused, but the best available information here is that the Russians are determined to smother the flickering light of freedom there.

Premier Imre Nagy seems to be a marked man, deserted by Communists and the target of violent Russian attacks.

Men with ordinarily sound information give this picture: Developments in the Middle East provided an excuse and a justification for the Russians to apply strong pressure, not only on Hungary but on all the satellite nations.

Saturday, the Stalinist bloc in the Soviet Communist party hierarchy is asserting its authority.

Janos Kadar, the new first secretary of the Hungarian Communists, is believed to be ready to collaborate with the Russians.

ONLY MILD interest has developed here over the race between U. S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, Republican incumbent, and Democrat Richard Richards for Kuchel's Senate post here, but Richards failed to make any public campaign appearances in Long Beach in the primary.

Among the eight city questions, principal interest has been indicated in Prop. 12, which would raise salaries of the councilmen from $200 to $400 a month and delete a present penalty for absenteeism. But there has been only minor public discussion of any city measure, and the same has been true of the five county measures.

SHE'S MADLY FOR ADLAI

Unidentified woman fan rushes from curb with arms spread to greet Adlai Stevenson (left) as the Democratic presidential nominee rode past in parade to Chicago Stadium Saturday night. who in the next years would inevitably recede more and more from the picture.

So long as there is "partial government," Stevenson said, "all the problems which torment us—from the Middle West to the Middle East—can only get worse."

Stevenson also took a swipe in passing at the President's age—at the completion of his term he would be the oldest president ever to serve in office—when he said: "Every consideration—the President's age, his constitutional position under the 22nd amendment—makes it inevitable that the dominant figure in a second Eisenhower term would be Richard Nixon."

STEVENSON CHOSE a nationwide television appearance to make his charge on the President's health. He summed up the issues he has raised—hydrogen bomb test ban, ending the draft, "single-interest" government, and conduct of Middle Eastern affairs. It climaxed a campaign of public discussion of the issues he has raised—hydrogen bomb test ban, ending the draft, "single-interest" government, and conduct of Middle Eastern affairs. It climaxed a campaign of public discussion of the issues he has raised—hydrogen bomb test ban, ending the draft, "single-interest" government, and conduct of Middle Eastern affairs.

The vice presidential candidate wasn't there. He chose to whistle stop through Minnesota in a last-minute drive for farm votes.

Stevenson spoke to a roaring crowd of more than 19,000, and police estimated 250,000 and 300,000 persons lined the three-mile parade route.

The Democrats poured in money and effort to put on a bigger show than they did for Harry Truman in 1948 here and to outdraw the 250,000 who lined Vice President Nixon's motorcade route here a week ago.

Stevenson accused Republicans of distorting rather than debating issues during the campaign. Both the President and Nixon, he said, have evaded discussion with "accusations and distortions."

"They have tried to sell Republicanism like cigarettes, soap and cars," he said, while President Eisenhower has said "almost nothing about the serious issues."

Stevenson called it replacing "responsible political debate with a personality cult."

He summed up his stand on these issues:

"SINGLE-INTEREST" GOVERNMENT—"Men around the President who make the big decisions and formulate the policies come largely from a single sector of society—big business."

A-BOMB TESTS—"Poison from test explosions 'will injure our children most of all. Over 300 scientists have testified to the hazards... and warned that the bones of today's children may already be imperiled' by the presence of fallout by-product in their milk."

ENDING THE DRAFT—"The President has attempted 'to twist' his suggestion to halt the selective service program as it is practical. The draft is undemocratic, it takes only one boy out of eight," he said. "Certainly there is no sin in trying to do things better."

MIDDLE EAST—"The President forced him into public discussion by his 'political pronouncements' that the 'news from Suez was good' and that 'he knew of no trouble with our allies.'"

Stevenson repeated his charge that administration policies led to the present hostilities. "I am opposed to involvement of American forces," he said, but the U.S. "has a great deal to contribute in the way of responsible leadership."

VICE PRESIDENT NIXON—Stevenson questioned that he would be fair to labor or farmers, his stand on civil rights. When he asked "do you want to place the hydrogen bomb in his hands?" the crowd roared.

Referring to Nixon's Friday statement that the U.S. break with Britain and France in the Near East was "a declaration of independence that politically if it hammer hard has had an electrifying effect enough on Stevenson's new theme that GOP administration son said derisively: "Perhaps wasn't fair in telling the nation the first electrifying effect 'it everything was all right abroad, and was to embolden Russian troops to re-enter Hungary to the voters decide that the nature of the international crisis

Poll-Takers; Gamblers Pick Ike, Say Congress in Doubt

And realistic Republicans also acknowledge that it will take an Eisenhower landslide of major proportions to capture the House, where the Democrats now have a 29-seat advantage.

The three members of this newspaper's Washington Bureau, who have been in almost every state of the Union covering the four major candidates, found the same sentiment prevailing in conversations with professional politicians of both parties.

THIS YEAR'S fight for control of Congress has been waged under a curious combination of factors:

The majority of the nation's voters are Democratic but the majority of them if the polls are to be believed, also like the Republican President who is running for re-election.

This accounts for the fact that throughout the campaign the Republicans have been running on Mr. Eisenhower's coattails and Stevenson has been running on those of popular Democratic Senate and House Candidates.

What makes Washington wonder which of these coalitions will pay off is a complex of political axioms—any one of which may be dramatically refuted this week:

1.—The "Ike" always have the edge in times of general prosperity.

2.—But the man who wins the White House—at least in modern times—always carries with him a congressional majority from his own party.

3.—Also, the "Independent" voters—plus persons who decline to tell the pollsters how they'll ballot—normally break down into the same proportion as the party vote.

Besides juggling those possibilities, the experts aren't completely writing off the big question mark produced by the at-dissent. Referring to Nixon's Friday statement that the U.S. break with Britain and France work either way:

The Democrats could profit politically if they hammer hard on Stevenson's new theme that GOP administration son said derisively: "Perhaps wasn't fair in telling the nation the first electrifying effect 'it everything was all right abroad, and was to embolden Russian troops to re-enter Hungary to the voters decide that the nature of the international crisis demands re-election of the popular general and a Congress dominated by his own party.

Republican campaign managers are blowing hot and cold—depending on the area—about their chances of picking up congressional seats. But all agree that it will take a big Ike landslide to erase the Democrats' present margin.

The GOP is frankly worried about a couple of California seats in the House, a few in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, and others.

The surprising strength of new Democratic organizations in many states—California, Pennsylvania and Washington in particular—obviously has the Republicans worried.

As for the Senate, the consensus is that the division will remain close but in favor of the Democrats because of the personal strength of Democratic contenders.

Before the Israeli attack on Egypt, Republican Jacob J. Javits was given a good chance to win the New York Senate seat of retiring Democrat Herbert H. Lehman. But New York's Democratic mayor, Robert F. Wagner Jr., may have picked up considerable strength against Javits in the past week.

The GOP is confident of winning at least one Democratic Senate seat in Kentucky, where John Sherman Cooper is the choice over former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby for the vacancy created by the death of Alben Barkley.

Republicans also insist on giving former Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay a good chance to beat Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse in Oregon and they think they have a "sleeper" in former Rep. Chapman Revercomb for an upset in West Virginia over William C. Marland.

However, state political observers in Ohio expect Gov. Frank Lausche to beat incumbent Rep. Sen. George H. Bender; in Pennsylvania, the former Democratic mayor of Philadelphia, Joseph S. Clark Jr., is reported ahead of GOP incumbent James A. Duff; and in Idaho the Democrats have high hopes for their young candidate, Frank Church, to beat Sen. Herman Welker, Republican running for re-election.

If the political dope sheets—which anyone here can have for the asking—are right, the Republicans will have to produce some major upsets to win the Senate and the President will have to score a sweeping national victory to carry a GOP house in with him.

Early Trend May Be Seen in 16 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen states with more than enough electoral votes to choose the next president will be closely eyed in Tuesday's balloting by people looking for an early trend.

Between them they have 303 electoral votes, 39 more than a majority.

Four years ago, President Eisenhower carried all of them except one, losing Kentucky's 10 electoral votes to Adlai Stevenson by only 700 ballots.

Eisenhower's victory margin was less than 10 per cent of the popular vote in eight of the key states: Illinois, 27 electoral votes, 443,000; Massachusetts, 16 votes, 109,000; Missouri, 13 votes, 30,000; Oklahoma, eight votes, 87,000; Pennsylvania, 32 votes, 270,000; Rhode Island, four votes, 8,000; Tennessee, 11 votes, 2,000; Texas, 24 votes, 134,000.

The 99,000 votes by which the President took Florida's 10 electoral ballots in 1952 was just above 10 per cent of the total vote.

Other states with big electoral votes, or which gave the President comparatively slim percentage margins in 1952: California, 32 votes, 700,000; Michigan 20 votes, 321,000; New Jersey, 16 votes, 359,000; New York, 45 votes, 848,000; Ohio, 25 votes, 500,000; Virginia, 12 votes, 80,000.

Election Watch Sharpest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unprecedented arrangements for quick handling of election complaints have been set up for Tuesday's voting, involving all of the major federal elective offices.

A Justice Department alert which went out to the 96 U. S. district attorneys throughout the states and territories several weeks ago directed each to have his office manned from the time the polls open until they close.

Atty. Gen. Brownell has since directed that the prosecutors' offices be kept open and staffed "until the results have been reported in your district."

ELECTION ALERTS have been customary for many years, but old-timers in the department recall no previous directive for the manning of prosecutors' offices throughout the count of the vote and until the result has been announced.

Many prosecutors have notified Washington headquarters that they and their assistants are preparing for all-night duty on Tuesday and into the following day.

As in most recent national elections, the department's criminal division here will be on a 24-hour basis starting Tuesday until the vote has been counted. It will receive complaints direct and give advice or instructions to the field force.

The field alert includes authority to proceed promptly with investigations, making free use of FBI agents in the district, without waiting for Washington clearance.

Widow Says FDR in 1944 Had Physical

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said Saturday that President Eisenhower is "a good man" and a "fine general" but "I do not have the same respect for him as a pollymaker."

Championing Adlai E. Stevenson at a news conference here, the widow of Franklin D. Roosevelt said her own husband had "a complete physical examination" during the campaign of 1944, "just as President Eisenhower did" recently.

Roosevelt died in April of 1945, after being sworn in for his fourth term in January.

She said she is "optimistic" over Stevenson's prospects for election to the presidency Tuesday.

Wanderer Gets Haven in Britain

LIVERPOOL (AP)—Britain has opened its doors to a 25-year-old Indian from Ceylon who has been roaming the oceans for four years seeking a home.

George Barnard stowed away on a British ship at Colombo in 1952. He had no passport. Ceylon refused him re-entry and no other country would admit him.

When the ship that had become his home docked here last week, however, immigration officials handed him a permit to remain at least six months and said he probably would be allowed to stay permanently.

Hungarian Patriots Feel West Has Let Them Down

towards what they consider lack of western support. "We didn't expect you to land troops or anything like that," one told Gaskill, "but at least you might have brought the Hungarian revolt sharply to the attention of the United Nations when fighting broke out. "We notice," he added icily, "you didn't waste any time bringing the Suez matter to the U.N."

"These are not isolated statements made by individuals. They reflect the thinking of not only the Hungarians but of a great many qualified American observers. The people of central Europe earnestly believe that the Hungarian revolt and potential revolts in other satellite nations are of far more historic import than the fight over the Suez Canal.

They believe the West in its concentration on the Suez is overlooking an historical opportunity of the first magnitude. They recognize the importance of the Egyptian waterway but they firmly believe the West has been diverted by a sideshow compared to the millions of people who might shortly liberate themselves from the Russian yoke if given encouragement.

As it now stands the attitude of both Hungarians and Austrians is reflected in these oft-repeated words here:

"If you leave the Hungarian revolutionists high and dry how can you expect others to take the same heroic actions?" The propaganda battle in Hungary was due to be waged this coming week over the vital commodity of food. The food situation in Hungary's urban centers is extremely bad and they will need imports from outside the country. The western nations stand ready to pour relief packages into the beleaguered country but it was not yet clear whether the Russians would permit unimpeded passage of the food into the country or whether in order to strengthen their own propaganda position they would seek to eliminate the shortages from their own supplies.

Knowland Cites U.S. Gain in Suez Crisis

U. S. Sen. William F. Knowland criticized Adlai Stevenson here Saturday night for his comment that the administration did not force the outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

The Senate's minority leader, speaking at a meeting sponsored by the Long Beach Council of Republican Women in Woman's City Clubhouse, declared:

"Stevenson didn't criticize Truman for failure to force the Korean action or Roosevelt for not predicting the attack on Pearl Harbor."

Sen. Knowland added that the Democratic presidential nominee's criticism that the administration has jeopardized America's position of leadership "is not in keeping with the facts." He reminded that most of the nations were "solidly lined up in support of the American position."

The senior senator from California said he sees no indication of a special session of Congress at this time to deal with the Mideast problem, adding that "it is the policy of the President and the administration to keep this country from being involved in a conflict."

Sen. Knowland predicted that Eisenhower will carry California in Tuesday's election by upwards of 400,000 votes.

They say no one down at the paper has been able to figure out that picture of the worm on the front page in last Sunday's edition.

Well, it's not exactly a worm. Actually it's a caterpillar. I was reading a book in the library last week when I came across a picture of the caterpillar. It's that of the Tiger Swallowtail butterfly.

THE BOOK SAID it is the most uncommon caterpillar but the most common butterfly.

What you thought were the eyes aren't really the eyes. They are the eyes that nature painted to scare away the birds. The real eyes are much lower down. I told my dad I was going to call up the paper and tell them the picture in the animal book was the same as that in the paper.

IF YOU WANT to know any more about the caterpillar, I can look it up in the encyclopedia for you.

I am going to be 9 years old in one month so I wish you

I'LL SAVE YOU MONEY AND GIVE YOU ALL THE CREDIT YOU NEED AT THE SAME TIME

You cannot afford to take chances with your health, at any time by putting off needed dentistry

Los Angeles, Nov. 4th, 1956 — You can save on all dental plates and at the same time know that your work will be the very best Dr. Beauchamp and his large staff can render. "While it's true my tremendous volume is due largely to my low price policy," Dr. Beauchamp says, "I also attribute a great deal of this volume to my pay-in credit plan that makes it easy for everyone to get all their dental work attended to when they need it. Regardless of how little you pay," Dr. Beauchamp continued, "I'll always give you the best work it is within my ability to render. I point with pride to the fact that most of my patients come to me recommended by others previously served in my offices, so I can honestly say, 'You don't have to fear my low prices.'"

HERE'S GOOD NEWS FOR NEW CALIFORNIA RESIDENTS

If you are one of the many thousands of new residents or visitors that are now making California their home, this credit offer from Dr. Beauchamp applies to you. "We will either start all of your new work immediately," Dr. Beauchamp says, "or complete any work that you may have had started by your dentist back home on your earliest credit terms."

"You don't have to be an established resident to have credit in my California offices," Dr. Beauchamp continues. "You can have all of your work completed at once and pay me later."

Join the many people that each day are visiting the dental offices from Oregon, Washington, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota, etc., in fact every State of the Union! I assure you that we shall give you every consideration and try in every way to make your visit pleasant.

SAVE MONEY BY HAVING YOUR TEETH RESET IN NEW MODERN MATERIAL

Your plates are fitted to your mouth when they are new and when your tissues change, your dentures should be reset in new material. It has always been my policy to charge only a nominal fee to reset your teeth. My special reset plan saves you money. Come in and let us explain this to you.

"CLOSING OF BITE" DANGEROUS TO PLATE WEARERS

Dr. Beauchamp wishes to point out the dental plate policy in all of his offices includes adjustments at any time, checking your bite and the fit so as not to impair your health by improper fitting dentures. After dental plates have been worn for several years, Dr. Beauchamp said, your gum tissues change, causing loose plates and an incorrect bite. Often your bite changes through the constant wear and grinding of teeth thus impairing your hearing. This dentists call "closing the bite." If you are faced with any dental problem, see your dentist. Visit any of my offices and have this attended to immediately. I'll be happy to serve you. No appointment needed.

Girl, 19, Wages Private War Against Russ to Avenge Slaying of Young Brother

By RUSSELL JONES

BUDAPEST (UPI)—A 19-year-old Hungarian girl is waging a private war against the Russians. She is seeking to avenge the death of her 11-year-old brother, who was shot in cold blood on a street by Soviet soldiers.

Juliana has been a member of the Communist Party, but she forgot about that when her brother was killed.

"First, she went home and cried for the lost boy. Then she picked up a gun and joined in the battle to free Budapest from the Russians. She believes she killed at least four Russian soldiers. There were no tears in her eyes as she talked of her private war against the Soviets."

JULIANA said she and other girls in a textile factory walked out when the revolt flamed Oct. 23.

"When I went home, my mother told me my 11-year-old brother had been killed by a Soviet tank, they shot him on purpose—it was no accident," she said.

"After I finished crying, I promised I would avenge him." Lines of fatigue made Juliana appear older. A bandage covered the bullet wound in her cheek. She moved stiffly because of a machine gun wound in her right shoulder. She had fought for eight days mostly around the Kilitan barracks where vicious battles had occurred.

But she made it sound so simple. . . .

When the Soviets attacked the barracks, she and some others ran to a building across the street and made it to the roof.

"I had a banjo (a Russian tommy gun) and some hand grenades which we got from the (Hungarian) soldiers," she said.

"With me were a girl of 17 and two boys of 18 or 19."

"I think I killed at least four Soviet soldiers, but it may have been more or less. Everyone was shooting all the time."

Some rebels brought up Molotov cocktails. They fought with every weapon they could find.

"They killed some of us, too," Juliana said, "but we were not afraid."

THE FIGHTING went on through last Sunday and Monday.

"We killed more of them," she said.

Last Thursday, Juliana said, she was shot through the cheek and was taken to a hospital but returned to fight again that night.

Finally, after the Soviets withdrew after failing to take the barracks, the rebels went gunning for the hated secret police.

They found a group of them, she said, and in the fight a machine gun slug tore through her shoulder.

"But we killed them all," she said.

She added that she and others would rise to fight again if the Russians again resort to the cold-blooded killing of such defenseless persons as her 11-year-old brother.

"Hungary must be free, she said."

EDITORIAL

We Recommend:

—Mr. Eisenhower

—Sen. Thos. Kuchel

—Rep. Craig Hosmer

THE MOST RECENT POLLS of public opinion told us that some persons still had not made up their minds how to vote in the Presidential election.

Those polls were taken before the critical situation in the Middle East had time to be reflected in the results of surveys.

The international situation has helped many of the undecided reach a decision.

UNDERSTANDABLY they were confused by the political smoke screens raised by rabid partisans on both sides during many weary weeks of bitter campaigning.

But the events in the Middle East has stressed one clear and overriding point:

In times such as these our country cannot afford to trade the leadership of a calm, courageous, and well-trained leader like President Eisenhower for that of a well-meaning and clever but relatively inexperienced man whose main occupation of the past four years has been political campaigning.

ABOVE THE SOUND AND FURY and the dark clouds this week the President, in two history-making speeches to the American people, stood as a tower of strength, principle, and hope for peace. The great quality of his leadership was unmistakable.

This, we believe, is the conclusive argument in a long list of arguments favoring the re-election of Mr. Eisenhower.

We proudly and confidently recommend him once again to the voters of this community.

WE FEEL ALSO that in these or any times, the President should enjoy that cooperation which comes from a Congress controlled by members of his own party.

That a candidate may be of that party is not the sole or the decisive qualification, of course. But when he has that qualification in addition to personal qualifications of the highest order, he deserves the enthusiastic support of all.

THESE MEN ARE STRONG members of the Eisenhower team. Both on occasion have shown their independence through honest differences of opinion with the administration. The principal point is that they have the same general philosophy as the President.

They have served this state and this district honestly and well and without partisan consideration. They deserve to be returned to Congress.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

U. S. Alone Has Kept Faith With Promises to Follow Path of Peace

IN THIS GRAVE and critical hour, the "issues" of the presidential campaign seem trivial indeed compared to the raging conflict in the Middle East and its long range implications.

Israel, born as a nation on May 15, 1948, and dedicated to peace and good will, has chosen the way of the aggressor.

Great Britain and France, staunch allies and comrades in arms, have rejected President Eisenhower's appeal to keep the peace by vetoing a United States cease-fire proposal submitted to the U. N. Security Council.

Col. Gamel Abdel Nasser, the Egyptian firebrand and "little Hitler of the Nile," has likewise turned a deaf ear to all proposals that would have settled the Suez issue peacefully.

These are the countries to whom we have given freely of our substance that they might achieve economic stability and a better way of life.

These are the nations, both large and small, whose statesmen give lip service in the United Nations to the cause of peace, but who march to war when their national interests are imperiled.

In the family of nations, only the United States keeps the faith and equates its acts with its words of peace.

IT IS ESPECIALLY tragic that Israel, political godchild of the United States and Great Britain, has rejected U. N. leadership for its present impetuous course.

The Israelis have been subjected to many provocations, although they have not been blameless in the bloody border clashes with the Arabs.

It is incomprehensible that the good will that was Israel's should now be dissipated by reckless and ill-advised leaders.

No amount of emotional rationalization can alter the fact that Israel, with or without encouragement from France and Great Britain, has precipitated a war which may engulf us all.

IT IS WITH THESE sobering developments in mind that our citizens will go to the polls next Tuesday to elect a President, a Vice President and the next Congress of the United States.

Primarily because there are so few, if any, basic issues at stake, the campaign will go down in political annals as a dreary, uninspired and repetitious performance.

As the challenger, Gov. Stevenson has been a disappointment even to his friends and advisors.

Stevenson, in forsaking the appeal to truth and reason which characterized his 1952 campaign, has lost stature with many voters.

His 1956 speeches have consisted largely of demagogic diatribes against the President and his administration. Most of Stevenson's campaign talk has been out of character with Adlai's own beliefs and convictions.

The most charitable thing that can be said is that Adlai Stevenson wants desperately to win and is willing to say or do anything that he thinks will help his candidacy.

ON THE OTHER HAND, President Eisenhower has remained in character. He is the same like who began the campaign with his high level acceptance speech at San Francisco, never indulging in personalities, low blows or political double talk.

IT SEEMS UNNECESSARY to repeat here all of the reasons why President Eisenhower should be re-elected. They are already well known to the American public.

But the compelling reason at this critical stage in world history is that Eisenhower, more than any other man in America, is best qualified by training and experience to deal with the Middle East crisis now endangering the peace of the world.

The hour calls for leadership that is courageous but not trigger-happy. The President's address to the nation last Wednesday night is evidence enough that we have in the White House a man of wisdom and sound judgment.

As I see it, to replace him at this time would be an act of incredible folly.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Ike Will Win by Getting 270 Electoral Votes at Very Least

WASHINGTON—This is the 11th presidential election in which this writer has published his forecast of the result. The score thus far has been eight correct predictions and two misses.

The same formula has been used again and again, and in the case of the two predictions that didn't pan out, the mistake was not in the formula but in the information gathered by this correspondent in 1940 and 1948 which led to an overestimate in certain states of the amount of voter discontent due to economic conditions.

The party in power in both those election years was better off on the economic side than was generally realized at the time.

For basically, when 50 to 60 millions of persons vote, only the overriding issues—things that can be called the common denominator of the thinking of masses of people—are decisive.

IN THE PRESENT campaign "peace" and "prosperity" have been emphasized by the Republicans and questioned by the Democrats. But President Eisenhower's speeches on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week—pledging firmly to keep the United States out of the war in the Middle East—was a dramatic confirmation of the "keep-us-out-of-war" issue, and hence events have in the main benefited the Republican administration. The issue is not whether there is peace all over the world but whether American boys are involved in a war.

AS FOR ECONOMIC conditions, the nation is prosperous in almost all of the states. In the agricultural areas the situation is somewhat adverse for the Republicans due to the drop-off in incomes for the farmers. But many farm families which don't want to see their sons or farm employees going to war will be influenced, because of the peace issue, to support the President.

Total 270

It should be noted that the foregoing table elects Ike without Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Missouri, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, Florida and Texas.

This writer doesn't expect Ike to lose all those states—in fact, quite a number of them will go Republican. For the pattern of prosperity applies to several of them, and the peace issue applies to them all. Also, "good times" prevail uniformly in the populous states with the exception of Michigan and Pennsylvania, where recent unemployment may have left a large residue of discontented voters. Since the total number of "prosperous" districts exceeds the number of districts in the thirty populated states, the Republicans have a good chance also of winning both houses of Congress.

THERE ARE 90 electoral votes classed by this writer as "doubtful" which could wind up in the Eisenhower column—Montana, Nevada, Minnesota, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. This would make Ike's total 360.

There are 92 votes also in the "doubtful" class that could wind up in the Stevenson column—New Mexico, Missouri, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, Florida and Texas—for a Stevenson total of 171.

The "ratio of doubt"—a phrase which this writer has used in previous forecasts of presidential elections—favors Eisenhower in the above group of states which comprise 90 electoral votes. There is, on the other hand, even among the 92 votes classed as "doubtful" but leaning toward Stevenson some question now about several states he has been expected all along to carry, such as Texas, New Mexico and Florida.

PERSONAL preference plays no part in this forecasting business, as this writer, while not supporting Franklin Roosevelt, forecast correctly his election on three occasions and in other years found it necessary to pick Republicans as winners, though actually favoring James M. Cox in 1920, John W. Davis in 1924 and Al Smith in 1928, all Democrats.

So, to sum up, it looks like Eisenhower. A big surprise may come in the election also of a Republican Senate and House. It is a distinct possibility at this writing, due largely to economic conditions in the prosperous and heavily populated states and to the emotional issues of the hour, which could influence a good deal more straight-ticket voting than has come the way of the Republicans in recent presidential elections.

Republican Propaganda Movie Backfires

WASHINGTON—The Republican propaganda film showing what the GOP has done for small business has backfired so badly it may have to be withdrawn.

The movie tells of an "actual" grocer who "received and is eternally grateful for" a Small Business Administration loan.

The hero, "Roger," who tells "in his own words" how he was helped by the Eisenhower administration, is not a grocer at all but a local TV actor and radio announcer named Hal Steiner. For his store, the Republicans rented the small S & A Market in southeast Washington.

The real owner, Henry J. Rubin, said he was glad to rent the store "because business is so bad." He was paid $25 for two hours' filming.

Rubins' small business, it also turns out, has never borrowed a nickel from the Eisenhower administration.

What's more, he isn't particularly pleased with the way his business has been doing under Ike.

"Small business is taking it in the neck, and it's getting worse," he says. "Small businesses are closing down around here."

Rubin belongs to neither party and would rather keep out of politics. But he has the Republicans in such an uproar that they are trying to withdraw the small business movie.

MEANWHILE, the once-proud Jordan Legion, trained by Britain to be the finest army in the Middle East, is coming apart at the seams.

Pro-Egyptian officers are seizing positions of leadership and it's now so undeniable that Hussein can't depend on it to maintain order in his own country.

Conditions in Jordan are such that it is almost certain to be absorbed either by Egypt or Iraq. This is one reason Israel precipitates war—to prevent an allied military ring around her borders.

IT WAS THE dogged digging of Washington correspondent Pat Munroe that finally forced the Panama Canal Co. to reveal the names of Congressmen who have been cruising in the sunny Caribbean at the taxpayers' expense, Munroe kept knocking on the company's door, then nagging the White House, until President Eisenhower finally agreed the names should be made public.

Don't Belittle Your Vote; It's Cast in Key Area of Key State

ON THIS FINAL SUNDAY before the 1956 Presidential election, the resident of this community might take an evaluating look at his own role in the decision to be written Tuesday.

More than 60,000,000 votes will be cast in the nation, a fact which tends to make the individual voter feel pretty puny and ineffectual.

To offset this, the stories are told of elections, even when huge votes were involved, which were decided by one or a few ballots.

Today, let's look at some other angles which emphasize the importance of the individual vote—particularly the individual vote right here in the Long Beach area.

Because the presidential contest is decided in the electoral college, the vote by state units assumes great importance. In fact, a candidate could win a majority of the national popular vote, and still lose the decisive electoral vote.

So the voter here is basically involved in a decision in California—the decision as to which national ticket will get California's 32 electoral votes. A majority of just one vote over his opponent in California could give Dwight Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson all of the state's 32 electoral votes. That gets it a little closer to us.

NOW CALIFORNIA is recognized as one of the "key states" in this election. That is because it has a big electoral vote—tied for second in the nation, and because it is a state with partisan characteristics which indicate the vote could go either way.

The classic example, of course, was the 1916 election, when California's vote, the last reported, took presidential election victory away from Charles Evans Hughes and handed it to Woodrow Wilson.

So we know the California vote on Tuesday is of vast importance.

NOW LOS ANGELES County has by far the largest voting population of any county in the state. Some studies have indicated that the way Los Angeles County goes Tuesday may decide the way the state goes. Los Angeles is our county—a key county in a key state.

The Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill community is one of the largest cohesive population units in Los Angeles County. It is well-balanced population as regards economic interests. It is about typical of the state as a whole in partisan affiliations. It has usually voted about the way California as a whole has voted.

So it is a fair statement to say that ours is a key community in Los Angeles County.

WE LIVE AND vote in a key community in a key county in a key state in next Tuesday's election.

And so—there is every good reason for every citizen to vote, to urge his neighbor to vote, to use his influence in behalf of the ticket he is convinced is best for the country. What happens here Tuesday could make the difference.

Depend on Marked Ballot

TO THE EDITOR:

Many of us depend a great deal on your marked ballot. So don't fail us. Please publish it as you have in past years. You are in a position to know more than we are about such things.

ZORA HICKS,
529 Lincoln, Wilmington.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Both the Press-Telegram and the Independent will publish their marked ballots on Monday.)

Pro and Con on L.A.C. Column

TO THE EDITOR:

I want to thank you very much for the wonderful column by L. A. C., "What Kind of Man?" It was great, and everybody should read it. There should be more articles telling about what a fine man President Eisenhower is and has been and what wonderful work he has done for the whole world.

Next Victim May Be a Child

TO THE EDITOR:

Today there is much sadness in our house because some crazy speeder hit our beloved white cat and left it to die. I only hope the person who did this knows what my three children think of him. I hope his conscience bothers him and is in due time fully repaid.

I realize the police can't patrol everywhere and at all times. But if they could only be here at 65th St. between Myrtle St. and Orange Ave., at least a few times a week around 8 a.m., 12 noon, and 3:30 p.m., they would find it like a freeway. Next time, instead of a cat, the casualty may be a child.

Ike, Karns and Rheumatism

TO THE EDITOR:

Mr. Harry Karns, in his column about the electoral vote, said nothing has happened to make Mr. Stevenson more popular with the voters in the states where he lost last time. What has Ike done to make the Democrats want to vote for him? I'm wondering if, since Mr. Karns has rheumatism in his right arm, indicating Republican victory, whether he won't end up with rheumatism in his head if Ike gets another term.

Says He'll Vote 'No' on EE

TO THE EDITOR:

As I study my sample ballot, I find no mention on it of the fact that in voting "Yes" on EE we would abolish the present deduction of $20 for each council meeting missed. What kind of skullduggery is this? I find no mention of the present salary of councilmen on the ballot and by what percent it would be increased. I will vote "No" on EE and be safe.

F. E. STEWART,
1772 Lemon Ave.

Thanks

TO THE EDITOR:

This is to express the sincere appreciation of the Long Beach Parents and Teachers for the fine publicity given us covering the annual P.T.A. Football Carnival. We are very grateful for the fine editorial Dick Zehms wrote concerning the event.

Downtown's Turning to Gay Nineties

Long Beach's up-to-date Downtown goes back to the Gay Nineties this week. The occasion: "Good Ol' Days," Thursday, Friday and Saturday. One of the main events will be an auto show contrasting antique models with 1957's latest. Three lanes of Pine Ave. will be blocked off to exhibit the cars. Bales of hay will be placed every 10 feet to keep traffic away from the display area. Sixty twisted jumpers and 20 lemon trees will be used for background decorations. The old cars will be displayed by members of the Antique Automobile Club of America, Southern California Group. The cars range in age from a 1903 Mitchell to a 1920 Reo roadster. The 1957 models will include every make except one. Local car dealers are cooperating in their presentation.

ON TUESDAY free contest tickets for three vacations will be available from any member of Long Beach Retailers Association, the organization sponsoring the three-day event. For "Good Ol' Days," there will be numerous old-fashioned bargains, according to Don Spring, president of the Retailers. He also pointed out that parking space for 50,000 cars would be available at 60 Park-and-Shop lots. Bus drivers will wear derbies during the event. Coffee and pie may be purchased at some restaurants for a dime. Free crackers and cheese will be distributed by one retailer.

IN ADDITION to the major vacation contest, several stores are planning "bean-guessing" and "rope-strand counting" games. Downtown sales personnel will wear old-fashioned costumes. Police will be attired in "Key-stone Cop" uniforms. Klieg lights will be brought into use and old-fashioned music will be played throughout the event. Numerous stores are planning special entertainment events. The West Coast Theater on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon will present old-time movies. Admission for adults will be 15 cents. Admission for children will be a nickel. The Press-Telegram Wednesday will include a special section with stories reprinted from the Long Beach Press of 1906. The same section will be in Thursday morning's Independent.

Poland Willing to Accept Help Without Strings

VIENNA (AP) — Communist Poland said Saturday night that it will accept an offer of U. S. economic aid and credits if it is granted without strings. Warsaw Radio said this point of view was presented by Polish officials to the U. S. ambassador in Warsaw. It quoted a statement by the official Polish news agency, P.A.P. The radio reported the officials insisted past U. S. offers "had a political character and were tied to various conditions." This made it impossible for Poland to accept, they said. The broadcast reiterated a Polish invitation to the United States to normalize relations.

Plane Replaces Campaign Train

WASHINGTON (AP) — This election year of 1956 will be marked as the one in which the airplane replaced the train on the American political scene—and television came of age. Statistics show that plane prop-stops have all but put rail whistle-stops out of politics. By election day, presidential candidates and their vice presidential running mates will have logged about 140,000 miles in campaign planes. Planes, which made their political debut as early as 1932, carried a big share of the campaign load in the 1952 campaign. But the short speech from a train's back platform still was a standard procedure for both candidates. This time, a United Press survey shows: For President Eisenhower — (As of Nov. 1)—a total of 13,171 miles traveled, 12,293 of them by air. Vice President Richard M. Nixon — (Estimated campaign total)—42,900 miles travelled, 39,000 of them by air. Adlai E. Stevenson — (Estimated total)—36,000 miles traveled, 34,197 by air. The Stevenson and Kefauver totals include 11,000 miles logged in the course of pre-campaign traveling to a series of regional campaign conferences.

Sen. Estes Kefauver—(Estimated total)—60,000 miles traveled, more than 90 per cent of it by air.

50 Trapped Miners Free, 63 Still Lost

SPRINGHILL, Nova Scotia (AP)—Fifty of the 113 men trapped in a coal mine explosion here since Thursday walked or were carried alive to the surface Saturday. More were known to be still alive deep in the mine tunnels.

Official reports at noon said there were 59 known survivors. Four hours later, mine manager George Calder said the exact number who survived was still unknown. He said it was a false hope to expect that all the men still below the surface would be brought up alive.

Preliminary reports from rescue teams and miners now hospitalized indicated that at least 23 were killed in the blast that wrecked surface buildings and filled most of No. 4 Cumberland pit with flame, gas and rubble.

CHARLES BURTON, the first miner to reach sunlight, said he thought about 40 were dead, deep in the rock-filled shafts.

When announcement was made that the first survivors had been reached, anxious relatives keeping vigil at the pit-head shouted with joy. Automobiles, with horns blaring, raced through this mining town of 8,000. Nearly every family in the community was involved in the disaster.

There was delay in bringing some of the men to the surface. Many were checked for injuries. Hot soup was sent down to those weakened by hunger as they waited for rescue nearly a mile under ground.

MOST OF THOSE reaching the surface walked out without assistance. Burton said the men in his section of the mine began walking and crawling to the surface Thursday night. Saturday they met rescue crews on the way down.

Getting out meant crawling up a 30-degree slope for almost a mile. The greatest hazards were gas and the risk of losing their air supply.

"I knew we had to get out or die," Burton said.

"There was no fire where we were—just smoke. But last night we lost our air.

"We punched little holes in the compressed air pipes, plugged our noses, and sucked air."

HE SAID the survivors had nothing to eat after Thursday noon and no water either except dirty mine water sucked from soaked rags.

"I couldn't begin to tell you how I feel," Charles Burton's wife said. "Talk about happy days! This is one of the happiest in my life!"

Her words were echoed in dozens of gaunt Springhill families.

Miner Alvin Taylor, 28, was carried unconscious Saturday from the colliery. Later when he recovered, he told this story to reporters:

"We were working at the 5,700 level, clearing up a coal face, when the explosion came.

"The power went off and we all sat down. We didn't hear or feel any blast.

"A fellow ran into the workings where we were and told us there was no more power and no more air. We knew something serious had happened.

"Men were dropping all around us. The gas seemed to follow us wherever we went.

"We worked our way back up a face to the 5,400-foot level and met a large group of miners there. These miners, as well as myself, owe our lives to Conrad Embree, who took charge of us there.

"He put us in a huge room and covered the two doors with canvas. He hacked holes in the compressed air pipe and we put our faces in the holes to get the fresh air."

24 B-1a Planes in War Exercise

MIRAMAR NAVAL AIR STATION (AP) — Twenty-four huge transport planes landed here Saturday as part of maneuvers of Camp Pendleton Marines, the Marine Corps reported.

The huge craft are capable of carrying about 80 troops each. The transports' flight drew attention of motorists and others who called newspapers to find out the reason for the large movement.

The maneuvers have been going on for several days.

Texas Gets Soaking Rain

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Steady, soaking rains — in some areas the most rain in months — fell on the eastern half of Texas Saturday.

The heaviest rains Saturday were in North Texas, especially in the area from Fort Worth and Dallas north to the Red River. Dallas had an even inch of rain. Fort Worth and the surrounding area reported rains ranging from .58 to 1.30 of an inch.

Blizzard Kills Eight, Snow Clogs Roads

The punishing blizzard that had battered western plains states since Thursday night was fading late Saturday leaving at least eight persons dead and masses of snow choking transportation arteries.

Discovery of the body of a missing Nebraska rancher, spotted by a search plane, and two section hands found frozen to death in Montana raised the death toll to eight. Five-storm connected deaths had been reported earlier.

The same clearing skies that permitted planes to take the air gave the green light to snow plows which had been held off the roads until the storm abated. The plows turned their attention first to motorists who had ridden out the storm trapped in their cars. Some had been "lost" for as long as 36 hours.

AT LEAST FOUR western Nebraska communities were isolated from the outside by snow drifts ranging in depth to 12 feet. Telephone service to some areas remained on an "emergency only" basis and power was a touch and go proposition.

Although hundreds of cars and trucks were abandoned in ditches and along highways in eastern areas of Colorado and Wyoming, state patrols reported all motorists accounted for at farm homes or wayside stops.

Northwestern Nebraska and the Black Hills of South Dakota were hardest hit of the blizzard-swept area of western Nebraska, western Kansas, Wyoming, Colorado, South Dakota and North Dakota.

The South Dakota highway department reported 40 inches of snow in the Black Hills. At Harrison, a northwest Nebraska town of 492 persons, there was 20 inches of snow. Drifts were 12 feet high.

DEATHS ATTRIBUTED to the storm included:

J. Lee Belcher, 29, Lamar, Colo., power company lineman, electrocuted trying to repair a wire felled by the wind.

Albert R. Potter, 30, Merino, Colo., oil rigger, died of asphyxiation, when his automobile skidded off the road and stalled in a snow drift.

Jerry Seveland, 8, Merriman, Neb., died while trying to reach his schoolhouse.

Thomas Rowan, 63, Minot, N. D., killed when hit by a car during the blinding snowstorm.

Herman Blumer, 68, Hill City, S. D., died when his car skidded and he was thrown 25 feet down an embankment onto rocks.

Emil Lawrence, 63, Hemlingford, Neb., rancher, who died in the storm after leaving his farm home Friday to feed his stock.

Joe Allen and Leonard Johnson, both 27, found frozen to death near Minola, Mont., where they worked as section hands.

It was expected to be today, possibly Monday, before snow-clogged roads are open.

We're in Bed With Reds, Truman Says

ST. LOUIS UP—Former President Harry S. Truman said Friday night that if the Republicans win the presidential election, "the 'Eisenhower team' would quickly become the 'Nixon ring'."

Discussing the Middle East situation with newsmen before his speech, Truman said the situation could have been avoided "if someone—and that is the President of the United States—had said 'no' when Russia started shipping arms into Egypt."

"We are in bed with the Communists," Truman said, "all because of a phony peace basis."

Truman centered his fire on Vice President Nixon in a speech prepared for a dinner sponsored by the St. Louis AFL-CIO committee on political education.

The 72-year-old Missourian voiced approval of the campaign conducted by Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, declaring:

"... he has been hitting them where it hurts and, if I'm not badly mistaken, he has them on the run."

Truman reviewed the career of Nixon as a congressman, describing him as a politician who made a practice of "sneering" opponents by accusing them of communism.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

U.S. Evacuation in Mideast Ends

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy, reporting that 2,500 Americans have been removed from the Middle East war zone, said Saturday the evacuation "is now complete."

Although an undetermined number of U. S. nationals still remain in Egypt and Israel, the Navy said "these are government officials and some private citizens who declined the offer to be evacuated."

Despite potential hazards, the announcement said, "no casualties occurred among civilian personnel during the evacuation."

Missing Negro Found

ANDALUSIA, Ala. (AP)—A Negro feared to have been the victim of a Florida lynch mob was found by the FBI Saturday hiding in the home of a blind preacher.

The Negro, Jesse Woods, 39, who vanished a week ago from a Wildwood, Fla., jail after he sang out "hello baby" to a white woman, had not been seriously injured, officials said.

The FBI traced Woods to this south Alabama town 350 miles from the scene of his disappearance through his correspondence with relatives who had helped spirit him out of Florida.

Ike Confident of Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is so confident of victory next Tuesday he is already making plans for his next four years in the White House, White House intimates disclosed Saturday.

Friends who are in close touch with the Eisenhower family said Mr. Eisenhower isn't "cocky." But they said he is thinking and talking like a man who fully expects to be running the government for another term.

Control Verdugo Hills Fire

BURBANK (AP)—A 15-acre brush fire burned to within 200 yards of costly homes in the Verdugo Hills Saturday before it was brought under control.

Fire Chief William J. Taylor said residents in the vicinity of Sunset Canyon Dr. and Churches Ct. hosed down their rooftops as the blaze, believed to have been started by juveniles, swept up the hillside.

Taylor directed 135 men, including units from Los Angeles City and County.

Partnership 'to Endure'

BANGOR, Wales (AP)—The British-American partnership will endure despite "a rather sharp difference of opinion on how to approach the Middle East problem," U. S. Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich said Saturday.

"I know that both our countries continue earnestly to seek a solution of this situation which we can both conscientiously support," Aldrich said. "The United States will continue to regard a whole-hearted and effective partnership between our countries as the most important need of the world."

CAP Sets Cadet Program

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The national commander of the Civil Air Patrol said Saturday night the organization intends to launch a nationwide cadet flight training program.

Major Gen. Walter R. Agce, head of the CAP, in a speech before the National Aviation Trades Assn., said the proposed program would climax a three-year aviation education course for each cadet.

First Newsmen Enter Zone of Israeli-Egypt Warfare

ABO AGEILA, Israeli-Occupied, Sinai Peninsula (AP)—Three civilian buses rolled from Israel across the Egyptian border without formality Saturday. They were the first to do so in eight years.

They raced along El Auja-Abu Agella road, the same road Israeli troops used to smash into the Sinai Peninsula at the beginning of this eventful week. The buses were filled with correspondents and photographers.

For other civilians it still was impossible to enter this area where fighting stopped only Friday with the surrender of a full Egyptian battalion surrounded by Israeli infantry and armor.

Signs of bloody battle were visible for many miles. There were many wrecked tanks, heavy artillery pieces and armored cars on the roadside—some overturned, some still burning, some Egyptian, some Israeli.

And among them, many dead soldiers on the stony barren battleground—some Egyptian, some Israeli.

SOLAR LENS INVENTED

Gadget Puts Sun to Work as Chef.

By BRYAN HODGSON
A Lakewood man has invented a gadget that will cook anything under the sun.
And that's no figure of speech, as Bob Olds, 55, of 5602 Castana Ave., will be happy to demonstrate.
He's perfected a solar oven which will broil hot dogs on sun-power, and is now working on a revolutionary lens made of plastic, which will enable a camper to carry his cookstove in his hip pocket.
"Olds' sunshine stove, which he calls the Solar Chef, is a dish-like reflector of polished metal, shaped to focus the sun's rays on a spit. The spit rotates slowly, driven by a tiny battery-powered motor.
"We took it up on Mt. Baldy recently and it worked fine," Olds said. "Broiled the hot dogs to a turn in 10 minutes."

OLD'S PLASTIC LENS may solve a problem which has long stymied scientists, who have proved that it's possible to generate high temperatures with sun-focusing devices, but haven't been able to figure out a light, cheap and portable device to make sun-power practical.
The lens is made of six six-sided pieces of flexible plastic, joined together so that the center is open. Each plastic segment has a series of parallel lines grooved on its surface. These lines bend the sun's rays to a central spot, thus multiplying the sun's heat six times.
"Direct sunlight usually runs about 120 degrees," Olds said. "Multiplying that by six gives you a good cooking temperature."
In addition to fuel-proof cooking, Olds believes that his stoves will have another big selling point for campers.
"You couldn't set fire to anything if you tried with these stoves," he said. "That'll relieve campers of the worry of starting forest fires."

OLD'S CAME TO LAKEWOOD two years ago from Illinois. At present, he's an electrical worker at Douglas, and works on his inventions in his spare time.
Among his past inventions were a static-free radio, which he made years before FM radios were developed, and magnetic door-latches, which he developed when the price of magnets was too high to make them practical.
He's also produced a "Stoopless" peiger counter, which is built into a walking stick and can be used as an aid in scrambling over rough country.
But the solar ovens are his main interest right now, and he hopes they'll be a commercial success.
"What I want is to make enough money so I can get out of the sun once in a while and go fishing," he said.

SIX TIMES OLD SOL
Sun power is multiplied six times by plastic lens developed by Bob Olds, 5602 Castana Ave. Camera wizardry of I. P.T.'s Bryan Hodgson produced this unusual portrait of the inventor and his solar gadget.

Dairy Valley Council Recall Move Started

DAIRY VALLEY — Mayor Jack R. Bettencourt Saturday had been confronted with a notice that a recall movement against him and the other four members of the City Council was being instituted.

Members of Dairy Valley City Council besides Mayor Bettencourt are Jacob Albers, 18510 Pioneer Blvd.; Albert Veldhuizen, 16330 Studebaker Rd.; Hal Rees, 12413 E. 193th St.; and Louis Struikman, 18411 Artesia Blvd.

Legal publication of the notice to circulate petitions demanding recall of the five councilmen was served by Willie Kicks of the Los Angeles County Marshal's office. The marshal was unsuccessful in serving the notices on the other four councilmen as they were "all out at the time."

The notices were signed by three officers of Artesia Crest Home Owners Association, Owen J. Dowd, president; Loris Hundley, president-elect; and Sandy Ramey, vice president, along with Stan Irwin, 20106 Pioneer Blvd. and Jake Van Ruitan, 19906 Pioneer Blvd.

Five French Soldiers in Algeria Slain

ALGIERS (AP)—Five French soldiers were killed Saturday in an ambush by Algerian nationalists south of Laercia, about 300 yards from Algeria's eastern border with Tunisia. Two other French soldiers were reported missing and four were wounded.

A report from the scene said the nationalist band crossed the frontier and sought refuge in Tunisia when pursued by other French forces.

Baby Fatally Beaten, Dad Held

SANTA MONICA (AP)—An aircraft worker Saturday was arrested on suspicion of beating his 11-month-old daughter to death after the child died at Santa Monica Receiving Hospital, police reported.
Joyce A. Montoya, daughter of David I. Montoya, 27, and his common-law wife, Gladys O'Conna, 25, was dead on arrival at the hospital after the mother said she found the child bruised and bleeding at their home.
Police said the mother told them Montoya beat the baby on several occasions.

Police said the mother told them Montoya beat the baby on several occasions.

legal notice to file a rebuttal. The answer, according to law, is required to be part of the signed recall petitions.

Fewer than 100 signatures of the city's estimated 1,300 registered voters are required to bring the issue to an election. Although the City Council's opponents did not give specific cases for the basis of the recall movement it is generally known many of them frowned on the Council's recent denial of a zone exception to permit construction of Cerritos Junior College on property at Alondra Blvd. and Studebaker Rd.

In public hearings on the zone-exemption request, Artesia Crest Home Owners Association nearly 180 Dairy Valley residents presented petitions requesting denial.

LIBRARY AT LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE

According to the most reliable statistics, many more students will be seeking to enter our state-supported institutions of higher learning in the next few years than present facilities can accommodate.

Proposition 3, on the ballot November 6, provides a $200,000,000 bond issue to help build new university and college classrooms and laboratories, as well as new facilities for mental hospitals and correctional institutions.

If Proposition 3 passes, the $200,000,000, added to current revenues, will do 2 things:

1—Insure that your son or daughter has a chance at a college education

2—Spread expenses of new facilities over a period of years so that those who come to California later will help pay for them and thus avoid the necessity of raising your taxes.

Estes Says Ike Untrustworthy

WITH KEFAUVER IN MINNESOTA (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver "whistle-stopped" through Minnesota Saturday and chose the politically historic town of Kasson to charge the Eisenhower administration with "untrustworthiness."
The Democratic vice presidential candidate told a small crowd, estimated by police at 175, that "Kasson will be re-membered by farmers as the place of the greatest broken promise in the history of American politics."
In 1952, Mr. Eisenhower spoke at Kasson during the national plowing contest and made what Democrats said was a promise of full parity for farmers.
Kefauver's Kasson talk was one of 18 appearances in the farm-conscious state which Democrats are seeking to swing back into their column this year.
The Tennessee Democrat embarked on his grueling Minnesota campaign tour early Saturday after an equally demanding day and night motorcade through western Pennsylvania Friday and a 17-hour tour of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Vienna, on Brink of Hungary Inferno, a Mass of Nerves

By MARIE W. RIDDER
(U. P. T. Washington Bureau)

VIENNA — Vienna, dangling on the precipice of the Hungarian inferno, is a tangle of nerves, rumors and would-be revolutionaries.

The city, finally shiny and prosperous after a year without the Russians, is a reluctant host to an odd assortment of human beings. Most excited and thus most prominent are the large numbers of Hungarian emigrants waiting to see whether they can safely return to their homeland.

Many have invested savings in a trip from the U. S. Others are motoring, cycling, even walking from their West German and Austrian refugees. A diverse group, they range from Socialist leaders to aristocrats, each with his own "special information" on the situation. Some of these emigrants have established themselves permanently in their new homes and are desperately using this moment of confusion to rescue loved ones forbidden exit since 1916. Others are less ambitious and only want to communicate with those from whom they so long have been cut off. Organizations such as the Catholic Caritas and indeed even our embassy are using every second in an attempt to reunite long-separated families.

"ANOTHER quite different sight in this cold gray city are the bands of so called students—an odd assortment of unshaven youth from many lands declaring they "want to get to Budapest and fight". An English group in an old car overburdened with medical supplies starts aimless across the border. A young American in frayed bits of an army uniform tries to get a "gang" together with a little food to go off and help." Young West plus the intense fighting of the last 10 days has left Hungary without the normal avenue of distribution.

"Supplies are getting to Vienna fine," said a weary International Rescue Committee worker. "Pan American alone has flown in — free — 30,000 pounds of donated drugs — and indeed all the air lines have been marvelously generous. But they cannot go into Hungary, so we have to reload all the stuff onto trucks and pray the Russians don't stop us."

The last, but we hope not least group crowding this tense city is of correspondents from all over the world. The bars are full as each recounts his own story of meeting that Russian tank.

YEARS OF isolation from the tank.

GENEVA, Switzerland (U. P.)—The International Red Cross Committee said three convoys of Red Cross trucks with food and medical supplies drove through Soviet guards at the Austrian-Hungarian border Saturday to take supplies to Hungarian hospitals cut off from the west since Thursday.

Committee officials said one of the convoys reached a city in western Hungary and returned to Austrian territory without incident after delivering its supplies.

"We have no news of the other two convoys," the officials said.

Oklahoma Rally Tips Buffs, 27-19

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Oklahoma's football machine, a coughing and sputtering thing early, perked just often enough in the second half Saturday to overcome a two-touchdown Colorado lead and preserve its all-time winning streak with a 27-19 victory before 47,000 fans.

Colorado led, 19-6, at halftime and Oklahoma trailed until quarterback Jimmy Harris' conversion made it 20-19 with 48 seconds left in the third period. Oklahoma added seven points late in the final period to put itself out of reach of the battling Coloradans and shot its consecutive winning streak to 36 games.

The Sooners broke out after halftime in the 35-degree weather with an 80-yard drive which netted a touchdown in four minutes. Halfback Tommy McDonald passed six yards to halfback Clendon Thomas for the score, and Harris kicked the extra point. But Oklahoma still trailed, 19-13.

OKLAHOMA'S go-ahead point came after a 48-yard march with McDonald skirting end 11 yards for the touchdown.

The Sooners scored in the final period on an 18-yard Harris-to-Thomas pass, ending a 70-yard drive.

Purdue, Illinois Tie, 7-7

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue and Illinois tied 7-7 Saturday in a standoff of crisp tackling and stunning blocks. Abe Woodson, running star in the Illini upset of Michigan State last week, saved his team from defeat by grabbing a Purdue fumble out of the air in his end zone and sprinting out of danger.

Fullback Ray Nitschke plunged a yard for the Illinois touchdown in the last two minutes of the third quarter. Lennie Dawson of Purdue threw the 27th touchdown pass of his college career in the final period, to halfback Erich Barnes, from the Illinois line.

Dawson and Dick Miller of Illinois kicked the extra points that left the score in a knot. Miller missed a fourth-quarter field goal attempt from the Purdue 19.

Both the Illini and Boilermakers crossed each other one yard stripe in the first half without producing a touchdown.

HELPED BY A Purdue game-day penalty on fourth down, Illinois tied running plays exclusively to drive 77 yards to the Purdue three early in the second quarter. Four jabs at the big Purdue line produced only eight feet, and the Boilermakers took over.

A flurry of Dawson passes sent Illinois reeling back to its own, but the 98-yard attack failed when fullback Mel Dillard fumbled into the hands of Woodson.

Subs Spark Kentucky to 14-0 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Kentucky, led by two fast-stepping second-stringers, sent battered Maryland down to its fifth defeat, 14-0, Saturday before 20,000 wet and unhappy homecoming fans.

Ivan Carnutte, a five-foot-six halfback who runs like a jet-propelled fire hydrant, scored the Wildcats' first touchdown on a nine-yard sprint around end after contributing most of the gains on a 46-yard second period drive.

And it was another second-string "spot" player—Billy Mitchell—who sealed Maryland's doom in the fourth period by returning a punt 78 yards for the game's only score.

The terrapins blew three good scoring chances as coach Tommy Mont tried out his seventh starting backfield combination of the season.

Buckeyes Held to 6-2 Win

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes, favored by 20 points, beat the halftime gun by 16 seconds for a touchdown Saturday and made it stand up for a 6-2 Big Ten football decision over tenacious Northwestern.

The victory was Ohio State's 16th league decision in a row, setting an all-time Big Ten winning streak.

The aroused Wildcats, who haven't won a Big Ten game since 1954, cruised to the Ohio State one when they first got the ball in the opening period. Bobby McKeever's 56-yard sashaying run set up the chance, but the Buckeyes held and took over.

BUCKEYE quarterback Frank Elwood was forced to punt from the end zone. The kick was blocked by Al Viola, the ball bouncing behind the end zone, and was pounced on by Northwestern's Cliff Pearl for a safety.

Northwestern then began another inspired drive, moving 43 yards to the Ohio State nine before being halted.

But after this demonstration, Northwestern only twice got beyond midfield again to the Buckeye 46 and 41.

With the clock running out before halftime, Ohio State's Tom Dillman stole Jack Ellis' pass and the sixth-ranked Buckeyes provided 63 yards in seven plays. Elwood passed 12 to Galen Cisco and then hit Brown in the end zone for a seven-yard payoff.

Vols Top Stubborn N.C., 20-0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee, with Johnny Majors on the bench and Georgia Tech on its mind, found North Carolina a scrappy handful Saturday before rolling to a 20-0 victory behind sub fullback Al Carter.

The victory set the stage for one of the football season's classic games next Saturday when Tennessee, rated third in the nation by the United Press coaches board, plays second-ranked Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Tennessee started slow until Carter, subbing for the ailing Majors, picked up speed for a second period score. The Vols added touchdowns in each period of the second half to insure their sixth straight victory without a loss.

COACH BOWDEN WYATT reached deep into his reserves but apparently it was more of an attempt to spark his team than to go easy on North Carolina.

North Carolina's Ed Sutton bothered Tennessee with a cranking play over right tackle which gained consistently.

Larry McMullen was another consistent gainer and the North Carolina line held tight until late in the game when injuries hit McMullen, fullback Wally Vale and guard Don Kemper.

first half, stopping two strong drives late in the second period and ripping out big holes for the backs to race through.

Colorado applied the pressure right from the start when guard John Wooten blocked fullback Billy Preece's third down quick kick on the Oklahoma nine. Fullback John Bayuk recovered the ball in the Oklahoma end zone for a touchdown, with only 3:49 gone.

Oklahoma came back strong, relying mainly on quick openers, for a 64-yard touchdown advance. McDonald scored on a 35-yard pass from Harris.

It was in the second period that Colorado indicated it might be able to pull off the season's biggest upset.

TIE BUFFS drove 69 yards on 13 plays with their second unit operating most of the time. Wingback Eddie Dove scored on a double reverse from the nine.

It took Colorado only 10 plays to go 66 yards for its third touchdown in the first half. Tailback Bob Stransky, who earlier added 30 yards on a run, went nine yards for the final Colorado score with 36 seconds left in the half.

Georgia Tech Wins, 7-0

4th Period Drive Nips Blue Devils

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Georgia Tech, its vaunted offense sputtering for three periods, finally slashed 61 yards with just 10 minutes left to play Saturday to beat old rival, Duke, 7-0, and preserve its unbeaten, untied record.

Fullback Ken Owen started the late Tech fireworks with bursts for 18 and 14 yards, through the tiring Duke line. Quarterback Wade Mitchell kept the drive alive with a 15-yard fourth-and-10 pass play to halfback Paul Rotenberg on the Duke 12. Four plays later, fullback Dickie Mattison smashed one yard for the touchdown.

In the second period the Blue Devils moved from their 33. Halfback George Dutrow, who powered the Duke ground march, was thrown for a two-yard loss by Mitchell. Next the 6-4 linebacker smeared Dutrow on the live on fourth down.

IT WAS LATE in the third period that Rotenberg intercepted a pass by Duke's Sonny Jorgensen on Tech's 49. Then Owen went to work, going to the Duke 31 in two rushes.

Halfback Jim Thompson was tackled for a 15 yard loss, but on fourth down Rotenberg flanked wide and took Mitchell's pass in the clear. Rotenberg and the big Mattison then smashed ahead. Mitchell converted.

Unbeaten Princeton Subdues Brown, 21-7

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—Little Jim Motley, a refugee from last year's 350-pound squad, pulled Princeton's stuttering offense together and led the Tigers to a hard-won 21-7 victory over Brown Saturday.

The victory was Princeton's sixth straight and kept the Tigers at the top of the Ivy League as the only undefeated major team in the East.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Syracuse's alert defense gobbled up three Penn State fumbles and intercepted three passes to come from behind with a 13-0 victory Saturday in a rib-rattling battle between two of the best teams in the East.

Moving a step nearer a possible Cotton or Gator Bowl bid, Syracuse punched over the winning touchdown with Chuck Zimmerman smashing over from the one in the final quarter after Dick Aloha had recovered a fumbled handoff by Al Jakes to Bruce Gilmore.

Jim Brown was the work-horse for the Orange, carrying 28 times for 104 yards and a season total of 687 yards.

Penn State was assessed a costly 15-yard penalty in the final minutes when Milt Plum, its triple threat ace, attempted to re-enter the game in an illegal substitution.

Plum's field goal from the 19, with the line of scrimmage on the 11 and one second in the first half, had given Penn State a 9-6 edge. Two line passes by Plum had set up the first touchdown, a four-yard run by Billy Kane in the second period.

Syracuse came back to tie the score in the second period on a five yard run by Dan Fogarty after Jim Ridlon had raced 45 yards with an intercepted pass thrown by Plum.

SPEED AND ERRORS

Cal Surprised by Oregon, 28-6

BERKELEY (AP)—Oregon's light brigade capitalized on speed and California errors for three quick touchdowns and a 28-6 Pacific Coast Conference upset victory Saturday.

A crowd of 32,000 in California's Memorial Stadium saw Oregon take a 21-0 lead before the second quarter was six minutes old.

Halfback Leroy Phelps started the scoring fireworks in the opening quarter when he burst 39 yards to a touchdown the first time he carried the ball.

Early in the second period, Don Gilkey lofted a punt that carried only 13 yards. Taking

Second Half Texas Assault Fails, 20-19

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Trailing 20-0 at the half, a fired-up Texas football team roared back in the second half to come within an eyelash of upsetting Southern Methodist, 20-19, Saturday.

The Mustangs' fine quarterbacks, Charlie Arnold and Larry Click, shot three first half touchdowns while the hapless Longhorns were held to only three first downs.

But a spirited gang of Longhorns almost pulled the game out of the fire as quarterback Joe Clements and halfback Walt Fendren ran the Ducks silly in the second half. Fendren's failure to convert more than one of three placement tries was the difference.

WYOMING IN 21-0 VICTORY

LOGAN, Utah (AP)—Wyoming's winterized football team ignored adverse weather conditions and virtually clinched the Skyline Conference championship Saturday by trouncing Utah State, 21-0.

Jim Crawford, the nation's leading ground gainer, rolled up 132 yards in 15 carries for Wyoming to run his season's total to 812.

Crawford scored on a 67-yard run, Ova Stapleton tallied on an eight-yard scamper and Larry Zavonda passed six yards to Buster Elder in the end zone.

CALIFORNIA produced its only scoring drive early in the third quarter, going 85 yards in 15 plays with Jack Hart tallying on a four-yard buck.

The Ducks wasted no time getting the touchdown back, going 67 yards in 10 plays, the finale a 28-yard dash around left end by halfback Jim Shanley.

Fullback Jack Morris converted three times to run his consecutive point after touchdown to 18 and set a new Oregon school record.

once being held for downs on the Stanford 10.

Barry Billington returned the opening kickoff 45 yards to the Stanford 53, then ripped through the middle on the next play for 11 yards to the 22. The Bruins moved it from there down to the 10 before being held.

But on Stanford's second play, Lou Valli fumbled after being hit by a crushing tackle on the 20... and right end Hal Smith recovered.

Billington knifed through the middle for seven yards to the 13 and Edison Griffin carried it to the four-yard line on three more stabs before he lugged it around right end for the touchdown. Don Duncan's kick was good.

Moments later Stanford was in position for its first all-out assault after Paul Camera recovered Elias' fumble on a punt return on the UCLA 41.

But the Bruins held tight, forcing the Indians into punt formation. Smith smashed his way through to block Brodie's punt... and O'Garra grabbed it in mid-air on the 42 and raced to the second touchdown at 8:20. The important extra point was kicked by Shinnick, one of the game's outstanding heroes.

It looked like Stanford's feared attack might begin clicking after the kickoff when the Indians moved out to midfield with a rush... but UCLA's terrific charge broke it up when Brodie was spalled for successive losses of nine and 15 yards back to the 26.

After Stanford kicked, the Bruins rolled to the Indian 37 as the quarter drew to an end, but on the first play of the second period Don Long's fumble was recovered by Joel Freis on the 26.

MOMENTS LATER, the Bruins fumbled the ball away again on their own 44 as it appeared more and more as if Stanford was finally getting the situation under control.

A Stanford kick and a clipping penalty then pushed the Bruins back into a deep hole on their seven and Shinnick was sent back to kick on second down. The punt sailed out to the UCLA 40.

Jackie Douglas, coming in from the bullpen to relieve the frustrated Brodie, quickly engineered Stanford's first touchdown drive as he switched from an air attack to a ground attack with Valli doing the bulk of the work and finally booming over from the three at 7:56. Raftery's kick was good to make it 14-7.

It appeared as if Stanford was on its way at last at the outset of the second half, taking the kickoff and rolling 70 yards in six plays for a touchdown with Brodie "back on the beam" with a 40-yard pass to Raftery to get things moving and then another for 21 yards to Raftery, who made a brilliant catch on the goal line for the score after only 2:11 of action. Then came Shinnick's great "save" to leave Stanford trailing by one point.

MOST OF the remaining 27:49 was marked by UCLA's stirring defensive play as the Bruins grimly clung to their slim advantage.

But at the end, it was Stanford that had to hurl back two UCLA scoring threats on the two-yard line and then on the five as time ran out on the Indians.

Up to the final half of the fourth period, a series of frustrating penalties and breaks not alone halted their own offensive efforts, but kept the Bruins in jeopardy much of the time as they were unable to work themselves out of the hole.

For instance, a minute or two after Stanford's touchdown, a holding penalty on a punt play by the Bruins nullified Ma-theny's recovery of Valli's fumble on the Stanford 27.

The next kick, from 35 yards farther, gave Stanford the ball on its 29 from where Brodie promptly mounted a drive that carried to the Bruins 17 before Billington intercepted a hurriedly-thrown pass into the end zone for a touchback.

Two 15-yard penalties stifled a brief UCLA advance out to midfield at that point and the Bruins had to kick. But Stanford roared into position from which to launch another attack when Doug Dick returned 52 yards to the UCLA's 40.

THE INDIANS slammed their way to a first down on the 29 when UCLA's tremendous rush led by Shinnick and Esker Harris first spalled Harrington and then Brodie for eight and 10-yard losses back to the 37 as the third period ended to break up another Stanford threat and give the Bruins a little breathing spell.

The Bruins definitely took command midway in the fourth period when they were able to gain ball control... a factor that set the stage for Stanford's two earlier losses to Michigan

State and Ohio State.

UCLA drove 72 yards from its own 26 to the Stanford two-yard line before a fourth-down fumble was recovered by Paul Wiggins with three minutes left to play. Three straight times the Bruins came face-to-face with the possibility of relinquishing the ball on this advance, but on all occasions clicked on crucial third-down passes to retain the ball.

THE PASSES were from Griffin to Dick Wallen for eight yards to the UCLA 40, 15 yards to the Stanford 38 and finally for 15 yards to the Indian 21.

There was still time enough for Stanford to pull the game out of the fire when the Bruin advance was stopped on the two...

...and the Indians quickly charged out to the 26 on a 19-yard pass to Dick to serve warning that they might just do that.

But on the next play, Brodie again was the subject of a tremendous rush by the Bruins and he fumbled when spilled hard by three Bruins on the 15.

... Jerry Penner recovering for UCLA.

There were two minutes to go at that stage and the Bruins used up all but 10 seconds of it in moving to within inches of a first down on the five before losing the ball on downs.

With enough time for just one play, the UCLA defense just backed up to await developments and once the Indians declared themselves on a 24-yard pass from Brodie to Dick, they closed in to stop the play on the 29 as the gun ended the struggle.

Sanders took a line from Shakespeare to describe the stirring victory... "Thrice is he armed whose cause is just."

Battle Cry Spurred On Bruins

of his delicious gladiators: "I felt like I should have been carrying them off the field. That's the most deserving victory I've ever seen! A bunch of players win. I have never seen a greater team victory."

In explaining the maximum pressure applied in an effort to thwart Stanford's famous passing game, Red stated:

"Omaha is the cry for our all-out rush. It was called plenty out there. On it, the whole line, end to end, and the linebackers rush the passer."

"I'm sure Esker Harris played a tremendous game—but but they all played well. All things considered, it was the greatest victory I've ever had. This team had divine guidance."

"I told Chancellor Allen before the game that we'd win."

THEN SANDERS resorted to Shakespeare for a summation comment in the Bruin dressing room, where triumph was being thoroughly enjoyed.

"Thrice is he armed whose cause is just," added Sanders. "I don't know what play the line's from, but it fits. I told the players no practice next week until they hear from me."

Achieved against the heaviest odds the Bruins have faced since Sanders came to Westwood, this 14-13 upset was the 22nd successive win in the Coliseum for the Bruins and at least temporarily derailed the Chuck Taylor-tutored Indians on their road to the Rose Bowl Jan. 1, 1957.

Sharpshooter Brodie, far from downhearted, summed up the dramatic events of the day in the Stanford dressing room as he began to shed his battle raiment.

"THEY RUSHED us with everything they had, it seemed," he stated with a chuckle. "I've never seen so many blue jerseys at one time. I never seemed to get the ball away before they were down my throat. They put the greatest pressure on me I've ever experienced."

Taylor frankly viewed the defeat without bitterness. As he slipped a coke, he told his interviewers:

"UCLA did a tremendous job on us, particularly in the first half. They showed us the best defense against our attack that I have seen this year. We're disappointed in losing, naturally, but I have to give every bit of credit to the Bruins for a helluva job, both the kids and the coaches."

"THE RUSH WAS a real smart move on Red's part, but we didn't take advantage of it with the short passes to make them stop."

"UCLA is a good opportunistic team. It is every year. That's the way Sanders coaches."

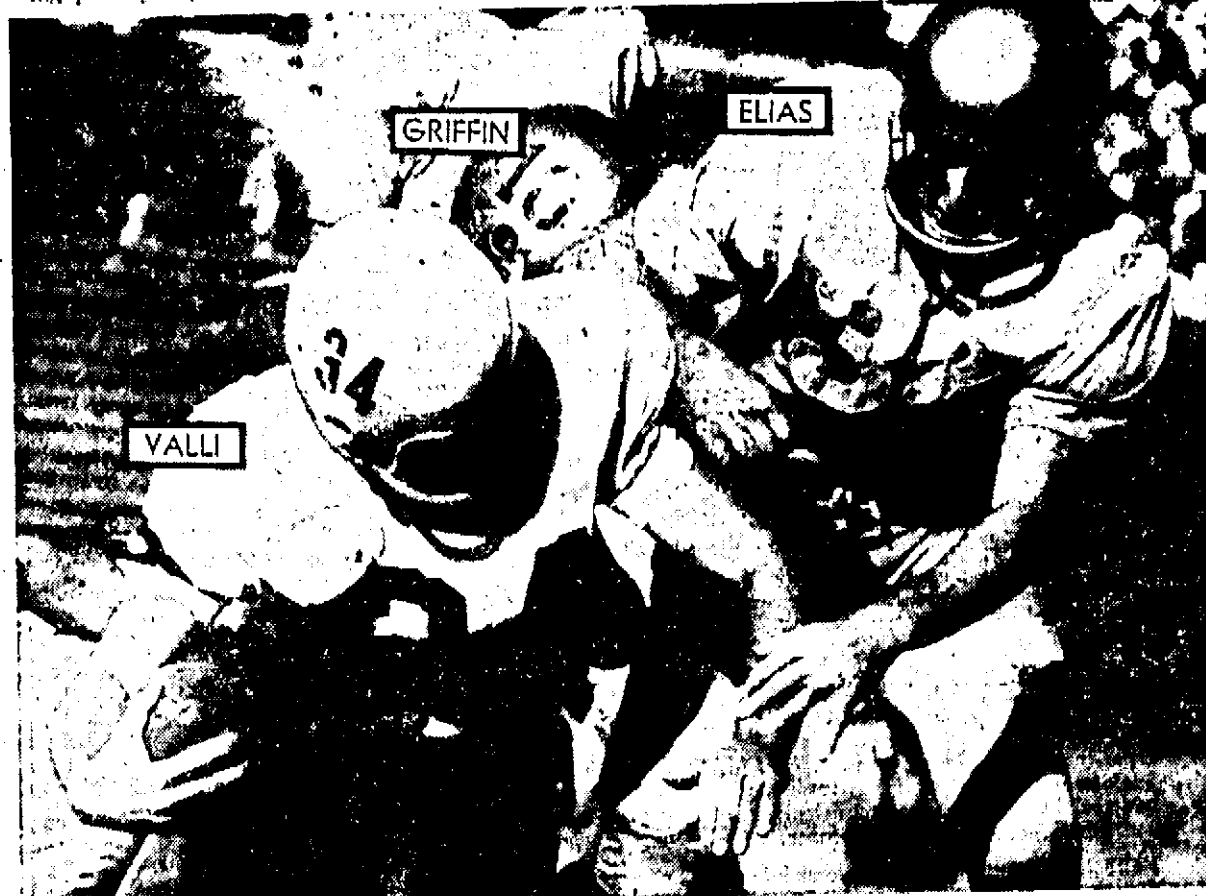

"I have a feeling we'll win the Oregon State game (next Saturday at Palo Alto) as a result of this defeat. If Oregon State uses the same kind of a rush on us we'll be better prepared."

THE HEARTY SLAPS on the backs were for everybody in the Bruin dressing room, but Don Shinnick's colossal play and the Herculean efforts of Harris drew the most louds from the Bruin dressing room visitors. Sanders, who etched the plan of triumph against tremendous odds, had it rough when he tried to leave. Outside the Bruin quarters a crowd was jam-packed. It gave him the ovation he merited. This was coaching victory at its best.

Before the game, Sanders and Taylor met for a few words in midfield. What did Red say to Chuck?

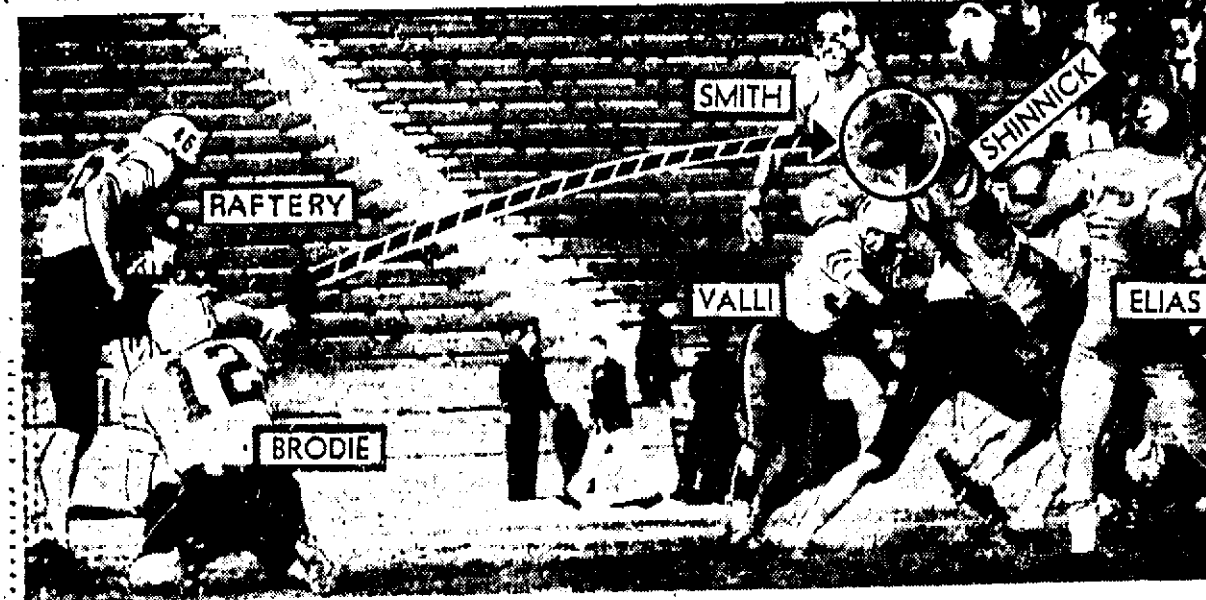

"I told him Stanford was going to get licked today," he answered.

The impure were pure Saturday, 34 points worth, thanks to the magic of "Omaha" and a wily defensive genius. There is sorrow in Palo Alto tonight—and for years to come!

Writer Takes Test Ride in New 'Olds'

By PAUL WALLACE

PHOENIX — Eighty of the nation's top automotive writers, gathered for the press preview of the 1957 Oldsmobile, today watched the new model put through its paces on General Motors huge desert proving grounds near here.

Thursday the reporters took a 200-mile tour caravan of 37 of the much altered Oldsmobiles.

The new models will go on public display Friday. Olds claims its 1957 line is the most changed new model it has marketed in the last 20 years.

Today at the proving ground, a super-hot model with a three-carburetor manifold and an experimental fueled car were demonstrated along with the regular 1957 models.

THE THREE-CARBURETOR engine will be available as an optional "around the first of the year," officials announced. It boasts this year's standard 277-horsepower "rocket" engine to 300 horsepower. Fuel injection is still in the development stage for Olds, engineers said.

An induced front-wheel blow-out at 70 miles an hour to show the stability of the new car and acceleration tests between 1957 and 1956 models were run on the five-mile banked circular track.

The effective new anti-drive device on the front end for hard stopping also was demonstrated at the track which is used for high speed and hot weather testing.

Thursday, the procession of new cars filed over the precipitous and colorful Apache Trail—one of several routes scattered over the country which Olds uses to actually road test its cars under punishing conditions.

The road leads through the famed Superstition Mountains, site of the legendary Lost Dutchman gold mine.

WORLD OF WHEELS

New Studebakers Due Thursday

HAWKS FLY SOON — The 1957 line of Studebaker Hawks, highlighted by the Golden Hawk with advanced styling, a super-charger, a non-slip power-dividing differential, 15 per cent better performance, 20 per cent faster steering, and new safety features, will hit the wheel and land in Long Beach next Thursday.

The long, low family-size hard-top and coupes will be the only line of sports-type cars by an American manufacturer in 1957, covering various price brackets.

The line leading Golden Hawk with its new supercharged 275-horsepower V-8 engine, new front-rear weight distribution, new automatic transmission, and the most favorable power-to-weight ratio in its class, will be the highest performance car in its price field for 1957, according to Studebaker engineering.

IT WILL BE the only American production car with a super-charger.

In addition to the Golden Hawk, the sports-styled line with canted rear fins will include the lower priced Silver Hawk V-8 with 210-horsepower, 280-cubic-inch engine (225 horsepower with optional power kit) and the Silver Hawk six with the economical 101-horsepower, 165-cubic-inch in-line engine.

Introduced just a year ago as the first complete line of sports-type cars by an American car manufacturer, the Hawks achieved immediate public acceptance for their combination of high performance and sports styling with standard family-size car comfort. Demand exceeded company predictions and the Hawks are being scheduled initially at 25 per cent of Studebaker production.

IN ANNOUNCING the 1957 Hawks, Harold E. Churchill, Studebaker-Packard president, forecast that sports-styled cars would begin to take a substantial share of production for the first time in the industry this year. He anticipated that most manufacturers within two years would offer the family-size models for which such a high level of general public interest has been shown by Studebaker success.

He noted recent Studebaker surveys which have indicated the average Studebaker Hawk buyer is no different than other car owners. He is married, 39 years old, with two children, and owns just one car.

SALTA SHINDIG — There'll be a lot of laughing, clowning and hi-de ho-downing come next Friday night at the Salta Pontiac wigwam, 1545 American Ave., as Spade Cooley gives out with his rock-a-billy music.

Big Chief Mike Salta has hired the entire Cooley orchestra to entertain the citizens who will throng to the Pontiac showroom next Friday to see the 1957 Pontiacs. Spade will give the downbeat at 8 p.m.

AROUND THE ROW — Russ Osborne, the "old man" of Russ Osborne Used Cars, 1002 American Ave., returned recently from a car buying trip to Chicago.

Rat Mungo, salesman at John Osburn's Used Cars, 1940 Cherry Ave., appears to be a "heavy" in the entertainment world also. He is in the play, "State of the Union," now on at Community Playhouse, and recently was seen in "Success Story" on KTTV.

A very precious bundle arrived recently at the home of Jerry Flare, boss man at Flare Motor Sales, 1550 American Ave. Cigars might be in order for anyone buying a car from Daddy Flare.

MOTOR SPORTS

Sports Car Designed Primarily to Provide Fun for Its Driver

By PAUL WALLACE

The first question always asked of a sports car driver is "What kind of mileage do you get?"

It always stops us. It's like asking the owner of a racing yacht how many passengers it carries. It's a reasonable-sounding question. But it's completely irrelevant.

We suspect what they really want to know is what there is about this pint-sized auto that made you lay the pounds sterling on the line for it instead of buying a much bigger, more luxurious domestic machine.

Our answer lies in our own definition of what a sports car is. (Much has been written on this subject with little unanimous agreement.)

To us, a sports car is simply an automobile whose primary purpose is to supply fun to its driver.

Its gas mileage, its passenger space, its speed and power, even its ability to get its passengers from one place to another with predictable regularity, is completely incidental.

A "sports" car is just as the name implies.

If it happens to accelerate like a bullet, if it gets 30 miles to the gallon, if it carries two people about their business day after day without faltering, then you have gotten a bonus.

HAPPILY, virtually all the production sports cars have an impressive amount of utility built in.

But some of the best—Bugattis and Ferraris—have had practically none.

Today's production sports cars, however, are generally dependable automobiles. Most are economical and comfortable. If they weren't, they wouldn't sell. Wives simply wouldn't hold still for them.

But they do sell.

DURING the next few weeks, we are going to devote some space to a brief description of each of the more popular sports cars.

Each differs in characteristics and details.

But any one, we think, can make driving a stimulating thing to be sought whenever possible rather than avoided as a necessary but unpleasant daily experience.

scheduled by the Long Beach Renegades Car Club for the Bellflower High School campus, next Sunday are nearly completed.

Today, eliminations for the car show queen contest are being held from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Towne House, 16303 Bellflower Blvd.

Finalist will be voted on at the show, with the winner to be determined by popular ballot.

The show itself will feature competition in 11 classes including sports cars and dragsters. Trophies will be given in all classes with a sweepstakes trophy to the overall winner.

Homes Offered Boy in All of 48 States

By BERT RESNIK

There's a home waiting in any of the 48 states for a 9-year-old Long Beach boy whose parents have said they don't want him. But home now for George Wise is Juvenile Hall, Los Angeles.

"And the home where he wants to be is at 3429 Karen St. with his parents and the four brothers and sisters he loves.

Juvenile Bureau officers here report there have been 250 offers of adoption for George. They are from every state in the union.

None of the offers can presently be considered.

GEORGE WISE
Wants to Go Home

NONE CAN BE considered although George's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wise, signed a statement at juvenile headquarters here specifying:

"We feel for our own family and the boy's welfare that it will be better for him to be placed outside our home."

That particular portion of the signed statement followed a declaration by the parents that both felt they had been given the wrong child at San Diego Naval Hospital nine years ago.

For the boy, the third in a family of five children, the future rests on the outcome of a court hearing to be conducted here Nov. 16.

On that date Judge Fred Miller in Juvenile Court will hear a petition alleging that the child's home is unfit for him by reason of neglect and actions of the parents.

In other cases where the same charges have been alleged, several different decisions have been reached, according to Stuart Weisshampel, area director of the Long Beach office of the Probation Dept.

IT IS POSSIBLE for the judge to dismiss the petition if he feels there is not sufficient cause for the court to take jurisdiction.

Second, the judge could make the child a ward of the court but, at the same time, return the youngster to his parents' home.

this second petition are embodied in Section 701 of the California Welfare and Institution Code. Primarily, it deals with the responsibilities of a parent.

There is one other possibility involved if the youngster becomes the ward of the court. During the year observation period, the parents may relinquish their child for adoption if the court consents. They cannot sign a relinquishment form without permission of the judge.

A lot of possibilities. A lot of legal technicalities. A lot of heart-break.

The Nov. 16 court hearing will not be the first for 31-year-old Roy Wise.

On Wednesday he will appear in Municipal Court here to stand trial on a charge alleging unjustifiable punishment to a child.

The boy, asked by juvenile officers how he was scraped on his back and cheek, told how his father used a stiff scrub-brush to give him a shower.

THE LAD'S CUTS had bled and the scabs were evident to the juvenile officers.

Wise, though admitting the scrubbing, has disclaimed any ill intent. He told newsmen that he, ment with the law, he's lost his job.

Eight City Issues Face Voters

Douglas Jet Unit to Hire Over 11,000

The mail has been arriving at odd times at our house, sometimes late, just like in the Christmas season.

At the suggestion of my wife, who thinks her husband ought to know the reason for such things, I called Postmaster George McMillin and discovered something.

The whole local division of Uncle Sam's postal system has been fighting a great, big, beautiful jam for the last 10 days.

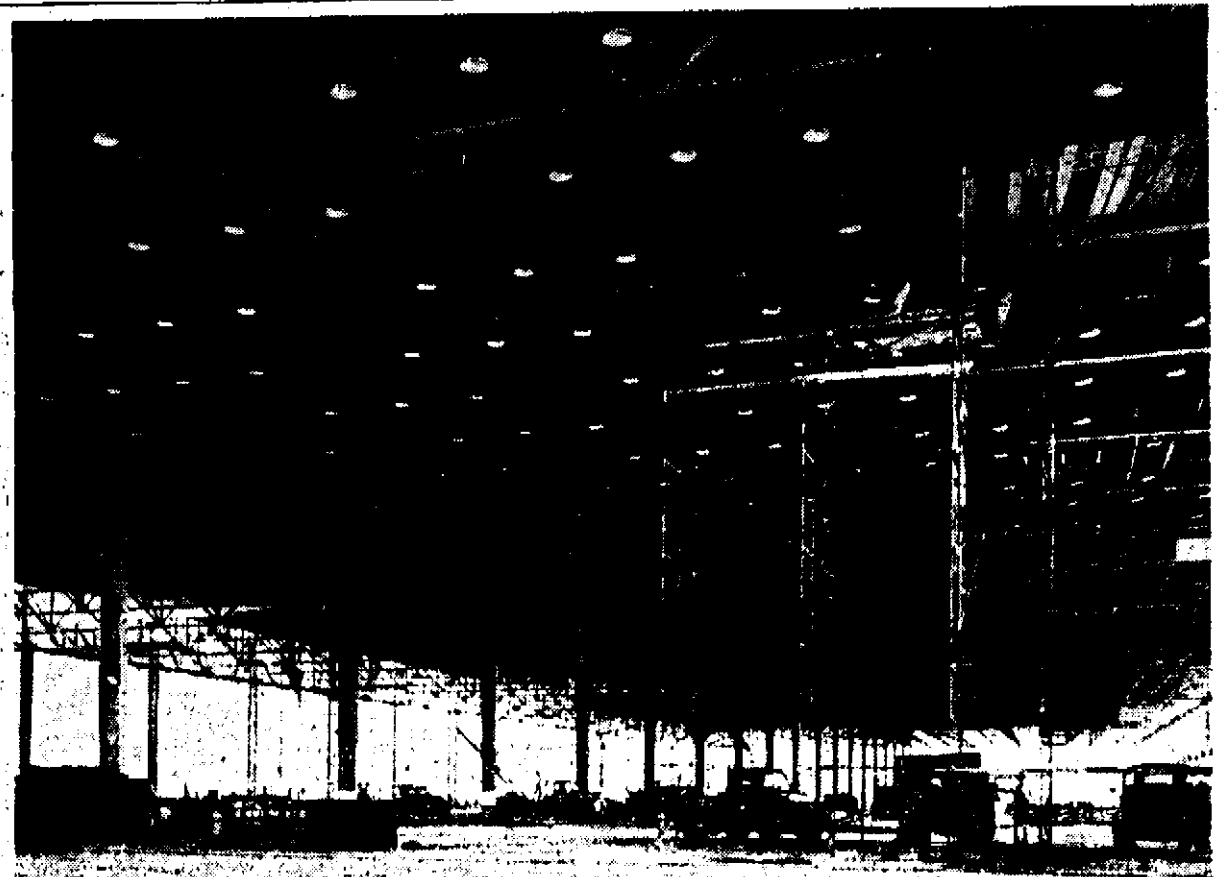

In fact, it has been just like Christmas season to the postal people, too. Except that at Christmas time, extra help can be hired, while this one has been handled by the regular staff, with considerable overtime involved.

At peak operation, Douglas Aircraft Co.'s new DC-7 jet airliner plant here will employ more than 11,000 persons, the company disclosed Saturday.

And this will be in addition to the number of employees then working on Air Force contracts, said K. G. Farrar, vice president-general manager of the Long Beach division.

At present, the company has 18,500 persons on its payroll. However, this number fluctuates with the number of military orders.

THE JETLINER facility — first commercial aircraft plant in Long Beach as well as the first jet airliner factory in the nation — now is nearly 50 per cent completed, Farrar said.

JET AGE PLANT PROGRESSES

Now 29 per cent complete is the Long Beach production facility for the Douglas DC-8 commercial jetliner. Photo shows progress on the first of the buildings being constructed east of Lakewood Blvd., across from the main plant. The new jet factory will employ 11,000 at peak production.

176,000 Registered for Local Balloting

By GEORGE WEEKS
City Hall Reporter

Eight municipal propositions, all charter amendments, will be submitted to Long Beach voters in Tuesday's election. Eligible to decide the issues are 176,890 registered voters who will ballot in 649 precincts.

Five of the eight are considered noncontroversial because they drew no opposition arguments in the pro-and-con pamphlets distributed under city auspices.

The propositions, in the order of their appearance:

PROP. AA places a ceiling of $15 million on the Harbor Reserve Fund and provides that this money may be spent for harbor operations and improvements upon approval of a majority of the harbor board and two-thirds of City Council. It also abolishes the Public Improvement Fund, which is dormant and depleted anyhow since the State Supreme Court outlawed tide-land oil financing of upland improvements and the city and state compromised on a 50-50 split of the disputed revenues.

Principal argument for Prop. AA is that, in view of the new city-state partnership, it is no longer practical to maintain an unlimited reserve fund, expendable only for subsidence works unless the voters rule otherwise. Income to the Harbor Revenue Fund, which finances normal port operations, is inadequate to meet demands for improvements that cannot be classified as due wholly to subsidence.

The Civic League, sponsoring the opposition argument, contends that existing restrictions should not be liberalized because property damage from subsidence and earthquakes "may result in ruinous damage suits against the city."

PROP. BB authorizes extension by negotiation of oil-production contracts not on the tidelands and in effect prior to March 5, 1954, date of a charter amendment requiring competitive bidding. Maximum term of such an extension is 25 years. City Council could override any action taken by the harbor board under the new provision.

Councilman Raymond C. Kealer, who wrote the affirmative argument, estimates the city is losing up to $15,000 per month because several upland wells in the harbor district have not been redrilled. The reason is that redrilling costs would not be recovered during the comparatively short unexpired term of the lease or operating agreement.

The Civic League argues that where public funds are involved the people should be protected by competitive bidding.

It also has been noted that the proposal as drawn would permit the renegotiation of royalty payments as well as the time element. The harbor board has on several occasions renegotiated upland royalties, under authority of a legal opinion, but presumably the new latitude would extend also to existing upland leases outside the harbor district.

PROP. CC increases the maximum term of city contracts for obtaining dry gas and electric power from 5 to 25 years. It is intended to facilitate city contracts for additional gas—a problem which, officials say, may become serious as early as this winter.

PROP. DD enables the city to lease buildings, equipment or property it may own for 25 years in lieu of the present 10-year limit. It is designed to apply particularly to facilities to be financed from the $10,500,000 hospital bond issue.

PROP. EE increases the monthly salary of councilmen from $200 to $400, eliminates the $10 per meeting they receive while sitting for five days annually as a Board of Equalization, cancels the $20 deduction for unexcused absences from meetings and raises the mayor's annual expense allowance from $600 to $1,200.

The affirmative argument by the Junior Chamber of Commerce asserts that a greater number of qualified candidates should be enabled to seek the office of councilman, which has become "virtually a full-time duty."

Associated Property Owners contends in rebuttal that two-fifths of the weekly council meetings are concluded by noon.

PROP. FF extends to Air Force and Coast Guard veterans of the Korean conflict the same veterans' preference in civil service already given veterans of other service branches.

PROP. GG prohibits change in boundaries of the harbor district without prior approval of the electorate. Under the charter as it stands, a majority of the City Council could extend the harbor district with no recourse by the voters except the referendum.

PROP. HH repeals portions of the charter described by City Atty. Walfred Jacobson as obsolete. Many of these provisions were necessary at the time, such as a grant of property for Long Beach State College, but are no longer operative.

When Bro. McMillin mentioned the chief reason for all this, I could have kicked myself for not guessing.

It's political mail—the great floods of propaganda and appeal of one kind or another, pouring through the postal system in the direction of the voters—that has been clogging up the works.

There's never been anything like it here before, and it caught the postal department by surprise.

Some of the stuff has been pouring in from outside, some is put in the mail here. One candidate sent over 80,000 pieces of mail to the post office the other day, just like that. Prop. 4, the oil bill, has sparked one of the biggest mail campaigns in history. The national election, the local contests, and the battles over other propositions have contributed to the colossal volume of reading matter, a lot of which, I'm sure, is never read.

The postal force, like the rest of us, will be glad when the election is over.

The reason I should have known the cause of the postal rush is that a big hunk of that political mail lands plop on my desk every morning.

What you get at home is multiplied many times in what is sent to a newspaper in the campaign season. We can hardly keep our heads above it here.

The man who carries out our wastebaskets in the evening is getting badly bent. And still, despite a determined effort to discard the stuff, a lot hangs over from day to day because of a feeling that there just might be something in it that might be useful later.

On the day after election, we're going to dump it all. Oh happy day!

You'll be glad to hear that the little raccoon, discovered in the attic of the A. E. Hinker family in Lincoln Village as related here last Sunday, is still a guest of the Hinkers and doing fine.

They've taken a great liking to the little fellow. Al, the father of the family, was a little dubious about letting him stay in the attic for a good, sanitary reason, but Mrs. Hinker has taken care of that by installing a sand box.

Anyhow, he had been around for a long time before he was discovered, with no serious unsanitary consequences. In fact, Mrs. Hinker says she has been hearing noises in the attic for six years.

The Hinkers have identified their guest as a ringtail, one of the nation's most picturesque animals.

Now a ringtail is a distant cousin of the raccoon, with the scientific name "bassarictus astutus" which means "clever little fox." But he's no fox.

According to an article in Natural History Magazine (Feb. 1955) which somebody has given Mrs. Hinker, the animal is variously known as the coon cat, bandtailed cat, raccoon fox, cat squirrel and coonminkie. He lives exclusively in parts of the West and Southwest, and he eats insects, rodents, centipedes, some birds and fruit.

The Hinkers are trying to think of a name for their coonminkie. Any suggestions?

Nell Randolph, who teaches second grade in Progress School, tells me her pupils are greatly interested in the Hinker coon and in last Sunday's story of prehistoric animals which used to roam here. Maybe they'll think up a name.

Audio-Visual Expert to Show Documentaries

William Speed, head of Audio-Visual Services at the Los Angeles Public Library will be guest speaker at a film showing of selected documentary films at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Ray Shore Branch Library, 5390 E. 2nd St. The public is invited.

Two films produced by John Grierson are scheduled for screening. "Night Mail," which records the run of the London-Glasgow mail train is rich in a variety of documentary techniques. "Granton Trawler" is a film study of fishermen engaged in dragnet fishing off the East Coast of Scotland. Also scheduled is "Battle of San Pietro," produced by John Houston.

Speed will be introduced by Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian at the Long Beach Public Library.

Case Work Authority Joins Chest

After a varied life as Red Cross caseworker at combat hospitals, medical social worker and public welfare "troubleshooter," Helen Brazell has joined the staff of Family Service, Community Chest agency at 1213 Cedar Ave.

"We feel that Miss Brazell, with her rich background, is a distinct adjunct to our staff as a case worker," said Joseph McDonald, executive director.

Educated at Oklahoma University and the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University, Miss Brazell came to Long Beach from St. Louis, where she taught in the School of Medicine of Washington University.

"I tried to help the medical students see their patients as people rather than disease entities," explained Miss Brazell. "It is important to understand the social and emotional problems of illness."

Miss Brazell served in combat hospitals, following invasions in the Southwest Pacific, in World War II.

She served as public welfare county director in Oklahoma.

STATE PLANS HOMECOMING

New Grads to Find Big Campus Change

Nearly 3,000 recent "grads"—there are no "old grads" at Long Beach State College—have been invited back to campus Friday for the college's fifth homecoming.

The change of scenery in new buildings, mushroomed enrollment and construction under way will provide a picture of staggering growth in the 32 men and women of the class of '50.

The homecoming program, scheduled for 5:30 in the gymnasium, will be followed by a bonfire on the lower campus with a student assembly, pep rally and the coronation of a homecoming queen. The Lighters meet Arizona State under house All Stars will present a jazz concert at 1 p.m. A parade through the downtown area will start at 2 p.m.

An alumni coffee hour is scheduled for 4 p.m.

Shrine Head Honored in Parade Here

W. Blair Gibbons, potentate of El Bokal Temple of Shriners, was announced Saturday as honorary grand marshal of the Veterans Day parade in downtown Long Beach Nov. 11.

The six-unit El Bokal Patrol will be among marching units. Added to the march was the drill team of the Ladies Emblem Club 141, Compton.

Other units will include 8 drill teams, 9 drum corps, 6 mounted groups and 14 floats.

Air Force planes from Norton Air Force Base and Navy aircraft from San Diego will fly over at 2 p.m.

CHANGES WHICH WILL

confront homecomers include an instructional staff grown to 275 and a student census of upward of 7,000. In seven years, 1949-1956, LBSC has awarded 2,513 A.B. degrees and 856 M.A. degrees, more masters degrees than any other California state college in a like period. From limited course offerings in early years, LBSC now offers over 900 courses.

The college already has been allocated $14 million for new buildings. An enrollment of 12,000 is expected within five years. President Dr. M. Victor Peterson anticipates 18,000 by 1965.

The upper campus look has changed with seven brick and masonry buildings of contemporary design. The new administration building will be occupied Nov. 13. A faculty office building will be completed in December and a cafeteria will open at the beginning of the second semester.

Symphony Conductor Bows Here

Lauris Jones will make his debut as conductor of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. today when the Long Beach Symphony Association opens its 1956-57 season in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium.

Brahms' Variations on a Theme by Haydn is the opening number chosen by Jones, former conductor of the Santa Barbara Symphony and associate conductor of the Pasadena Symphony.

Program highlights include the Choral, Prize Song and Finale from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," and the Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" by Borodin. The 100-voice Schola Cantorum, choral group under the direction of Royal Stanton will appear.

Also appearing will be John Maloy, tenor, and Carl Schultz, bass-baritone. Maloy has appeared with the USC Opera Workshop in such roles as Verdi's "Otello." He is now a candidate for his master's degree in opera and will be heard soon in the title role of the university's production of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman."

Season tickets and single admissions are still available. The box office at Municipal Auditorium will open at 7 p.m. Season tickets are $7, $4 and $3. Single tickets are $2.50, $1.25 and 75 cents.

DOOR-TO-DOOR CAMPAIGN

Thanksgiving Drive Aids Retarded Child

This Thanksgiving, the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation suggests: "Give Thanks by Giving to Help Retarded Children," and becoming a "Thanksgiving Volunteer."

Hundreds of volunteers will make a door-to-door canvass of the city on Nov. 19 to collect funds for the program celebrated nationally Nov. 11 to 22.

To set up the "Thanksgiving Volunteers" program, open house will be held at the Long Beach organization's training center, 4519 E. Stearns St., from 11 a.m. to noon Wednesday, according to Mrs. Ray Stevens, president. Volunteers are needed to help make the door-to-door fund drive.

MRS. STEVENS has named Mrs. Albert Horn, past president of the group, to handle the drive for $30,000 in the Long Beach Lakewood area. Serving on her committee are Milton Arthur, Mrs. Malcolm Todd and Mrs. Vincent McDonnell.

National honorary president of the drive, which has the endorsement of President Eisenhower, is Jack Benny.

THE PARADE will start at 1:30 p.m. from Ocean Blvd. and Cedar Ave. and will proceed on Ocean Blvd. to American Ave., then north to 6th St., west to Pine Ave., south to Broadway and west to Chestnut Ave. The reviewing stand will be at Broadway and Cedar Ave.

Maj. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, commanding general, Aircraft, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, will be grand marshal of the parade, which will honor the Marine Corps.

A BATTALION of Marines and the band from Camp Pendleton will head armed forces units. All of the services will be represented.

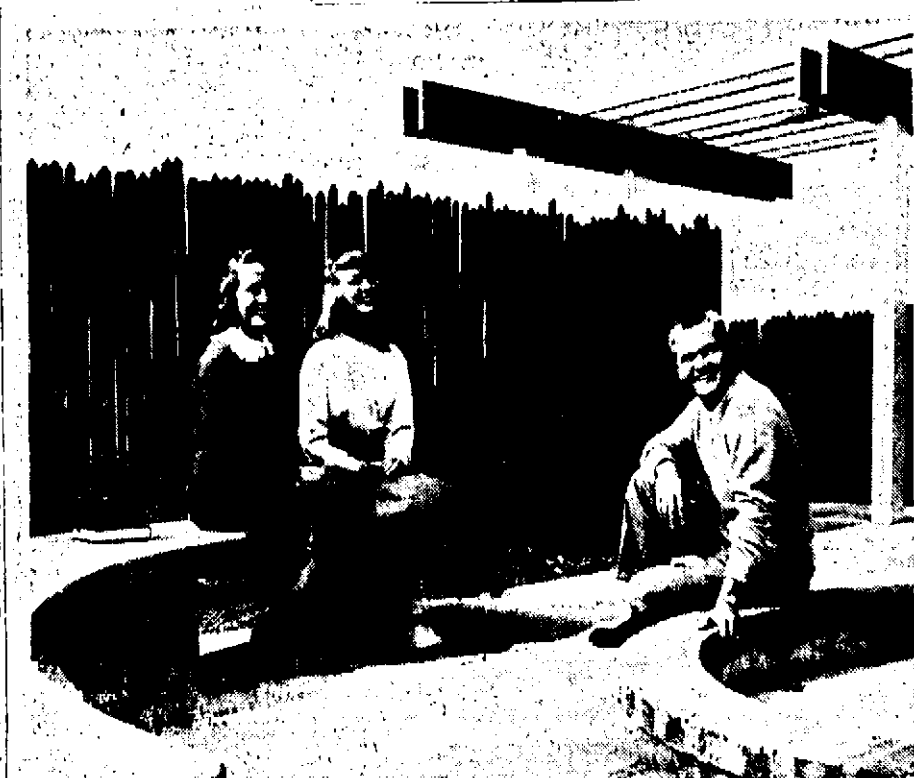

Floats will include the hospital float of the California 19th District, American Legion, which received a top prize at the national Legion convention in Los Angeles last summer.

The annual parade is sponsored by the United Veterans Council of Long Beach.

Clothes Worth $270 Stolen From Home

Theft of $270 worth of clothing and personal effects was reported to police by Fred W. Schuchman, 66, of 232 Chestnut Ave., Apt. 5.

The victim told officers he suspected a 41-year-old man who had shared his apartment the past 10 days.

Minister Helps Korean Orphans, Widows in 'Family' of Hundreds

By BOB WHEATLEK

Home for the Rev. H. P. Dunlop is a warm, comfortable apartment at 1030 E. Ocean Blvd.—many thousands of miles removed from the bleak, war-scarred homeland of the adopted "family" he never has seen.

That "family" lives in Korea, and it's a big one. It includes some 600 orphans, 14 widows of ministers and 27 of their children.

For two years, he personally has been picking up the bill for the education of the orphans, while fully supporting the widows and their youngsters.

By American standards, the cost—$1,000 a year for the 941 women and children—is a small one. But it makes a lot of difference in a country like Korea where a little money goes a long way," Dr. Dunlop explained.

AND NOW with winter coming on, he's hoping that other Long Beach area residents will come to the aid of Korean widows.

He feels that Americans owe their support to the South Koreans not only because of the Korean's wartime sacrifices and suffering, but also because "in spite of it they can teach all Christian countries to pray."

"Religion is absolute in their lives," he said. "When the 500 native Protestant preachers

REV. H. P. DUNLOP... "You Have Given Us Hope" because they couldn't brainwash them.

"And when the North Korean Christians moved south below the 38th Parallel, the first thing they did was build churches."

WHEN THE Korean war broke out, only about two per cent of Korea's 16 million people were Christian, he said. Today, about 10 per cent are Christian, he added.

Dr. Dunlop first became interested in the welfare of Korea in 1937, when he spent seven months there as an evangelist. He left just before the Japanese took over.

He's made his home in Long Beach the past 13 years. Since the start of the Korean war, he's been a leader in foreign relief work here.

"I've been contributing $10,000 a year to foreign relief," he said. "A lot of people wonder where a minister gets this kind of money."

"Well, I'm not ashamed that I'm a Scotsman. And certainly there's no better use for money than helping these people."

IN ADDITION to his personal cash donations, Dr. Dunlop has sparkplugged a continuing drive to collect clothing and

Art, Health, Parent Lectures Scheduled

Forum programs in art, health, pre-school parent education and a new adult career-planning class were announced Saturday by City College General Adult Division.

"Art in Modern Furniture" will be the topic of a lecture by designer-craftsman Sam Maloof beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 502 of the City College art building, Faculty Ave. and Harvey Way.

Unusual because he personally constructs and finishes every piece he designs, Maloof has had exhibits at the Long Beach Art Center, Pasadena Art Museum and Los Angeles County Fair.

Dr. George W. Ainlay, specialist in geriatrics, continues his new "Health for Senior Citizens" series with a lecture in Dewey Auditorium at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Topic is "A New Look at Your Heart."

PLANNED FOR parents and teachers of pre-school children, a "Toy and Play Equipment Workshop" opens at the Lakewood campus Child Development Center at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, for the first of four weekly lectures.

Lectures in the series will include Marion Norrie, Bessie Ingram, and Willo-Orline Cronkright. The series will be followed by a pre-Christmas toy fair in early December.

Starting Wednesday will be a new six-week adult class in Self-Appraisal and Career Planning. The class will meet in Room 146 at the Business and Technology Division campus from 7 to 10 p.m. each Wednesday.

One of the relief shipments included 10 radios, their tuners soldered so that they could only receive the missionary station in Korea.

His reward for his work is the sense of satisfaction he gets from letters such as one from a missionary's widow whose two children lost their feet in the sub-zero temperatures of Korean winter two years ago. "You have given us not only new hope, but new proof that prayers are answered," the letter said.

Bladder "Weakness" After 35 Makes Many Feel Embarrassed

Old, Tired, Nervous and Sometimes

Results in miserable BACKACHE

Are you one of the thousands of men and women past 35 who are at times worried and embarrassed by Bladder "Weakness" (too frequent, burning or itching urination and either Getting Up Nightly or Bed Wetting) due to common Kidney and Bladder Irritation? If so, don't be like most people who take wonderful care of others but neglect themselves.

You are too important to the welfare of your family to postpone medication for a condition that may become aggravated through neglect. This is especially true since it is so easy for most people to find quick, gratifying, comforting help with New Improved Cystex.

Other Symptoms
Common Kidney and Bladder Irritations which cause Getting Up Nightly may also cause Strong, Cloudy Urine, and sometimes result in backache, incontinence, referred secondary aches, pains, headache and nervous tension.

Old, Tired, Worn-Out Feeling May Result
If frequent passages worry you and hit you at the most embarrassing moments, you are bound to feel tense and nervous. Then if your sleep is disturbed by Getting Up Nightly you can't get much rest, and you wake up feeling tired and groggy—yes, you really begin to feel old—much older than you should. And if your back aches you feel grouchy—hard to get along with—and your work is a burden. Troubles such as these take the joy out of life. You can work better, enjoy life, and earn more when you feel better.

Cause of Irritation
The cause of common Kidney and Bladder Irritation usually arises from a germ called the Colon Bacillus and non-specific germs resulting from colds, bad teeth and other causes. These germs can set up so much irritation in the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages that nature sends a warning through your nerves to your brain that help is needed. Heed this warning now and you may easily avoid many anxious, worrysome hours and days.

Bed Wetting
Bed Wetting by children, due to common Kidney or Bladder Irritation, often is a bothersome problem. In these cases Cystex taken according to the simple package directions usually gives quick, gentle, satisfying improvement.

How Cystex Helps
New Improved Cystex is a scientifically compounded medicine that does not contain any drastic drugs, but through its two-way action helps nature in a gentle, soothing, refreshing way.

First: New Improved Cystex relieves a gentle soothing bactericidal in acid urine to combat germs which may be causing irritation. This is a good deal like a gentle, soothing bath for the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Second: Cystex contains one of the greatest analgesics for soothing, gentle pain relief of the discomforts due to common Kidney and Bladder Irritation.

Thus, it is amazing to feel the wonderful, blessed results so promptly in those cases where Cystex acts effectively, and in such cases where irritation and frequent urination takes over to give you her benefits of refreshing, energizing sleep, quieter nerves, and the feeling of normal peace to enjoy life.

Used by Millions
Cystex has a remarkable background of experience and success. For nearly a third of a century it has been scientifically produced under the direct supervision of the Control Laboratory of The Knorr Company—one of the largest pharmaceutical companies of its kind in the world. During this time, over a billion Cystex tablets have been used by millions of sufferers around the world in upwards of 70 different countries. Such enduring popularity proves safety for young and old.

Free Unless Satisfactory

No medicine helps everyone exactly the same, but Cystex has helped millions and you can't know how much it can help you until you give it a fair trial. By all means you owe it to yourself and family to avoid unnecessary delay. Get Cystex from our druggist today, and in a few days you can prove what this great product may do for you. After a fair trial, if for any reason you are not satisfied, return the empty package to our druggist or the address on the label and the small cost of $1 will be refunded in full, so that your trial of Cystex will be free. Don't waste precious time. Start Cystex today and see how much better you feel tomorrow.

Invasion Delay Laid to British 'Tidiness'

By JOHN W. FINNEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The British - French invasion of Egypt will be a swift, decisive blow that will completely overwhelm the vastly outnumbered Egyptian army, in the view of U. S. military authorities.

They expect the invasion to be more of a "military exercise" than a true battle.

THERE IS NO DOUBT in the minds of U. S. military observers that an invasion will be made. The fact that the British and French have waited so long to land troops is attributed by U. S. military officials to the British tendency to have everything "neat and tidy" before attacking, plus the logistical problem of moving troops from the western Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean area for the onslaught.

The British and French have marshalled an invasion force rivaling those used by the United States in the World War II amphibious attacks in the Pacific for the "temporary" occupation of the Suez Canal Zone.

The British and French together are believed to have a force of at least 100,000 men ready to invade the Suez by sea and air. Supporting this force are probably another 100,000 air, navy, and supply troops. About two-thirds of the invasion force is British.

Against this force, the Egyptians can muster at best about 100,000 troops, which in equipment, training and air support are no match for the attackers.

At the outset of the hostilities, Egypt had about 125,000 land, sea and air troops. About one-fifth of this force has been eliminated, in the opinion of U. S. authorities by the panzer-like thrust of the Israeli army that enveloped the Sinai Peninsula.

AFTER FOUR DAYS of sustained bombing by British and French planes, Egypt, which had the most powerful air force in the Middle East, has been virtually knocked out of the skies.

The British and French are expected to hit both ends of the canal with amphibious and airborne troops. Paratroopers would be expected to drop to the west of the canal to cut off the Egyptian forces. The result will likely be the destruction of the Egyptian army.

U. S. Raises Its Children's Gift

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)

—The United States has announced a contribution of 10 million dollars to the U. N. Children's Fund for 1957, $300,000 more than it gave in 1956. The only condition of this gift is that it must not exceed 55 percent of the total given by other countries.

World Beauties Will See 'Gold Cadillac' Premiere

The premiere opening Friday night of the "Solid Gold Cadillac" at the Long Beach Community Playhouse will be attended by a number of the past Miss Universe beauties.

Coming from Hollywood will be Maureen Hingert, "Miss Ceylon" in the 1955 Miss Universe Pageant and Nicole de Meyer, "Miss Belgium" of '55. Also in attendance will be Karen Keeler "Miss Colorado" of 1956, who is teaching 2nd grade in the Long Beach Public Schools.

An accomplished oriental and western dancer, Miss Hingert has been very successful in "The King and I" and in the recently released "Pillars in the Sky." She will begin filming a TV series "Harem Holiday," in which she plays the lead, to be released next year.

Miss de Meyer is pursuing a highly successful career of modelling for Catalina, and is auditioning for singing roles in movies and TV.

On hand that evening to greet the patrons of the theater will be a solid gold Cadillac with gold liveried chauffeur, and the formal opening promises to be one of the gala occasions of the fall season in Long Beach. "Solid Gold Cadillac" will run six weeks with performances on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

MAUREEN HINGERT Will Be Here for Premiere

'Social Draft' in So. Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — All citizens of South Viet Nam between the ages of 18 and 35 are subject to a draft for "social assistance service" for two years.

A decree issued by President Ngo Dinh Diem said those called up for duty would be paid salaries and expenses and would be exempt from military service.

Brooklyn Bridge Free and Clear

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Bridge finally has been paid for. This happy news came as the city's comptroller announced the retirement of a number of financial obligations, including the last $50,000 owed on the bridge. It was completed in 1883 at a cost of 25 million.

DECORATIVE GENE

NEW YORK—I sat with a lovely lady named Gene Tierney who spoke of going back soon to Hollywood, and of her wish to have an interior decorating business as a sideline—and then, without any prompting from me, she mentioned her recent nervous breakdown.

She herself tossed the word "sanitarium" across the table into the conversation.

"You have to say something about it . . . otherwise people will ask you where you've been," Miss Tierney said with a disarming smile.

"When you have a breakdown you go some place and that's what I did," she said. "I went to a sanitarium—doesn't practically everybody go to a sanitarium?"

"So many go that you hear about it. I'm not embarrassed to talk about it. It was terrible to GENE TIERNEY be away from your children. That's one of the rules—no dogs and no kids. But I've had a good long rest, I feel fine, and I'm anxious to work again."

And Miss Tierney, looking wondrously slim, will be returning soon to 20th Century-Fox to play a female drunk in "The Wayward Bus" — she'll be the bus driver's wife.

"Won't you miss your estate that I've been hearing about?" asked.

"It's no estate, it's no farm. It's a house, more in the country than in town, in Connecticut. Mother has done all the gardening there for years."

The interior decorating idea is no gag.

"I LIKE INTERIOR DECORATING and I'm looking around to find a partner. I might do it as a hobby. Every time I make a real estate deal it seems to me that I should make a profit, too. I generally invest in things that I don't think are any good because the United States are in Massachusetts, Michigan, New York and California."

And she recalled the war, when her former husband, Oleg Cassini, the couturier, was stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., in the cavalry, and she was with him.

"We had a house that I fixed up just on spit and toothpicks," she said. "We needed plane fare—so we sold the house at a profit—and got the plane fare."

Though divorced, they see each other frequently because they have a daughter, Christine, who's 10. "Tina" enjoys going to her father's fashion shows where, Miss Tierney said, "He does an Arthur Godfrey — he runs down the dresses and the people in them."

"Oleg gave me a whole wardrobe, and I have so many clothes now . . . I didn't dress up a lot at the sanitarium."

MISS TIERNEY WAS WEARING a wrist watch smaller than a dime, and when I admired it, she said, "I bought it second hand . . . I paid $100 for it. It's good looking, but it's got to be fixed all the time. It's running very well now—I just got it repaired."

Miss Tierney, who's been absent from Hollywood more than a year, was last in "Let Him Go" with Humphrey Bogart—and before that in "The Egyptian."

"Some people," she said, "asked me why I walked peculiarly in that picture. I worked very hard to walk that way! I was coached to do it that way. I'm glad they noticed I walked peculiarly—I was supposed to."

THE WEEK-END WINDUP "DON'T PRINT THAT!" A big model agency's scared 'cause one little model can cost it its license if she squawks.

Cherise actress Joyce Miles boasted of two dates in a row with Marlon Brando . . . Marlene Dietrich snuck out to L.A. to get fitted for her next L.A. peek-a-woo . . . Marlon Brando, who got $2 million from Dick Reynolds, advised Mrs. Tommy Dorsey in her suit.

Don Larsen's disappearing act a week to get his choppers fixed. WISH I'D SAID THAT! The false-maker who calls himself "The Wizard of Brax."

Facts -- Why You Should Vote YES Proposition EE

FOR GOOD CITY GOVERNMENT — VOTE "YES" on PROPOSITION EE

Proposition EE Assures Integrity and Ability on our City Council

What Is Proposition EE? It is a local measure on the November 6 ballot to increase the compensation to members of the City Council and for expenses of the Mayor.

What Is the Proposed Amendment? The suggested modernization of the Charter reads: "Sec. 555. Each member of the City Council shall receive, as full compensation for all services rendered by him, the sum of four hundred dollars per month."

"Sec. 86. The City Council shall include in the official budget and appropriate annually for the use of the Mayor as entertainment and sundry expense, the sum of twelve hundred dollars for which he need furnish no vouchers."

Is This a Salary Increase? No, not in the full sense of the word salary. It is increased compensation to meet some of the costs which a Councilman must meet from his own pocket, such as car expense on duties of his office, donations, tickets, luncheons, and the many hours put in on official duties other than regular Council meetings.

What Do Councilmen Receive Now? Long Beach Councilmen currently receive $200 per month to cover their expenses and time at Council meetings, the many City committee meetings, civic functions, non-official luncheons and meetings they must attend, listening and working with constituents on civic and neighborhood problems, investigation of matters to be voted upon, etc. They probably average less than $1 per hour for their work on City business.

Do Present Councilmen Receive This Increase in Compensation? No, not unless they are re-elected. It will not go into effect until after the next Council election.

Who Asked That This Measure Be Placed Upon the Ballot? Many civic and labor organizations have recommended this action because they are interested in good government and believe that this more adequate compensation will better protect the ordinary voter and taxpayer by enabling high-caliber men to serve on the Council without a great personal financial sacrifice.

What Are the Duties of a Councilman? Councilmen are the board of directors of a multi-million dollar business, with an annual budget well over $20 million a year. They have the responsibility for the civic welfare of hundreds of thousands of persons. They must act intelligently on 50, 100 or more important matters each week. In addition, each Councilman serves on approximately five City committees.

What About the Mayor's Expenses? Raising the allowance for the Mayor's expenses for hospitality and entertainment to $1200 (only $100 per month) is still not enough for a city of this size.

Who Recommends Passage of Proposition EE? Your friends and neighbors, prominent community leaders, civic groups, business associations, labor organizations, all say, "Vote YES on Proposition EE." An editorial in the Independent Press-Telegram, of Sunday, September 23, said in part, "WE FAVOR THE PASSAGE of this proposition." The Independent editorial column, "L.A.C. Says," of September 19, recommended Proposition EE, saying, in part, "It must be approved by the people . . . It is a sensible measure which deserves support of the voters."

Kennan Hits U.S. Policy in Egypt Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—George F. Kennan, former U. S. ambassador to Russia, said that the United States must bear "a heavy measure of responsibility" for the British-French attack on Egypt.

He said U. S. diplomacy since the attack has been "directed to the grandstand rather than to the realities of the situation." Its success, he said, would not solve the problem but would only "pillory" this nation's oldest allies.

Kennan, once among the State Department's foremost authorities on Russia, broke with Dulles in a dispute over the so-called "containment" policy against the Communists. He is now with the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N. J.

Kennan aired his views in a letter to the editor of the Washington Post and Times Herald. "The British and French have fumbled—certainly. We, too, have fumbled on certain past occasions, and our friends did not turn against us," Kennan said.

"Moreover, we bear a heavy measure of responsibility for the desperation that has driven the French and British governments to this ill-conceived and pathetic action . . .

"Vaccination" by the U. S. in the Middle East has contributed to the "calamitous confusion," Kennan said.

He contended that the United States might have had "the 11, at Whittier Riding Club, good grace and humility to turn aside, recognizing that our further interference could not be useful," and let the "political processes" in Britain and France guide their governments out of the situation.

Star Has 'Measles' of Chemical Spots

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
PASADENA (AP)—Astronomers are intrigued by a strange kind of leopard star—it appears to have chemical spots.

These spots or patches are quite different from the sunspots which appear on our own sun or star.

The leopard star is a naked-eye star in the constellation Virgo. It is about three times the size and double the mass of our sun. It shines with constant brightness, as does our sun, but is 100 times brighter.

But when astronomers analyzed the colors of its light through the spectrograph, a mystery appeared.

THE SPECTRUM of color lines of any star show particular vertical lines. Each line represents the presence of some specific chemical element existing in the star.

But with this star, the spectrum lines keep changing, quite unlike the spectrum lines from our sun.

One night the star shows strong lines representing elements like iron or europium. On another night, these lines become weak, and the lines for other chemicals, such as chromium and strontium, become strong.

SEVERAL theories are being explored to account for this leopard or spotted appearance, explains Dr. Armin J. Deutsch of the Mount Wilson and Palomar observatories, operated by the California Institute of Technology and the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

One possibility is that powerful magnetic fields have concentrated chemical elements in certain areas of the stellar atmosphere.

Range for Churchill

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP)—A 200-mile-square mountain range in Jasper will be named the Winston Churchill Range in honor of Britain's wartime prime minister.

Locations on its surface. Some elements might be located at the North Magnetic Pole of the star, and others at the South Magnetic Pole.

THE SINKING OF LONG BEACH!

A city of 305,000 people, homes, stores, industries, naval installations are sinking into the ocean.

This sinking has already reached twenty-three feet—has already cost property owners and tax payers 90 million dollars—and it is still going on.

SAN PEDRO—The mystery of the phantom noises and light earthquake-like shocks, which have been rocking residents here for the past two years has been solved.

And it took a team of housewife detectives to do it.

The "Case of the Rock 'n' Roll Tremblers" ended Saturday after the housewives disclosed that they traced the shocks to the County Sanitation District dynamiting for a new sewer line from East Los Angeles to White's Point.

THE WOMEN. Mmes. John McNiece, Kent D. Broadbent, J. Rogers, R. Gjtson and W. J. Donnell, said thy had formed a round-the-clock team to keep log on the times of occurrences of the shocks and rumblings and after a week-long vigil were able to pinpoint the blasts as to time.

Their findings revealed that four distinct shocks, accompanied by rumbling noises began at 11 a. m. each day and recurred every four hours around the clock.

Because residents felt the shocks were due to U. S. Navy bombing practice, sonic blasts from jets, blasting by gravel-pit operators and undersea petroleum surveys, they took their findings to each of the agencies involved.

BUT NONE of the organizations identified the blasts as being part of their operations until this week when the dauntless detectives contacted A. M. Rawn, chief of the County Sanitation District. He recognized the time as being identical with blasting for the district's new sewer line, some 500 feet below

New Records

Many different instruments star in the new list of records at the Main Public Library.

Noted especially are Albinoni, "Twelve Concerti a Cinque" (four for violin, four for one oboe, and four for two oboes); Bach, "Concerto in D Major for Piano" (Helen Schnabel, pianist); Bartok, "Concerto for Orchestra"; Berg, "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra"; and Pergolesi, "Concertini for Strings" and "Sonata in the Style of a Concerto."

The engineer said that every four hours a charge of dynamite is set off by workers digging the tunnel to enable them to sink headers for the sewer.

ut although the mystery is 10 weeks—completion date for

Holiday Park Is Offering VA Financing on Big Home

The discriminating taste of homeseekers of the Southland which heretofore has prevented many veterans from using their home loans has been recognized by Davies, Keusder & Brown, Inc., builders of Holiday Park homes in Garden Grove which are now available on VA financing terms. According to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the 3-bedroom, all-purpose room and 2-bath homes, scores of veterans are planning to take advantage of the VA financing to purchase the homes which answer in every detail the demands and needs of growing families for dwellings of sound construction, long-lived architectural styling and up-to-date conveniences.

In addition to the many luxury features found in the homes, provision has been made for future advantages, such as electrical appliances, in kitchens which are wired for them. The kitchens now include built-in Gaffers & Sattler wall ovens, rolltop ranges and top range burners with thermostatic cooking controls. Fully automatic waste-king dishwashers, food pulverizers, Stanthony vent hoods and breakfast seats or dining peninsulas are also built in the rooms.

LIVING ROOMS focalize on the fireplace treatments, available in three designs, including a brick wall extending to the patio; a free-standing fireplace or a raised hearth fireplace with seating space of brick. Sliding glass walls open onto the concrete patio, which is wired for barbecues, a detail that, included during construction of the home, saves much future expense.

The wide hallways of at least four feet are a boon to homeseekers accustomed to the narrow passageways found in so many homes.

The large lots are side and rear fenced and front yard landscaping is included. Priced from $16,400, Holiday Park homes are available to non-veterans on FHA terms of from $2,900 down. Veterans with monthly salaries of from $550 may qualify for VA financing. Furnished models are open daily at West St. and Chapman Ave. Visitors from Long Beach may drive out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Hwy. 39, turn left (north) to Chapman, east on Chapman to West St. and north to the models.

ON VA TERMS NOW

Holiday Park announced that homes such as this are available on veterans financing. They are priced from $16,400.

"Of course, the men weren't forgotten," she added. "The large garages, the built-in sprinkler systems and other features attract the men."

Year-'Round Temperature Control in Whaley's Crescent Estates

Each home in Crescent Estates, new L. S. Whaley Co. home project in Orange County, has been especially designed and built for year-round temperature control. It was disclosed Saturday by the Whaley Co. Sweeping roof overhang, proper placement of glassed in porches and landscape planting are just a few of the ingredients used in achieving weather orientation of the homes, it was revealed.

Temperature on the interiors of the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath residences are regulated also by a complete forced air heating system during winter seasons. Complete insulation featuring the use of double thick blown rock wool is also a part of the home and assists in the retention of heat.

Home buyers may purchase these weather controlled homes under a convenient financing plan. Veterans may take advantage of no-down terms and pay only costs and impounds to take occupancy.

THE NEW UNITS in Crescent Estates are moderate in price starting from $15,450 and monthly payments are convenient to most family incomes. Unlike rental charges, the home loan payments include principal, interest, taxes and insurance in one low sum.

Included as standard equipment of the homes are many features usually found only in the more expensive custom built dwellings. In the kitchen area alone there is a built-in range and oven in color, built-in Dish Master, natural birch cabinets, range hood with light and exhaust fan and garbage disposal. Also in the kitchen area is a built-in spice rack and color keyed ceramic tile surrounding sink and range area.

Among other features which can be seen at two model homes, on display from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily, are sliding walls of glass to patio areas, acoustical plaster ceilings, entry hall dressing room and private bath off the master bedroom. These furnished models are located at the corner of Crescent Ave. and Pierce Dr., just one block west of Knotts Berry Farm.

Occupying extra large lots, the Crescent Estates homes reflect the provincial design characterized by thick shake roofs, custom exterior woodwork and used brick both on the exterior and interior alike.

Home buyers are advised to reach Crescent Estates by driving east on Carson, which changes to Lincoln Ave. In Orange County to Knott Ave. A left turn is made to Crescent and then right to the model homes. Visitors may also go east on South St. to Knott, turning right to Crescent and then left to the new home development.

Last Luxury Homes Listed at Low Cost

With 293 homes sold and only 7 left, Luxury Homes Inc., at Brookhurst Ave. and Ball Rd. in Garden Grove will close out the last few residences by offering them to the public at considerably under the market value, according to William Lyon, Luxury Homes executive.

These 2 and 3-bedroom and den, 2-bath homes are valued at $13,950, but will be sold out by the builder at $12,350, beginning this weekend.

This saving of $1600 is available to both vets and non-vets, as Luxury Homes offer terms for everyone.

This is the tract that took Southern California by storm by offering many "higher-priced" features in a moderately priced home, the builder says.

Over 44 luxury features have been incorporated in each distinctive home including redwood fencing, front landscaping, built-in oven and range, forced air heating, garbage-disposal, built-in breakfast nook, and dozens of other luxury accessories.

LOCATED in Garden Grove with schools and a multi-million-dollar shopping center within walking distance, these contemporary homes are available to qualified veterans with no down payment but costs and post since Nov. 1, 1939. Monthly payments for vets are as low as $63.88. New FHA terms are available to non-vets.

ONE OF 7 REMAINING

Here is one of the final 7 homes offered by Luxury Homes at a price much lower than today's market, the builder points out.

'SPECIAL EDITION'

The above exterior typifies 3-bedroom, 2-bath "Special Edition" series of Midwood-Signature Homes on display on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave., Garden Grove, near Santa Ana Freeway.

Grand Opening Continues for Midwood-Signature

Grand opening continues this week-end at Midwood-Signature Homes in Garden Grove where large crowds are being attracted to a display of furnished model homes in the "Special Edition" series, the builders announced yesterday.

The display, which is open daily, is located on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave.

Helping to focus the attention of homebuyers on the new community are plans for eight new schools and eight large new shopping centers in Garden Grove. All are already in some phase of construction.

Also on display at Midwood-Signature Homes are 5 furnished model homes in the firm's larger "First Edition" series at Magnolia and Cerritos Ave. These are priced from $15,800 and have 3 or 4 big bedrooms and 2 baths.

"THE 'SPECIAL EDITION' homes, which are priced from $11,700, retain the luxury-styled traditional exteriors and the same craftsmanship of our popular 'First Edition' series," a Midwood-Signature spokesman explained.

"They have first quality conventional construction from their raised foundations and hardwood floors to their cedar shingle roofs, and represent our response for the same type home to fit the needs of lower budgets."

BOTH SERIES, he emphasized, are available on VA and FHA terms. The larger "First Edition" homes have monthly payments from $67.80, principle and interest while the 3-bedroom, 2-bath "Special Edition" residences are offered on monthly payments from $52.50, principle and interest.

Visitors to the development are directed to take the Santa Ana Freeway to Magnolia Ave. and turn right. Continue on Magnolia Ave. to Ball Rd., then turn right on Ball to Dale St., where a left turn leads to the furnished models.

Still No Down for Vets in Town, Country Square

Convenience and luxury go hand in hand, report the builders of the new unit of Town and Country Square, the Larwin Co.'s development in Buena Park, just 10 minutes from Long Beach and close to Orange County's flourishing new industrial centers.

Still available to veterans for no down payment, except usual costs and impounds, and on low monthly terms, these are large family residences with 3 bedrooms and Jack-and-Jill room, 3-and-a-den, or 3-and-a-family room, all with two baths and large two-car garage.

BUILT BY THE WINNERS of the 1936 National "Hall of Fame" Award for one of the finest examples of "suburban living in America," Town and Country Square homes include a great many distinctive features.

One of the most popular of these, the builders find, is the New Freedom Gas Kitchen with custom-designed and built-in Western-Holly gas oven and range; Wastefixing disposer; Gladding, McLean ceramic tile; and Servel ice-maker refrigerator, which is optional, in a choice of colors; custom-made kitchen cabinets with abundant storage space for all kitchen necessities; and oversize exhaust fan to keep kitchens cool and clear of cooking odors.

All homes are of genuine lath and plaster construction, with big fireplaces, steel sliding glass doors and screens; Royal Jet forced-air heating with thermostat control and switch for summer cooling.

Town and Country Square is reached easily by driving east on Carson Ct. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.). Turn north on Miller to the model homes furnished by W. & J. Sloane.

Colorado Resident Buys Ghost Town

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—T. E. Smith has bought himself a ghost town for $551,25.

For that figure he got 36 buildings in Husted, a hamlet that has to be removed because it is on land that is part of the grounds of the U.S. Air Force Academy, under construction north of Colorado Springs.

Smith, a real estate dealer, said he is confident he can sell all the buildings before the Oct. 1 removal deadline.

Not on List

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)—Island residents here, rather proud of their whaling and Revolutionary forebears, are wearing red faces these days. A University of Massachusetts historian recently revealed that only one of 19 persons listed on a DAR chapter plaque actually served in the Revolutionary War.

Home Builders Expect Construction Drop

By ROBERT F. MORISON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gloomy home builders seem pretty well convinced now that next year will see construction of fewer new homes and apartments.

A survey by the National Association of Home Builders of its 600 member Economic Council indicates that housing starts are expected to drop as much as 10 per cent. That would put 1937 volume below the 1 million mark for the first time since 1948 and means potential home buyers can expect higher prices and probably less choice. Starts this year are expected to total about 1.1 million, some 200,000 under 1935—the second best year on record.

Tight credit is the chief reason cited by builders for the slowdown in homebuilding, which actually began a year ago.

THE GREATER DIFFICULTY in securing construction loans and permanent financing, the survey discloses, shows no signs of letting up and some builders feel it will become even tighter next year.

By September most builders usually have their plans for next year well laid out. But this year even the reduced construction outlook was found in many cases to be "tentative."

Gloomy uncertainty rather than dark pessimism is the general tone on answers received. Seven out of 10 builders expect a downturn next year. However, some cautious optimism crept through. The government's housing chief Albert M. Cole recently said he considers the current 1.1 million level of new starts to be "very high" and expects it to continue through 1936. Builders apparently are bolstered by this outlook.

THE SURVEY also found: 1. Many builders have sold homes "four or five times" before a sale actually "stuck," chiefly because prospective buyers could not get a loan.

2. Builders were confident that they will sell every house they can build in 1937, despite an expected rise in the typical price from about $14,700 this year to a record $15,200.

Actually the anticipated rise in the typical home price is much less than in either of the previous two years. It rose about 10 per cent from 1934 to 1935 and some 9 per cent this year.

THE SURVEY ALSO DIS-

CLOSED that for the future beyond next year several factors are seen working toward a stimulation of homebuilding. These include:

1. An expected sharp rise in the number of marriages after 1936 when the large number of persons born during World War II marry and set up households.
2. Continued growth and spread of industry, necessitating the building of homes and apartments for workers.
3. Lack of a backlog of new unoccupied houses to satisfy a sudden upsurge in demand.

'Story Book' Homes Sales Are Soaring

The Chapman Woods "Story Book" homes in Garden Grove continue to sell at a brisk pace with buyers taking immediate possession of their new dwellings as soon as all arrangements are completed. Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, reports that a majority of buyers are families who have outgrown their present homes and wish to invest in a spacious, moderately priced dwelling such as the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in Chapman Woods.

A popular home-trade arrangement, designed to enable the purchaser to sell his present home and buy the new one with a minimum of transactions, is being taken advantage of by a number of the new home-owners. It was revealed with the assurance of a maximum sales price, buyers are given the opportunity to trade their equities thus facilitating sale and possession of their new home.

AMONG THE FEATURES that place the Chapman Woods homes in the luxury class but with the moderate price of from $12,500 to $14,500 are built-in breakfast bars, food pulverizers, General Electric wash-dryer combinations, Amana strong linoleum, Pullman levators, colored bath fixtures and tiled stall showers.

Sliding "Horizon" window walls, freestanding fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, cove lighting, back yard heaters, Royal Jet forced air heating with summer ventilation, insulation and weatherstripping, central hall planning, oak flooring, Telejack TV outlets, washable interior walls and two-car garages are more features.

Close to schools, churches, recreation areas, industrial areas of Santa Ana, Long Beach and Los Angeles, Chapman Woods homes are reached by driving out Garden Grove Blvd. (Seventh St.) to Hwy. 29, turning north to Chapman Ave. and east to 9th St.

IN ELLANBEE MANOR

These spacious 2-bath homes are available to non-veterans for only $95 down plus small costs in Ellanbee Manor in Orange County.

Offer Low Prices, Easy Terms on Ellanbee Manor Big Homes

Some of the easiest terms Manor which are being offered ever offered non-veterans are for only $95 down, plus small costs, according to Frank H. Laramore Construction Co. To-day, prices of only $11,250 to $11,850 for the spacious 1300 sq. ft. homes makes this an unusual investment opportunity in desirable single residence property, he added.

Shop Keeps Busy Making Shirts for Hot-Rodders

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "The average hot-rodder would rather throw a rod in a race or have a tire go flat than lose his embroidered shirt."

Mrs. Rosalie Logan is the authority for that statement. Master mechanic? No, but Mrs. Logan can stitch a mean embroidered shirt.

And business for her small shop is especially booming. "They're good boys," she says. "They come in here in droves. They cut up and clown around, but they're always gentlemen. They never give us any trouble."

With the local hot-rodgers getting slicked up for races Mrs. Logan and her three helpers have embroidered 500 shirts and jackets so far.

Business is so rushed, in fact, they often work until 10 o'clock at night, and sometimes into the wee hours.

If a hot-rodder is in the chips with plenty of money to spend, he's likely to have two jackets—one heavy and one light—and at least one shirt. Others, she suspects, share one shirt between them.

BUT THOSE JACKETS and shirts must have the name and emblem of the club embroidered. That's basic—like gasoline in the tank, or oil in the crankcase. Then they can go on from

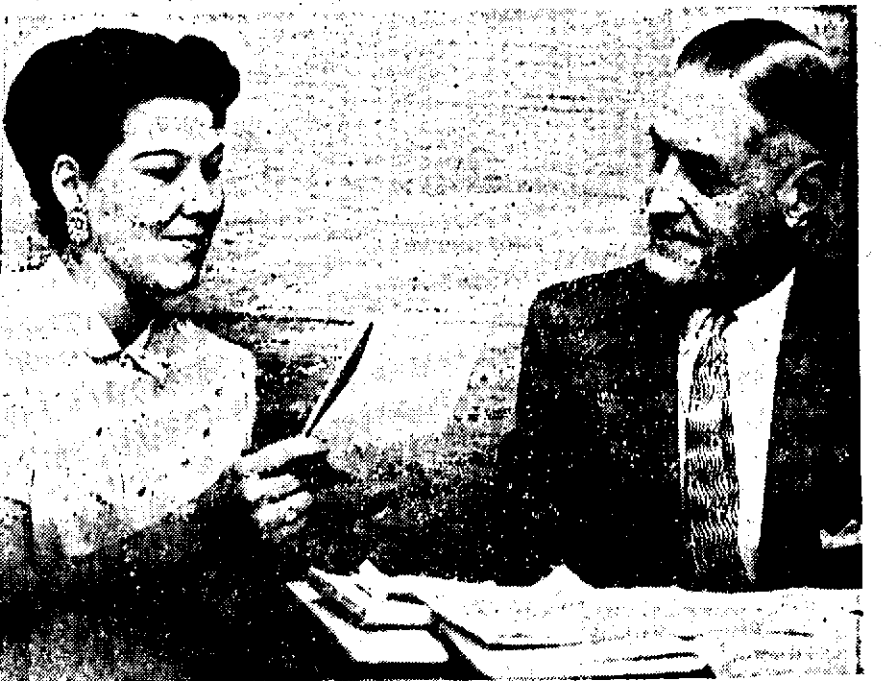

On-Job Training Hit by Lack of Students

Shortages in the labor market are beginning to show up in the retailing field.

Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division last week was unable to enter into a cooperative merchandising educational program with the new Broadway Store in Los Altos for lack of trainees.

A request from Herbert C. Stanyon, Broadway's general manager in Los Altos, for five or more merchandising students to work part time has gone unfilled. Success of the educational program at LTD has placed every available student in a co-operating store in the Greater Long Beach area.

Although pupils may enroll at any time during the year, no new merchandising students have signed up in recent weeks. Until others register and qualify for such training, LTD can provide no additional candidates, said Dean J. E. Hollingsworth at the campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

BTD GRAD ON THE JOB

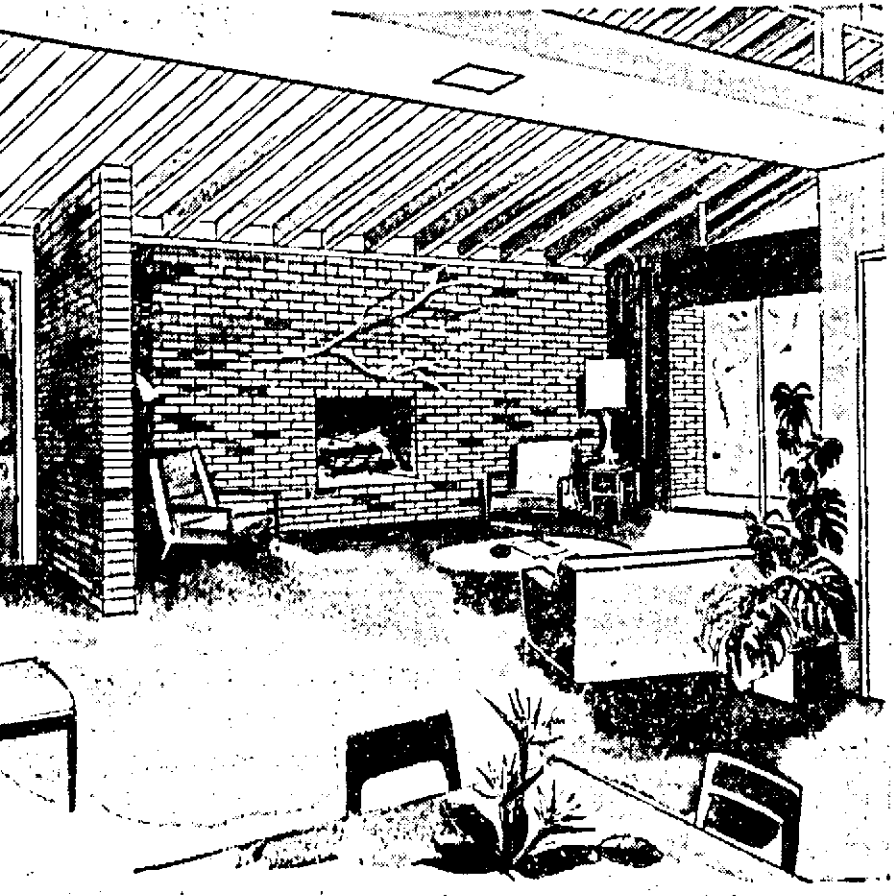

Secretary to Herbert C. Stanyon, Broadway store manager, is Mary Jo Morgan, who was graduated in June from City College Business and Technology Division. The division reports more opportunities than takers for on-the-job education in the merchandising field.—(Staff Photo.)

PROOF of the success of on-the-job training is Mary Jo Morgan, Stanyon's secretary and a June graduate in LTD's merchandising class. During her senior year she was secretary to two Walker's Store executives. Change of ownership of the store in no wise changed the demand for Miss Morgan's services.

She and many other LTD students have proved the worth of this cooperative type training, said Stanyon.

Right Denomination but Is Wrong Church

BEDFORD, Ind. (AP) — It was the right denomination but the wrong church.

An out-of-town couple arrived by car and asked for the Methodist Church, where they were to attend a wedding.

They were directed to First Methodist Church. The wedding started before they realized it was the wrong couple. They couldn't leave without disturbing the services so they sat through the ceremony.

Then they left hurriedly for Trinity Methodist Church, but no one learned whether they got there on time.

SEE YOU AT THE POLLS ON TUESDAY!

MAN

To Mr. and Mrs. John O. Public:

Next Tuesday, we will go to the polls to cast our ballots for the man we prefer as our country's leader. Regardless of our personal political beliefs or desires, this great country is in a position to enjoy expanded prosperity and happiness.

A most important part of our golden future is the home we will occupy. It must be built to endure through family growth and changing tastes. Changing a President — or a home — is a profoundly important move — to be considered carefully . . . and then backed enthusiastically!

When you seek your new home, the Godbey Development Company respectfully recommends your consideration of the fine homes it has built:

'Park 7' Homes Monthly Payments Less Than Rent

New homes—created by two of America's foremost architects—which can be owned and occupied for less than rent, are now being sold in Orange County.

They are Park 7 Homes "Traditional Series," 3-bedroom, rustic-provincial styled residences. Priced from $15,475 complete, the Traditional Series is available both to veterans and non-veterans for as little as $79.70 per month, on VA-FHA terms.

The new Traditional Series homes, although, set in a wide expanse of clear country, are only minutes from Santa Ana Freeway. From Long Beach take 7th St. directly to the finished models.

ARCHITECTS CARLSON AND MIDDLEBROOK have featured towering cedar shake roofs and sparkling diamond-lite windows. Wood panelling and exterior brick have been extensively used.

Within the new homes, living rooms are built around fireplaces of used brick or slumstone, each with an unusually wide hearth, and each containing a fireplace log lighter. Throughout each Traditional Series home are such extras as silent mercury switches and folding mahogany closet doors. There is an 80,000-BTU forced-air heating system, two built-in TV jacks and heavy insulation.

Quality kitchen features of the new series include built-in range and oven in color, garbage disposer, kitchen exhaust fan, durable ceramic tile. Several construction "firsts" are included in the new series; among them is the new 2-4-1 sub-floor construction designed by the Douglas Fir Plywood Association. This method insures absolutely level floors and eliminates the shrinking and settling common to new homes.

Rain Vapor Causes False Fire Alarm

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The fire department rushed to the scene when a house roof was reported on fire.

It found the roof was hot, all right, but the vapor rising from it wasn't smoke. It was steam, caused by rain falling after the roof had been heated by the sun.

Headdress Ball Lights Fall Social Horizon

Symphony Association Sets Exotic Stage for Soiree

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

The night will wear a regal diadem, amid glittering jewels and beautifully gowned ladies and their formally attired escorts, on the occasion of the sixth annual Headdress Ball Nov. 16 at Balboa Bay Club. The brilliance of the evening will illuminate the fall social season by members of Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Association. Jewels in the diadem will be the magnificent headdresses to be worn by members in the ball theme "Le Splendeur d'Orient."

Although each year the ball is considered the most splendid, it is removed (on good authority) that this year will excel other years in artistry and ornateness. Socialites from all over the Southland plan to attend. The club will be transformed for the evening into an Oriental palace of storybook proportions. Original headdresses in the Oriental theme will grace the sleekly coiffed ladies (more than 150 will take part) as they parade before a panel of five judges to be considered the most authentic, the most original, the most beautiful, and of course, flutty to be selected as the grand sweepstakes winner.

Elaborate though it is, this ball seems to capture the imagination of the socialites whose creative talents are lured by the novel themes chosen for the headdresses. This year's fabulous chapaux will reflect the glory of an Oriental pageant. Just as last year the imaginations were sent awirling by "Fantasia of Birds."

Mrs. William H. Rhorer, president of the Long Beach Auxiliary, announces that proceeds will be given in support of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra which presents four concerts each year in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Mrs. Stanley D. Weiss, chairman of the decorations committee, is keeping her color scheme a secret, as well as the novel table decorations. She has said only that her committee "expects the eye to brighten, and the heart to quicken, once merrily and her escort step into the gilded illusion of the Orient."

Mrs. Orville Cole is chairman of the awards committee. These distinguishing awards are medallion bracelets properly engraved as a lasting memento for each winner.

Reservations are being received by Mrs. Kadvany. The affair is by invitation only and according to Mrs. Kadvany, acceptance is to date far exceed those of any previous year.

Serving with her on the general committee are Misses Edmund Richards, R. O. Gould Jr., William S. Reid, James Herley, Walter C. Groshong, Floyd W. Williams, John E. Engerveen, Earl Milton, Zigmor Harris, Dominic Cavaliere, Harvey Doady, William Nesbitt, Ernest Lockwood, Charles Oliver, Maurice Rosenbaum, William E. Webb, Arthur Ackisson, Joseph W. Preston and Fletcher Denwell.

The ball serves to open a full season of activities for the local auxiliary. First concert by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in Long Beach will be Dec. 2 when the renowned Carlo Giulini of LaScala Opera, will conduct. Other performances are on Feb. 10 and March 10 conducted by the symphony's new director, Edward Van Blinnum. The last concert on April 19 will welcome back Alfred Wallenstein, conductor the past 13 years of the orchestra, as a guest conductor.

SPLENDOR OF THE ORIENT is reflected in the exotic headdresses of Long Beach Auxiliary members of the Southern California Symphony Association, from left, Mme. Orville Cole, Ethel Sverson, Laurence Hunt (seated), Maurice Rosenbaum and Hubert Pritchard as they set the theme for the sixth annual Headdress Ball to take place Nov. 16 at Balboa Bay Club. Mrs. Cole calls her original creation "The Formosan," while Mrs. Sverson's is "Oriental Symphony." Mrs. Rosenbaum's huge gold Oriental fan is embossed with a beaded dragon in brilliant red and Mrs. Pritchard's is appropriately called "Oriental Dancer." The dainty fan worn by Mrs. Hunt is hung with miniature pleated fans. Many hundred Southlanders each year anticipate this spectacular event where more than 150 auxiliary members, formally gowned and wearing headdresses in keeping with the theme, parade before a panel of judges to win the coveted awards. Mrs. Alexander Kadvany is general chairman.

'E-Day' Nears; Banners Wave!

By ILKA CHASE

I never would have believed it, I'm in politics! Well, not exactly in, the country's still safe, but out and around speaking at rallies for my man.

Politics, I'm discovering, are very much like the theater. Or, more accurately perhaps, like the carnival business as I imagine it. Music, banners, hoop-la and crowds. So we hope.

However, as this campaign draws to its close, the principals of both parties are pretty well assured of capacity turn-outs and from the tiny fragments I've seen, at first hand, if a candidate can survive the grueling routine of campaigning, the lies and insults of the opposition, the heckling and the cheers - four years in the White House or any other governmental post are a respite in a sylvan dell.

My own first and modest venture was in Garden City, Long Island. A dear old friend asked me if I wouldn't appear and speak briefly. "You know, sweetie, something gay and pungent, but forceful, of course. Just toss it off when you get there." Just toss it off. I will thank such folk to keep a civil tongue in their heads. Don't people know that the shorter the speech, the longer it takes to write it?

If you can rumble around for hours that's one thing, but when you must be succinct, when the jokes, the fact, the sincerity and, you fondly hope, the Sunday punch must be delivered in a matter of minutes, it helps if you're a combination juggler and construction engineer.

Political Hoedown

Anyhow, off to Garden City I went in the company of Miss Lillian Gish, Mr. John Roosevelt and Attorney General Jacob Javits, the candidate of the group. It turned out to be quite a hoedown, well organized with a good band, banners and a cheering enthusiastic crowd.

Since Republicans or Democrats who go to Republican or Democratic rallies are already convinced, I suppose fundamentally the idea of a campaign is to convert the independent voter to one's own views and also to keep up the spirit of the devoted workers, but I am sure that our presidential campaigns are too long.

Both sides could state their policies. The current administration could Point With Pride, the challengers could acknowledge their own desire for power and utter their harsh cries of Throw the Rascals Out, and the rest of us could revert to abnormal in half the time we now allot them.

Anyway, no tomatoes having been hurled in Garden City, the committee asked whether I would appear in a few other places around the country.

On one occasion, I again had the pleasure of appearing with Mr. Javits. It was before an out-sized audience. Mr. Javits, of course, was the star and I, I suppose, was a kind of preliminary side show, but we were wedged in the middle of an auction and our position was equivocal. The merchants of the city, in which we appeared, had generously contributed everything from standing lamps to

Politics to Get Spotlight at AAUW Session Monday

Legislative Committee will be appropriately featured at the Monday evening meeting of the Long Beach branch of the American Association of University Women at Horace Mann School.

Dr. Alice Rose, senior political science instructor at Long Beach City College, will be guest speaker. Besides her college responsibilities, Dr. Rose is active in political projects both with her students and in the community. Her topic, "You and Your Responsibility as a Citizen," promises to inspire intelligent participation at the polls the following day.

Miss Zuma Smith, chairman of the Legislative Study Action group, reports that her committee will present the details of their drive in cooperation with the League of Women Voters to register the voters. Participating in the presentation will be Misses Bessie Brown, Alice Lamb and Nida Palmer and Misses Oscar Beck, William Cisselberry, Arthur Houss and Herbert Lewis.

Mrs. Parkinson Hayward, president, has announced that the nominating committee will be elected at this meeting.

Ray and Lucretia Vaughan, soloists at the First Congregational Church, will present duets in a musical interlude.

Mrs. William H. Rhorer, local Symphony Auxiliary President.

An Informal Introduction to the Women Behind the Men in 18th District Politics

Candidates' Wives Place Non-Partisan Role First

By JOYCE KENT

At a political rally—on the speaker's platform—at the polls—they're strongly partisan. But in their homes, two of this city's best known Republican and Democratic women are in complete non-partisan agreement over their primary roles as wives and mothers.

With election just two days away, the Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Section is pleased to introduce in their non-partisan roles Mrs. Craig Hosmer, wife of Congressman Hosmer, Republican representative from the 18th Congressional District, and Mrs. Raymond C. Simpson, wife of the Democratic nominee for the post.

Meet Marlan Hosmer
Striving to maintain family unity and still be at her husband's side at as many political functions as possible has set a hectic pace for Marlan Hosmer, whose husband is seeking election to his third congressional term.

"I would have to be six people to keep up with Craig," she laughs. "But I go as much as I can. We try always to have breakfast and dinner with the youngsters, who worship their dad, but when we can't be with them, we have wonderful family siters." The youngsters, Susan, 9, and Larkin, 6, attend Clara Barton School while at their Long Beach home, 1066 E.

This space is generally reserved for anecdotes about people going places—going on vacations, to dinners, parties, quietly crazy or to meetings. There's only one place, however, we're interested in hearing about people going this week. TO THE POLLS!

Just for the record, let's see what kind of definition best fits the various non-voters. If you have any among your friends, dream up your own version and lambast them with it! You are also welcome to use any of the following. They aren't copyrighted.

- "Didn't Have Time"—Moron with a busted main spring.
- "Didn't Register"—Hound dog with blue suede shoes.
- "Didn't Know Who to Vote For"—Needs assistance tying shoes, too.
- "Forgot"—Blind, deaf and awfully dumb.
- "Didn't Know Where Polls Were"—Breed degenerating. Ancestors found America.
- "No Transportation"—Only capable of riding coattails. Don't be "fellow traveler."
- "Was Sick"—Sick, sick, sick! Translation: mentally disturbed.
- "Out of Town"—Out of head, too.
- "No Baby Sitter"—Has suppressed desire to send children behind Iron Curtain.
- "Didn't Like Any Candidate"—Hates self most of all. Has suicidal tendencies.
- "One Vote Doesn't Matter"—Member of extinct Ten Little Indians Tribe. Many become one. Then none.
- "Useless. Would just cancel husband's/wife vote"—Considers Russian roulette suitable for parlor game.

Plenty of other excuses. For every excuse there is a definition.

A champagne campaign is in full swing at that precinct known as the University Club where the polls will open next Sunday and won't close till every member and guest has had an opportunity to cast a vote for fun! The club is hosting at a champagne brunch and fashion show. The coke and ginger ale set will be made welcome with their parents to see Wilma Hastings present styles for all ages (and both sexes of all ages!) Beth (Mrs. Kelly) Williams is chairmanning this gala party with Peggy (Mrs. Nell) White doing the decorations and Wilma (Mrs. Bert) Barber in charge of reservations. Spaced between election and Armistice Day, what could be a more proper theme than red, white and blue for patriotism. "Uncle" Norman Masterson will appear as Uncle Sam. Oht wig maker, do your best to transform this crew cut boy best traditions built by generations are shattered.

"Sidewalk Superintendents," political variety, will be guests of Dorothy and Lee Wilcox and Betty and Bob Buffum at a buffet dinner party Tuesday at the Buffums' home. Some of their guests, all close friends, will suffer (not because they need bicarbonate of soda, we hasten to say) and others will cheer because this is to be a watch-election-returns affair. We'd like to make one suggestion to Dorothy and Betty. If any guest arrives without his voter's receipt pinned firmly in plain sight—make 'em eat on a tin plate AND from the kitchen floor.

"Skip" Abrams, who pilots a B-36 toward the heavens as easily as most of us can blow a feather toward the ceiling, his wife, Margaret, and their two children, Kathy and Eric, are here for a quickie visit from Ellsworth Air Force Base in South Dakota. They're staying with "Skip's" folks, Edna and Bill Abrams.

Nominated for best People's Party of the week by Marge and Jack Merrick and unanimously seconded by everyone present was the surprise housewarming given for the Merricks week ago last night in their new home at 65 Vista del Golfo in Naples. It was a landslide of gaiety. Party "bosses" were Bea and Arthur Vincent (Marge's sister), Margaret and Dick Russell, Connie and Charlie Campbell and Ruth and Gordon Dougherty. Guess Gordon over-campaigned. He was sick in bed with the flu by party night and had to learn of results the hard way—second hand!

Incidentally, Marge and Jack leave Nov. 8 for Florida on a pleasure-business trip, to be gone a couple of weeks. No. 63, being so young, will be tended by an admiring baby sitter while they're gone.

Wanted for robbery, K. W. Jones. He steals hearts. Been a warrant out for his big brother, Russ, on same charge for 15 months. K. W., alias Kenneth Williams, now holed up in Lakewood home. Being shielded by parents, Evelyn and Bob Jones. Won't talk. Burns defiance. Will talk plenty later. Description: Hair, red; height, 21 inches; weight, 8 pounds; age, 14 days. Evelyn and Bob forced to join forces of FBI (Feeders of Baby Incessantly).

We're safe again from flying saucers landing. The things they've seen through their powerful telescopes during this Halloween season should keep them at their distance for a long time to come. For Martians the sight sent them diving back into their canals and at the visions Venusians vanished.

Example No. One: The golfing women at Virginia Country Club had a costume party and "cross country" tournament. To say the least, Outer Space was shocked. A cave woman (Naomi Wolf) rubbed elbows with rag dolls (Virginia Welch and Buggy Crocker) who laughed at the sign on her back, "Two Million Years in a Sandtrap"; Elvis Presley (Helen Buck) played a nine iron instead of a guitar; and prizes were won by Ann Wood, Tressa Slosson, Estelle Mooney, Nell Taylor, Margo Demler and Ruth Hubbard for putting with drivers and driving any old "witch" way instead of the usual way.

Example No. Two: Helen and Harold Teeple and Joe and Marjorie McDonald caused Neptune eyebrows to raise week ago last night when they invited their friends to a "Suppressed Desire" costume party given at the McDonalds, 11 Geneva Wk. Among the most puzzling creatures were June Bolte and Dana Brown. Diplomats from afar are unable to evaluate what they saw. Others upsetting outer space theories on earth's protoplasmic types were Clover and Dr. Ken Johnson and Georgiana and Ray Teeple (how could space observers know that Clover and Georgiana were birthday honorees at this affair when they tried to blow out the fire on top of sponge rubber cakes and no one offered to help them). Others of the crowd were Norma and George Sweet, Rose and Roy Shep, Mil and Hank Lamb, Lora and Marion Akin, Marie and Morris Beck, Jack and Bernie Watkins, Mary Alice and Les Dahl, Myrna and Dana Brown, Shirley and Dick Lineberger, Eugenia and Grant MacDonald and Mable and Dub LaForce.

'OOHHH, WHAT A PRETTY APRON!'

So grins little Judy Miller as she tries on one of the many fancy aprons that will be displayed, along with other attractive gift novelties and holiday decorations, on the Bazaar Table during the Nov. 16 "Harvest of Gold" Table Setting Show in the Lafayette Hotel's Cavalier Room. Members of the auxiliary to Long Beach Osteopathic Society have worked many months planning the show, proceeds which are earmarked for the new Long Beach Osteopathic Hospital on Pacific Ave. The public may purchase tickets for the 1 to 5 event at the door. Above admiring Judy's apron are, from left, Mrs. P. W. Reames, auxiliary president; Mrs. F. W. Sturges, tickets, and Mrs. W. F. Miller, ways and means.—(Staff Photo.)

EXQUISITE FORMAL and informal table decor appropriate for all-year entertaining, as well as festive holiday ideas, will attract interested crowds to the second annual Table Setting Show sponsored by the auxiliary to Long Beach Osteopathic Society. Beautifully appointed tables displaying the finest in silver, china and linens will be presented by leading merchandisers of the Long Beach and harbor areas. Chairman of the benefit public show is Mrs. Samuel A. Reese, pictured at right above. Admiring her autumn centerpiece are three assistants, from left, Mrs. Robert Brown, special effects; Mrs. Laurence Houts, tickets, and Mrs. Willis F. Baughman, director of the Bazaar Table which will feature glamorous and unique gift suggestions.—(Staff Photo.)

embroidered sweaters — the proceeds of which would go to the party—and my own feeling was that the people who came to the rally were saying in effect, "Look, we've seen the light, we're for you now, for Pete's sake let's get on with the auction. I've had my eye on that electric blender for the last two months."

Press Reviewed

Mr. Javits, his manager, a couple of newspapermen and I flew back to New York together after the meeting. That part was just like the theater during the out-of-town try-out. Much talk as to how the show had gone, audience reaction, and would we do business (get votes)?

It was the old familiar routine right down to the rewriting for the next performance, yellow pads balanced on knees, as the plane flew through the night. The men cut, argue and discuss.

We arrive in New York and step into a waiting car. Driving through the dimly lit streets someone says, "There's a newsstand, let's get the papers." Mr. Javits sitting by the door is out first. "What do you want?" he asks his manager. "A set." He returns with the four New York morning papers, The Times, Tribune, News and Mirror.

The campaign manager, just like a theatrical manager or an actor, ignoring the headlines, ruffles through them with a practiced eye. He's looking for the notices. Ah, he's found them. On page two are reports of Javitt's speeches made early in the day in upstate cities. Apropos of a mis-quotation one of the reporters, a chap from an evening paper, says heatedly, "Why that isn't true." The manager shrugs—"Why louse up a good story with the facts?"

We drop Mr. Javits off at his front door. He bids me a courteous goodnight, adding, "You could have come home with a handsomer man, Miss Chase, but not a treder one."

Five speeches that day, four the day before, two the next. A politician, I should say, is like a man obsessed by a mistress who brings him to the edge of despair but whom he loves and cannot leave.

Candidates' Wives Speak

the family attends church. She also is a member of the Congressional Club in Washington, which is composed of wives of congressmen, and of the 83rd Club, wives of freshman members of the 83rd Congress.

The Hosmers reside in their Blkby Knolls home during their five months a year in Long Beach, and while in Washington live in a centrally located apartment.

Friends, she said, urged her to discourage her husband's original entry into politics. Her answer — then and now — "How can I discourage him? He's the kind of man I've always thought we needed in politics and I stand behind him 100 per cent!"

Meet Nancy Simpson

Equally charming is Nancy Simpson, wife of Attorney Simpson, who is the choice of the Democratic party in this area for the congressional office.

A typical family life — except that "Daddy is busier than usual" — goes on at the Simpson home, 4130 E. 2nd St., as the youngsters, Anne, 10; Debby, 8½, and Jeffrey, 6½, romp with their German shepherd, Aaron, who is undecided at this point if he is dog or horse. Sharing a berth with Aaron in the "pet zoo" are two cats, five kittens and a goldfish recently acquired at the Fremont School carnival where all three youngsters are students.

Mrs. Simpson, slim and attractive, is shy when conversational centers on her, but talks eagerly about her husband and children, or about their two-story home which she finds ideal for entertaining.

Along with her interest in the current campaign goes a desire to strike a happy medium between home and politics, and still find time to take part in music and youth activities. She serves as fourth vice president of Fremont P.T.A. and is active in the Uptown Church of Christ as supervisor of the preschool department, and as a member of a women's vocal trio.

Mrs. Simpson readily admits political science was not a favorite subject in school, but has nonetheless joined the political scene, and fully enjoys keeping abreast of the campaign's progress by going to as many functions as possible. "I can't be a shining light in the political world," she sighs, "but I try to be an intelligent conversationalist, and to encourage Mr. Simpson — an extremely dedicated person — in whatever he is doing."

Sure of Future Votes

The youngsters, while comparatively untouched by the campaign, are aware that "if Daddy is elected there will be changes." All are in complete agreement that "Daddy is going to win," and Debby, most vocal of the trio, frequently assures her father of their votes!

Mrs. Simpson doesn't allow herself to think too much about it, but feels life in Washington would be an enjoyable and exciting experience.

Both wives are together in their idealistic approach to politics, believing it is possible to rise above the average person's conception of bickering and extreme partisanship, and to bring good to government at any level.

Even Cakes Bespeak Politics!

Although politics may not be thought of in the same breath as a birthday anniversary, a proposition of political significance took form in frosting and decoration on a cake at a party given Friday night by Mrs. Melvin L. Campbell, 4211 Pacific Ave.

Oil wells and letter icing expressed the sentiments of the honorees. Mrs. Chester Yunker and Hugh Edelman, on Proposition 4 on the forthcoming ballot.

The buffet table was centered with a floral arrangement of yellow roses, carnations and spider chrysanthemums. The 24 guests danced in the library following the cutting of the cake.

Dignity Marks Quiet Ceremony

Simplicity and dignity marked the ceremony Friday evening which united Mrs. Ansel J. Olson and James William Wood in marriage. The couple, both prominent in the civic, business and social life of Long Beach, exchanged wedding vows in the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Paap, 275 Nieto Ave., at 8 p.m. with only members of their immediate families present.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Fred Thomson of Upland, was her single attendant. James Wood Jr. stood with his father as best man.

The new Mrs. Wood has long endeared herself to this community for unselfish service in various fields. A past president of Long Beach Assistance League, she was also the founder of the Long Beach Chapter of Junior League. She has been associated with the Long Beach Heart Assn. since its inception, currently serving as a member of the board of directors, and has officiated as chairman of Red Cross Gray Ladies. In addition, her ability and graciousness have enriched and strengthened important civic and philanthropic endeavors too numerous to mention. Widow of Dr. Ansel J. Olson, she has one son, Larry, who is in his senior year at USC.

The bridegroom is a partner in the firm of Wood-Callahan Oil Co. and is one of the pioneers in the local oil industry. He is a member of Virginia

Mrs. James William Wood

Country Club, Southern California Tuna Club and the Catalina Tuna Club. In addition to his son, James, he has one daughter, Mrs. Francis Hertzog Jr.

The newlyweds planned Friday night immediately following their marriage for New Orleans where they will board the cruise ship Del Sud on Nov. 8 for a honeymoon trip to South America. They will visit in Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Lima and Santiago before returning home by air, stopping en route at Panama City and Mexico City. Due to arrive here Dec. 16, they will be at home at 4416 California Ave. after this date. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Wood resided in her home at 4221 Pine Ave.

Women Fete Mrs. Kuchel

Mrs. Thomas Kuchel, wife of the U. S. senator from California, was honored at a reception recently at the home of Mrs. William Gillis, 4501 Harvey Way. In the receiving line with her were Mrs. Craig Hosmer and Mrs. J. Herbert Klocksiem, wives of the congressional representative and state assemblyman, respectively.

Pink elephant doughnuts were served and individual packages of Kuchel campaign napkins were given as favors to the 75 prominent Long Beach women invited.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jenny Pritchard, Thomas Carrigan, John Elwell, Earl Milton, Irvin Mozingo, Joseph Crowell, Frank Lowry, Hardy Wray, William Cannon and H. K. Davidson.

Mrs. James Snyder

Honeymoon in Mexico

Candlelight flickered over bouquets of white gladioli, dahlias and carnations recently in the patio of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jones, 1411 E. 67th St. when their daughter, Charleen Mayer, recited wedding vows with James Snyder of Redondo Beach in an intimate ceremony attended by only family members and close friends.

The bride, in a gown of white tulle and lace, ballerina length, was attended by her sister, Patricia. The new Mrs. Snyder is a graduate of Jordan High School and Long Beach City College where she was a member of Entre Nous and Kappa.

Following the wedding ceremony and reception the young couple left on a three weeks honeymoon trip to Mexico City, Acapulco and Vera Cruz. They will make their home in Hermosa Beach.

Take Vows in Midst of Beauty

Mrs. Andrew Burkhard Bauer

Against a background rich with flowers in the warm, tawny colors of autumn, Mary Ann Riddick became the bride of Andrew Burkhard Bauer in a double ring ceremony solemnized in tradition and beauty on the afternoon of Oct. 27 at Calvary Presbyterian Church.

The glow of many candles added their soft complement to the scene as the lovely bride, escorted by her father, approached the altar. Their path along the snowy carpeted center aisle was bordered with tall satin wrapped columns topped with clusters of fall flowers. For her vows the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Riddick, 137 Hermon Ave., was gown by Priscilla in a dress of imported Chantilly lace with bouffant skirt of nylon tulle shearing. Styled with boat neck and princess bodice, the bosom of the gown was encrusted with Aurora Borealis sequins. Her veil of tulle was caught to a crown of orange blossoms and for her flowers she carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and white Cattleya orchids.

Mrs. George Murrell, matron of honor, and the other attendants of the bride's entourage, Mrs. William McMullen, Miss Marjorie Davis, Mrs. James Macon and Miss Beverly Melone, were all dressed alike in gowns of soft jonquil yellow with fitted bodices, bouffant ballerina length skirts with tiny taffeta bows capturing back interest. Their bouquets were cascades of bronze spider chrysanthemums, croton leaves and tall-tan satin ribbon.

Little Merelle Murrell was flower girl. The petals she scattered along the bridal path were of the same bronze shade as the sash of her dress and the flowers which formed her train. Ringbearer was young Master John McMullen.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bauer of Urbana, Ohio, asked his new brother-in-law, Joseph Riddick Jr., to stand with him as best man. Ushering the 400 wedding guests to their places were Walter Bauer, John Bradley and Roland Hansen.

Following the ceremony guests journeyed to the Lafayette Hotel for a reception given in the Starlight Roof ballroom. Traditional wedding cake was served from a table covered with floor length slipper satin overlaid with many yards of filmy white nylon tulle and garlanded with swags of tulle and autumn blossoms.

The new Mrs. Bauer is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and Pomona College where she affiliated with Delta Phi Upsilon. She is a member of the Long Beach University Women's Club. The bridegroom, graduate of Ohio State University, is a Phi Sigma Kappa and is a member of Toastmasters International.

The newlyweds honeymooned along the Pacific Coast.

WED FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carlson of Santa Ana celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently at a buffet dinner given for them by their daughter and son-in-law Dr. and Mrs. Peter Slack in their home at 1119 E. 46th St. Among family members of the goldenweds present were another daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Waldron of Midway City, a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Carlson of Garden Grove, five grandchildren and Mr. Carlson's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Carlson.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER MINER

Big event on Long Beach State campus this week will be Homecoming Day, Friday, when for the fifth year in a row, the college welcomes back students of earlier years.

A student committee is working out the details of a slate of activities which run the gamut from modern jazz concerts to a pep rally near the City Hall. Sounds like a real good time. Oh yeah, no classes after 12 noon; a real, real good time.

Forty-Niners are beating a path to Goodwin's in Bellflower. Last week it was the Presidents' Dinner. This Wednesday, it's the semi-annual initiation dinner of the Alpha Chi chapter of Phi Lambda Theta, national Women's Education Honorary. Ten new members will be initiated.

Phi Lambda Theta proxy Lillian Svoren of Los Angeles will preside. Speaker of the evening will be Dr. Dorothy Welch, supervisor of elementary education, in the Long Beach schools, while special guest of honor will be Dr. Sylvia Vopni of New York, the group's national vice president who is currently making her biannual visit to chapters in this area.

What's in a name? In looking through entries in the women's volleyball play, we came across such standard sounding titles as Sigma Kappas, Delta Zetas and Delta Delta Deltas. Then, on to something a bit flashier with VIPs and III Lows. Next, a little bit of puzzlement at Booming Bricks. But when we ran onto Hlyshyny and On The Rocks—we're stumped.

Clue us in, girls. Who ya playin' for?

Phi Beta, LBSC national speech and music fraternity, honored pianist Yaltah Menuhin with the Phi Beta Honorary Pin last Tuesday following a musicale and patrons' reception at the Municipal Art Center. The award was made in recognition of Miss Menuhin's excellence as an artist and musician.

Earlier in the evening Phi Beta pledging ceremonies saw four new members added to the rolls: Sharon Koon, Long Beach; Roxana Malone, San Pedro; Mary Lou Fairman, Santa Ana, and Lynn Holan, Long Beach. Also welcomed into the chapter was a transfer from Pepperdine College, Betty Hood, Long Beach.

Nine carloads of Young Republicans from the Forty-Niner campus were in the crowd which heard Vice President Nixon speak in Lakewood Center last week. Later on, the group followed the GOP contingent to the airport where two girl yell leaders led the State aggregation in cheers for their candidates. After the display of student enthusiasm, the Vice President is reported to have told the student group that now he knows where Long Beach State is.

Although they are the farthest removed from being old grads, members of the freshman class won't be hanging back on Homecoming Day. We understand they plan to string up an effigy of the Arizona State Woodsmen (the football foe of the day) from a strategically located upper campus lamp post come Friday noon. Then a few hours later, just to make sure that things stay heated up for the football game, the frosh will take charge of kindling the pre-game bonfire on the lower campus.

Among Career Women

Insurance Women, Soroptimists Gain Knowledge at Meeting

By ANNE GILCHRIST

The matter of insurance claims, that phase of the insurance business of greatest interest to the general public, was discussed at the November dinner meeting of Long Beach Insurance Women when they met at the Petroleum Club.

Lloyd Baum, claims adjuster for Ohio Casualty Co., told of recent changes in the California Responsibility Law. The former penalty for failure to show financial responsibility (for an accident involving property damage in excess of $100 or any personal injuries) has been increased.

He pointed out that the owner of a motor vehicle failing to respect the responsibility law may lose his car registration and license plates, the right to sell his car and, in addition, can be required to store it until such time as he is proven not responsible for the accident.

Turning his remarks to the work of the insurance women themselves he explained how they can help by securing adequate and accurate information to serve their clients efficiently and effectively, and stressed their duty in giving advice to policy holders and drivers. He reviewed errors to be avoided in dealing with claimants.

This highly informative program was in line with the club's policy of education for its members; education being one of the major reasons for the club's existence.

Frances Verburg (with George A. Richards & Sons) was initiated into membership. Reports were heard from the safety committee and the welfare committee. Jeanne McKenna outlined plans for Thanksgiving philanthropy. Elderly men and women in various rest homes and hospitals in the city will be given aid and comfort. Pauline Kincaid was in charge of the evening's program.

Constance Winkler, president, conducted.

Soroptimist Club

Honorable Craig Hosmer, congressman from this 18th District, appeared before the Long Beach Soroptimist Club at its luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel in observance of United Nations. He told the story of the UN since its inception 11 years ago and how it has helped solve many international problems before they grew to dangerous proportions.

He told of the original aim: to negotiate and settle diverse opinions and to provide a mutual meeting ground for members to air controversies and obtain world views. Not all, he explained, have lived up to the original plans (as subsequent world developments have shown), however the United States should continue to lend its strength to this organization dedicated to peace for the world. He concluded his remarks by saying, "As we work as individuals, clubs and organizations for unity and strength, so we should do in the United Nations."

Barbara Moss, program chairman, introduced Frank Caffray, who assisted in the development of Apple Valley. He proved a dynamic salesman, easily "selling" his audience on the importance of salesmanship! Caffray said every sale is a challenge, regardless of the commodity. A salesman, he continued, must be sold on his product or subject and to be successful he must dedicate his heart to his work, have intense enthusiasm and be a positive thinker. He cautioned however, that no matter how adept a person may be in all these requirements, the foremost for continued success is that the salesman be true to himself.

Welcome Members

Long Beach Legal Secretaries will be joined by several new members at their next meeting Nov. 15 at the Officers Club, Fort McArthur. Mildred Bayly (John J. Karmelich), Florence I. Dolbow (City Attorney's office), Penny E. Fenwick (Vern E. Garten), Vira M. Hunt (Eugene R.

Kirkpatrick), Maureen Irwin (Malcom E. Uptcraft), Mary Lou Slater (George W. Van Dyke) and Hazel I. Stewart with Louis J. Hart) are those who have recently taken membership. This month's dinner meeting will be in charge of the San Pedro members of the local club.

DAR Careerists

Susan B. Anthony Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, a group within the DAR family whose activities are geared to career women, will have its next luncheon meeting Nov. 18, at Lakewood Country Club. At the chapter's last meeting Mrs. Vaughn Abrams was the speaker, explaining the procedure for doing genealogical research at the Los Angeles Library. Miss Mildred Murphy, regent, conducted the business meeting. Guests introduced were Mrs. Claribel Christi and Mrs. Kenneth E. Phillips.

Ebell Juniors Vote Aid to Exceptional Children

At their last regular meeting Ebell Juniors voted to continue support of the Exceptional Children's Foundation as their project for the year. Members also heard Mrs. William Barry describe plans for their Christmas dance Dec. 21 at Lakewood Country Club.

Mrs. Roland Coltrane announced that a needy family will receive the overflowing Thanksgiving basket given each year by Ebell Juniors.

Mrs. Robert L. Carter, president, conducted the business meeting before Dr. Bernard G. Krohn gave a humorous and informative talk on "How to Avoid a Heart Attack."

New members introduced by Mrs. Robert Ray, membership chairman, were Misses R. C. Gall, C. R. LeMenager, E. D. Nunn Jr., R. N. Fresh, A. E. Littrell, H. E. Glenn Jr., G. Anderson, Richard Leebrock, William K. Wagner Jr., and V. M. Lewis.

Unusual table decorations of handsome ceramic turkeys, tangerine satin ribbons and individual miniature birds at each place setting created an attractive setting for the luncheon and program. Mrs. Robert Lime was chairman, assisted by the ways and means committee.

At an officers meeting in the home of Mrs. Calvin J. Weide, 2851 San Vincente Ave., discussion of their booth at the forthcoming Ebell Senior bazaar on Dec. 7 headed the business agenda.

Autumn Decor Will Lend Thanksgiving Note to Wives of Navy Doctors Lunch

By VIRGINIA NEWTON
Planning a theme of Thanksgiving with autumn's brilliant colored leaves and fruits as table decor, Wives of Navy Doctors Club members will gather for noon luncheon Nov. 14 at Allen Center. Board members are reminded to be present at 11:30 a.m. Senior hostess will be Mrs. Pat Marsh. Mrs. Lewis Dorgan, 4200 Linden Ave., should be called for reservations. Mrs. Glen Campbell, former member of the club has sent word that a delegation from the Corona Wives of Navy Doctors' Club will attend. Missed from meetings for quite some time will be Mrs. Wilbur Schneider, who left last Saturday for a trip around the world. All newcomers to this area who are married to dental or medical officers of the Navy are invited to the luncheon. Cmdr. O. B. Parker, following a recent change of command ceremony aboard the USS Point Defiance, and Mrs. Parker and son Barry are planning to leave shortly for new duty in Washington, D.C. Enroute the Parkers will visit relatives in Lansing, Mich., and Philadelphia. Prior to the Navy officer's leaving his ship, officers and their ladies entertained at cocktails in honor of Cmdr. and Mrs. Parker at the Officers Club, Allen Center. Capt. and Mrs. F. W. Thompson recently held open house for their many service and civilian friends at their new home in Portuguese Bend. Cmdr. and Mrs. M. Steltenkamp and Mrs. Robert Bagley enjoyed several days in Las Vegas recently "doing the town" with their next door neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lingel of Belmont Shore.

Al and Helen Kausch now residing in Reading, Ohio, where they moved following the former Navy officer's release from service have announced the arrival of a baby boy. Albert Paul was greeted at home by his big brother Mike. Do you know where those two very nice folks, Rear Admiral and Mrs. George J. McMillin have been recently? Missed our genial postmaster McMillin from the local scene only to learn they had been east for six weeks. Among the many things they did was to attend the Academy Class of 1911, and then on to New York to be present at the Postmasters' National Convention. While in Washington, D.C., they visited with former residents of this city, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter DeLany. Then to Alexandria, Va., where they visited with their son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. William Mack and son Bill, and saw for the first time their beautiful brown eyed granddaughter fondly called Megan.

as possible. Funds will be used for aid at the VA hospital here. Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Brightman recently entertained at the cocktail hour with service and civilian friends dropping in. The Brightmans have as their house guest this week, Thelma McConnell from Minnesota. MMC John Crabtree has been a very busy father these last few days after having been detached from the USS Cogswell. He's been in charge of two boys and girls at home and then a few days ago he proudly brought home from the hospital Mrs. Crabtree and the newest member of the family, pretty little Priscilla. The Crabtrees leave in a few days for new duty in Newport, R. I. Enroute the family will visit Mrs. Crabtree's mother Mrs. L. P. Brewer in New Mexico, and the Chief's mother, Mrs. A. O. Crabtree in Tennessee. Mrs. Harry Simpson is senior hostess at the coffee hour at the Navy Family Chapel this afternoon. Guest speaker at the three o'clock services is Rev. Robert Bonhall of Los Angeles.

Grandmothers Federation Charters Silverado Unit

Among highlights of the recent convention of the National Federation of Grandmothers Clubs of America was the presentation of the first new charter of the year authorizing Silverado Canyon Grandmothers Club.

Mrs. Sylvia Staleup, new national president, presented the document to Mrs. Hallie Bridges, 2255 Pacific Ave., a California organizer who will install officers of the new club Nov. 13 in Silverado Canyon.

The convalescence, held in Dayton, Ohio, in October was marked by the election of national officers who will serve for two years.

Elected were Mrs. Sylvia Staleup of Akron, Ohio, president; Edith Waddell of Corpus Christi, Tex., first vice president; Florence Newhall of Spokane, Wash., second vice president, and Ruth Serne of Glendale, treasurer.

Convention sessions included a talent night, for which Mrs. Bridges was mistress of ceremonies and a banquet night. At this meeting announcement was made that Gov. Knight had proclaimed the second Sunday of October as Grandmothers Day. The organization hopes to make the date a national holiday.

Groups of 10 or more, interested in forming a Grandmothers Club, may write or telephone Mrs. Bridges for aid.

The Long Beach woman traveled to Seattle, Vancouver, Montreal, New York and Denver before she returned to this city. Mrs. Elizabeth Pease, president of Long Beach Grandmothers Club No. 138 attended the convention with Mrs. Bridges.

'QUE SERA, SERA!'

That's all Mrs. Frank C. Finch, right, will say about the Friday banquet Junior Matrons of Ebell are planning at the clubhouse. Decoration chairman of the fun-filled evening to honor members' husbands, she displays symbols of political party mascots she has designed for the occasion. Approval is given by, from right, Mrs. J. W. Punt, Chairman Mrs. Clarence Poole and Mrs. Herbert H. Vail. (Staff Photo.)

Sorority to Celebrate Founding

Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica will be setting for Sigma Kappa's 82nd annual founders day dinner at 2 p.m. Nov. 11.

Mrs. R. J. Kettenburg, president of the Southern California Council of Sigma Kappa, is in charge of the program, and will be assisted by Miss Joan Lee, president of Gamma Theta Chapter of Long Beach State College.

Sigma Kappa, founded in 1874 at Colby College, Waterville, Maine, is one of the five oldest sororities in the nation, and was organized to promote service, cultural development and high scholarship standards. Among their national philanthropies are the Maine Sea Coast Mission, and the American Farm School, Salonika, Greece. On the local scene, Sigma Kappa is a member of the Hathaway Home Guild, and alumnae groups give Christmas gifts and aid in other ways.

Sigma Kappa Alumnae in the Long Beach Area may make reservations with Mrs. J. Joujon Roche.

Her gown featured a graceful off shoulder neckline and bouffant skirt over satin. A Chantilly tulle caught her veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and white rosebuds laced with maline and pearls. Gordon Crain of Los Angeles gave her in marriage.

Miss Marcella Scott, in a gown of gold taffeta designed to complement the bridal gown, was the maid of honor. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a cascade of bronze chrysanthemums, wheat and autumn leaves.

In gowns of deep green taffeta in similar style were the bridesmaids, Mrs. James Martin, Miss Ethel Martin and Miss Ramona Rice. Their flowers were cascades of yellow chrysanthemums and autumn leaves.

Little Carol Ann Holmes was the flower girl, while Niel Peters, the bride's brother, acted as candle light.

Selected to serve the bridegroom as best man was Tommy L. Sommons. Don Wilcox and Ralph Vardeman seated the 100 guests.

Hadassah on Eve of Gay Dance

Lifting dinner music, exciting entertainment and uniquely significant decor will characterize the Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah dinner-dance Nov. 11 at the Wilton Hotel.

The theme "Candle in the Window" will be illustrated in table decorations by miniature curtained window frames holding lighted candles marking "The Flame of Hope," pointing up the broad humanitarian program of the Hadassah organization.

Entertainment for this annual affair includes Daddy Lester, known as a master of comedy and Mae Williams, brilliant song stylist, both of whom are known to television audiences and Sunset Strip nightclub habitués. Herb Silvers and his orchestra will play during dinner and later for dancing.

Included in the many-sided Hadassah program are not only the purely social outlets for its members, but the important element of community service as well. This is borne out by the fact that the organization has received recognition for participation in the Red Cross and Community Chest drives, an Award of Merit from the Sister Kenny Foundation for 1934 and activity in other community projects.

Will Speak to Arizona AAUW Units

"The Current Crisis in Education" will be the theme of Mrs. Ray Winthrop Townsend, national vice president of the American Association of University Women, South Pacific Region, when she is guest speaker Friday and Saturday for four AAUW branches in Arizona.

Mrs. Townsend will fly to Douglas, Ariz., Thursday to be a houseguest of Mrs. Fred L. Thomas, second vice president of the state and president of Douglas branch.

On Saturday, the local executive will attend the Tucson branch silver anniversary luncheon. In the evening she will be guest speaker at Nogales branch dinner meeting and will return to Long Beach Sunday.

The traveler will be accompanied to all meetings by Mrs. George Scholey, Arizona state president.

Decorative Arts

The Foundation of Decorative Arts of Southern California will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Richard Davis, 1455 Linda Crest, Beverly Hills. The general meeting will follow a buffet luncheon to be served at 12 noon.

Florence Cole of Long Beach will interpret the New York play, "The Diary of Anne Frank" during the afternoon program.

Royalite Club

Members of Royalite Club will gather Friday at Colonial Hall, 951 Locust Ave., for a covered dish luncheon and business session. Mrs. Elsie Bozdechek and her committee will serve as hostesses.

PERSONALIZED PATTERN

FOR THE SHORT GIRL

Martini Diminutive has put the little woman on a special fashion pedestal, constantly presenting her with important fashion scaled to her proportions. To add to her height designer Sylvan Rich utilizes intricate cut which is beautifully illustrated in this model. The clever seaming is easy to handle in this model. The dress is so precisely measured and perforated. The skirt of this dress which is actually a full circle is in three sections, the front panel cut in one with the bodice. The two back pieces, cut on an off grain, slope down to a lowered V, repeating the V of the wide open neckline, filled in with contrasting fabrics. The bodice seaming is interesting as well as figure flattering since the two side darts meet the seams of the underarm inset at the waistline. Choose foulard, plain or printed silks, surah or faille with a sharp accent of complementary color and fabric. From this chart select the one size best for you.

Oswald Jacoby Bid Slowly Is Principle

How should you bid when you discover a fine distributional fit with your partner? Should you bid the maximum at once, or should you bid gradually, allowing the opponents to push you?

The answer depends on whether the opponents have found their own fit. If they have already made that discovery, you will have trouble shutting them out. Your best tactic then is to bid gradually.

The principle is illustrated in today's hand. North might have jumped to four hearts at his first turn, attempting to shut the enemy out before they discovered their fit. North chose, instead, to bid the clubs first. By the time North's next turn came, East had doubled and West had responded in spades. It was now too late to make a jump bid in hearts.

Pair Back From Tour

Home after an extended visit in the Scandinavian countries are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanson of 2150 E. 15th St. They centralized their six months' visit with relatives in Oslo and Stockholm. Both visited at the birthplaces of their respective parents and had the pleasure of attending the historic, 1000-year-old church in which the parents were christened.

Their stay was highlighted with tours which took them into the fjords and highlands. One of the most interesting of these was the tour up into the Land of the Midnight Sun above the Arctic Circle.

The trip across was made in the Oslofjord and the return trip in the luxury liner Bergensfjord.

North bid as gradually as possible from this point on. As a result, South was able to get the hand at the excellent contract of six hearts. No skill was needed to make this contract. South simply drew trumps and established dummy's clubs.

When the hand was played in a team match, the bidding was different at the other table. North made some unwise jump bids and West eventually made a sacrifice bid of six spades. North led a heart, and South won with the queen. South knew nothing about his partner's void in diamonds, and he therefore made the mistake of returning a club. This gave West time to draw trumps, and the fortunate location of the diamonds allowed West to make his contract of six spades. The winning team made a vulnerable slam at each of the two tables!

FABULOUS LIZAGATOR in a striking new rust tone will keep envious eyes a-turning when milady steps out in her fall finery. Pictured at the bottom is the ever-popular classic pump with the new slender heel. It's priced at about $32. A pump with narrow modified heel and piping trim, selling for around $24, is another style-stepping shoe fashion. Matching either pump is a Lizagator bag with leather lining. J. Will Johnson Chef of the Week He Followed Adventure From Farm to Far West

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Had he and Horatio Alger only met! He would have provided ample hero material for another success story. Chef of the Week J. Will Johnson, who just passed his 63rd birthday, retired at the age of 53.

His life, filled with romance and adventure, started in Indiana. But the small farm boy moved with his family at an early age to the Ozark country in Missouri. He graduated from high school in Ash Grove, Mo., and also cast his first vote in 1884 for Grover Cleveland.

He and an older brother developed growing pains about that time, and for the next two years they homesteaded in southwestern Kansas... lived in a sod house, and nearly starved to death.

Their better judgment eventually encouraged their search for new fields, so they journeyed to Colorado Springs. There they joined a livery. While they did care for the horses and carriages, their main duty was driving guests to Pike's Peak, the Garden of the Gods, and all points of interest.

With more courage, more experience and the spirit of adventure intact, Johnson let relatives lure him to the great northwest. He arrived in Oakesdale, Wash. (near Spokane) in 1889. It was there he endeavored, endured and excelled.

First off, he became book-keeper for his cousin in the contracting and construction business. He reinforced his income by selling insurance and keeping two additional sets of books at night. He found time, also, to conduct a retail furniture business.

Civic-wise, Johnson became Oakesdale's first clerk, a position which he held for nine consecutive years. He served as a Justice of the Peace and as a notary.

All this preceded his really big business venture... he bought a general merchandise store; handled hardware, farm implements, and anything one might eat or wear.

There were still bigger things to come to Johnson, however, for when his bank balance totaled $10,000, he took himself a wife. It was their business then until 1919 when they sold out, retired and came to Long Beach, then a town of 45,000 people.

The name of J. Will Johnson became a potent part of Long Beach, too. A city councilman for two years, 1929-30, he also served on the water commission for nine years, two of which as its president. In fact, our last reservoir was named for him.

A member of the Consistory, he has earned all Scottish Rite bodies, and is a 32nd degree Mason. He belongs to the Long Beach Masonic Club. Our "chef's" philosophy is to keep busy and to be happy. He does both. A gardener with a real plan, he rotates his crop—corn, then beans—then whatever suits his fancy. He does his own cooking; and executes that fete with the same careful planning. In the line of breads, bran muffins are his favorite; yet he frequently bakes a cornbread loaf. His recipe today will

Your Baby's Mine More Than Facts

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It is a matter of some amazement to me that among all the questions which come to this column continually about discipline, sleeping, eating, neighborhood conflicts—so few questions are asked about sex. This was once the most popular topic (next to feeding) of all parental problems.

One has to ask why. Is it because parents think there is nothing more they need to learn about this? Is it because they are completely satisfied with the results of their sex education policies?

I don't think so. It would be my guess that while the average mother who reads about and discusses her children's problem does know what to say (though she may be slow about saying it), she is not too satisfied with the results. All problems of sex have not been eliminated by our frank discussions of it early in a child's life. Some children are inclined to want more, and more, well beyond what is deemed wholesome, because their curiosity has been so aroused.

It is astounding, also, that despite the fact that discussions of how to talk to children about sex have been so publicized—the very largest majority of children still hear about it from outsiders, not their parents. They still get garbled, untrue, unbalanced reports and attitudes from persons as ignorant as they are.

What we have too often forgotten in our past, often, stereotype giving of sex information that it isn't just what we say or how we say it that is so important. It is how we live, how we act, what attitudes we display when we talk about marriage, marriage partners, babies, children in general. Those provide the background for whatever sex facts or information the child receives—from any source.

The warmth and companionship of parents; their humor toward their individual and common problems, their appreciation for human beings—these are vital sex education, too, which give children the right ideas upon which to build their eventual body of knowledge.

The facts about the way the body functions can be learned and passed on to anyone. This is just as exact as one can

Why Grow Old? Conquer the Petty Fears for Better Living, Peace

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It is important to clear our spiritual atmosphere of the mists of negative emotions. One way to do this is to conquer the small fears which haunt all humans. We read a great deal today about the effect of fear and other destructive emotions on health. Of course intelligent fear has its value. This brand of being afraid causes people to save for the future, sends thousands of young folks to college in order to be prepared, forces people to stick to their health routines, makes them drive more carefully, causes them to be more considerate in their human relationships and makes women take their figure molding exercises seriously.

BUT, we are apt to be victimized by dozens of small, petty fears which run through our daily lives like a dull streak in an otherwise brilliant design. Perhaps you worry about all kinds of things which will never happen.

Maybe you are timid, sensitive and self-conscious. You may worry about business in

We cannot hope to change the picture overnight. We will have to be content with little triumphs at first. Every time we forget, even for a short time, some nagging fear about which we can do nothing we have won a small battle. Every time we meet and conquer some situation which has caused us to be afraid we have progressed on the road to emotional and mental health. Sometimes even such a seemingly trivial victory as learning to swim, of winning over fear of water, will boost self-confidence tremendously. I often have seen this happen in swimming classes.

It would add so much happiness and improve health so magically if we would begin today the habit of positive and courageous thinking in regard to the little, as well as the large, problems of our daily lives.

YOU— and Year 2000

THE DAWN of the next century may seem remote, but actually it is only 41 years away.

It becomes of even more immediate interest and significance when you consider that the year 2000 will find thousands of the Southland's children — your children — in the active, dynamic prime of life.

Today's kindergarten child, occupied with his fingerpainting and his first groping toward knowledge, will be the doctor, lawyer, dentist, politician, business man, industrialist, scientist — even the interplanetary spaceman! of the new century.

What will his heritage be from you? It is you who plants the seeds of the new world and each of us, in some measure, is concerned with the shape of things to come. What will the year 2000 be like? Unfolded on these pages in this issue of Southland Magazine are some of the wonders of the future, many of which will arrive in our times, others of which will await the golden prime of our sons and daughters. Here, then, is a preview salute to the tomorrow which will surely, sooner than we think, become today.

Pilot and navigator check calculated course with dead reckoning as landfall is made on Venus, illustrating accompanying article of charting a space trip to this planet.

The Great Circle Route to Venus

EDITOR'S NOTE: John Wuerth, who in this article navigates a trip to Venus, is in the autonautics division of North American Aviation, Inc. Some time ago he worked out the navigational problems of a similar journey to present before the Institute of Navigation. He has made a long and careful study of the subject, and his superiors credit him with a rare talent for new and original ideas, combined with an unusual knowledge of physics and mathematics. However, while North American does have an extensive development program in the field of long-range, guided missiles — deriving into navigational problems over long ranges at supersonic speeds — it does not admit to working on a space buggy for joyrides into space.)

John Wuerth

By John Wuerth
Space Navigator

I HAVE WORKED OUT the navigation problems of a trip to Venus!

The trip to Venus will take 116 days. We will leave at 6 p. m. at some place on the equator. We will climb vertically at an acceleration of 2Gs, or two times gravity, for 13 minutes. Our space traveler will be comfortable enough under this acceleration; pilots often withstand 2Gs and more without ill effects.

At the end of 13 minutes we will have reached 25,600 miles per hour, which is greater than the velocity needed to keep from falling back to earth.

At this point power will be cut off and we will spend the rest of the trip coasting in an orbit of our own. Unless special steps are taken, such as whirling the space ship, the passengers will not notice any acceleration or gravity during this part of the trip. The sensation will be like that experienced in a falling elevator, or during a parachute jump.

THE FACT THAT astronomy is the most exact science known will help us immeasurably. The paths of the planets around the sun have been known for hundreds of years. All of the major planets travel almost in the same plane around the sun.

We will need some exact information from the astronomers before we take our journey, but that should not be too much of a problem. It will be a matter of selecting an orbit for our space ship which will intersect the orbit of Venus, and timing our take-off so that Venus will be at the proper point on its orbit when we arrive.

On the 116-day trip which I am discussing, the space ship will go half way around the sun, meeting Venus after a trip of almost 200 million miles.

It is primarily a matter of power. The 116-day trip is the most logical from a power standpoint. The earth travels almost in a circle about the sun, 93 million miles away. Venus is 67 million miles from the sun and its orbit is also nearly circular. Venus is therefore about 26 million miles from the earth when it is between us and the sun.

TO HEAD STRAIGHT for Venus at this time would require enough power at takeoff to counteract all of the earth's orbital speed. To stop still in space so that the sun's attraction would make us fall into Venus would require a speed relative to the earth of 66,600 miles per hour (the earth's orbital velocity.)

But because of the earth's attraction, a power cut-off speed of 71,000 miles per hour would be necessary. The 116-day trip only requires 25,000 mph at power cutoff.

To get this idea of stopping in space, imagine that you are standing on the back platform of a moving train and you drop a ball from the platform. To you, the ball will appear to drop slowly backward, but an observer on the ground by the tracks will see the ball moving very fast chasing the train.

If you toss the ball backward, the ground observer will see the ball move more slowly along the path of the train.

If you throw the ball backward at train speed, the ball will drop straight to the ground.

NOW IMAGINE THAT the train is the earth and the ball is the rocket ship. To drop straight down toward the sun, the rocket ship must take off backward at the earth's speed.

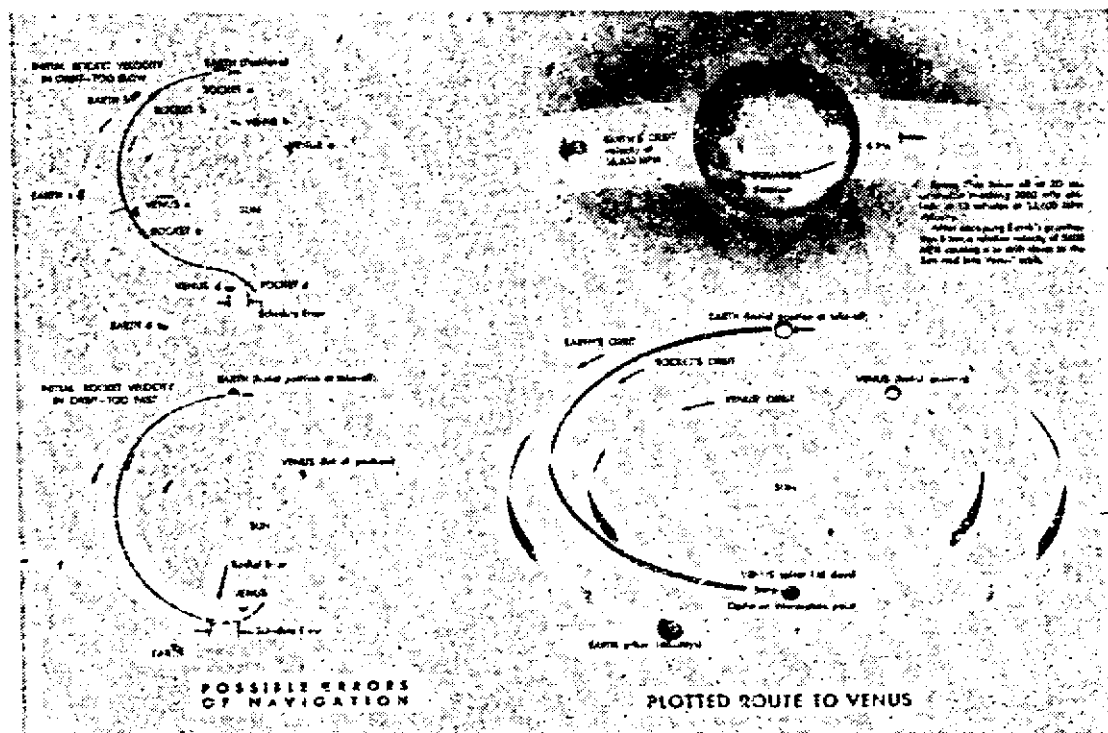

The earth travels around the sun like a ball on the end of a string. The gravitational attraction of the sun acts like the tension in the string, holding the earth in its orbit. The centrifugal force resulting from the earth's motion balances the sun's attraction, and keeps the earth from moving closer to the sun.

Both centrifugal force and gravitational attraction are proportioned to the mass weight of an object, so a rocket ship chasing the earth at the earth's speed would follow the earth's orbit.

To move in toward the orbit of Venus, we must reduce the centrifugal force by making the rocket ship move slower than the earth. Recalling the example of the ball thrown from the platform, the rocket ship must take off backward along the earth's orbit to go slower than the earth and drift in toward Venus. It will be necessary to use rockets or gyroscopes to turn the ship around if you want to approach Venus head on, as at this point the ship is traveling tail first through space.

THE SHIP IS STARTED on its journey at 6 p. m. because at that hour on the equator, the ship will take off back along the path of the earth in space. The faster we take off, the slower we move in space and the more rapidly we drift in toward the orbit of Venus.

Diagrams illustrate problems of plotting space ship's course from earth to Venus described in accompanying article by John Wuerth, who outlines interplanetary journey.

Yours Truly, Don Loper

By Don Loper

THE YEAR 2000 A. D. doesn't seem so far off as it once did. The world is moving faster every day and that date now is just a little beyond tomorrow.

This increasing speed will be the principal factor affecting fashions of the future. We are already entering the jet age; presumably in 44 years it will be the rocket age. But I don't think that will mean space suit and bubble helmet costumes for general wear.

Instead, the added speed and convenience in travel will abolish seasonal wear. There will be no need to dress to suit the climate when any climate desired is only a few hours away. We already have an indication of this with women now wearing linen in winter and velvet in summer.

More frequent traveling also means that people will tend to wear things which pack easily. I have been experimenting in traveling light, and I find one suit entirely adequate with an extra dinner jacket and pumps.

However, in order to do this you must settle on one color. I believe people in the future will find out more and more who they are and dress to suit their type. This means that women also must make up their minds which color is most suitable and stick to it.

BY THE YEAR 2000 I believe the first consideration in dressing will not be the occasion or the surroundings, but comfort. Specifically, I think more men will be wearing walking shorts.

However, I'm sure we will have to develop some kind of shorter jacket. A man wearing shorts with today's jacket looks like he has forgotten to put on his trousers.

The trend in women's clothing I am sure will be toward more feminine styles. It is heading in that direction today and I believe it will continue for the next 40 or 50 years. Mannish fashions have had their day.

Just as young people today are more aware of fashion than ever before, so will the young people of the coming New Century be style conscious. Furthermore, people will not get old as fast and young fashions will continue later in life.

Most of the present-day miracle materials will be replaced by newer and more miraculous developments from the chemistry laboratory. In keeping with our demands for casual comfort, these materials will be much lighter in weight and will fulfill the promise of our present "dip and hang" materials which need little pressing after washing.

MANNERS HAVE A GREAT effect on fashion, and I sincerely believe people are becoming nicer, and that therefore we will have better manners in the 21st Century.

And as long as we have manners there will be evening clothes. It is not good form to show up for dinner in blue jeans.

We go through periods in architecture, furniture and fashions. There are only so many basic designs in each field, and of necessity there must be some repetition as the cycle returns.

Just as men's clothing today is assuming familiar lines of the early 1920s, so you will find counterparts of the latest women's styles in the past. And there is no reason to suspect that today's black suit or dress may not be in style again in 2000 A. D.

One thing is certain—nobody will be able to force a fashion on the public of the future. Nobody yet has succeeded.

They tried last year to bring back the 1912 look. It fell flat on its bustle. And there was Dior with his "Little Boy" look.

I told them then the fad would be a bust.

This is the perfect dancing and theater costume for the year 2000. This is based on the theory that we are in the high point of fashion today.

In fashion history you will find about every fifty years, fashions reverse.

The gown is made in the sheerest of chiffon with a brocade bodice beaded in the design, worn with an enormous chiffon wool cape coat embroidered in the same beading as the bodice.

As long as we are trying for the moon . . . let us call the costume "MOON GLOW."

Story and Drawings

By Edward A. Killingsworth

A.I.A., Long Beach Architect

BY THE YEAR 2000, we shall have a new architecture—light and delicate but stronger than steel.

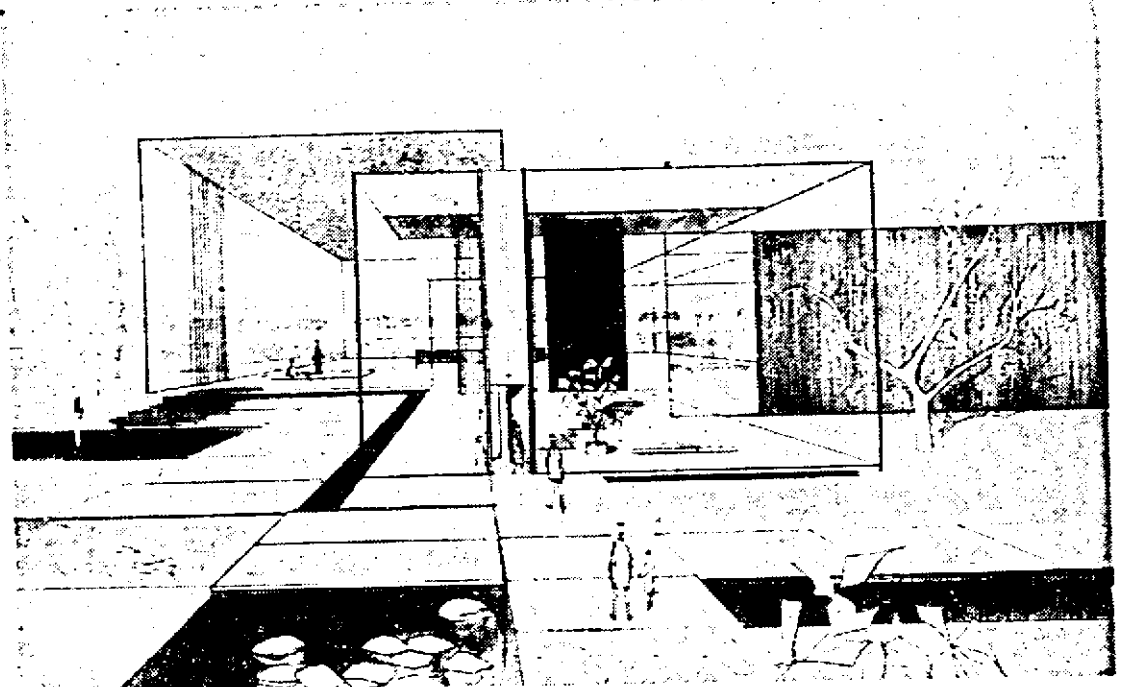

Irradiated materials will be used, and from them will come a whole new concept of form. Tremendous strength will be developed in molded plastic shapes and forms. This change will be more radical than the development from masonry to steel. The new architecture will not be tied to convention as architecture is now because of weight.

We vision multi-storied apartment type buildings, complete with the facilities of fine homes, privacy provided by large garden decks. These buildings we believe will be separated from each other by "garden belts"—large gardens and open areas.

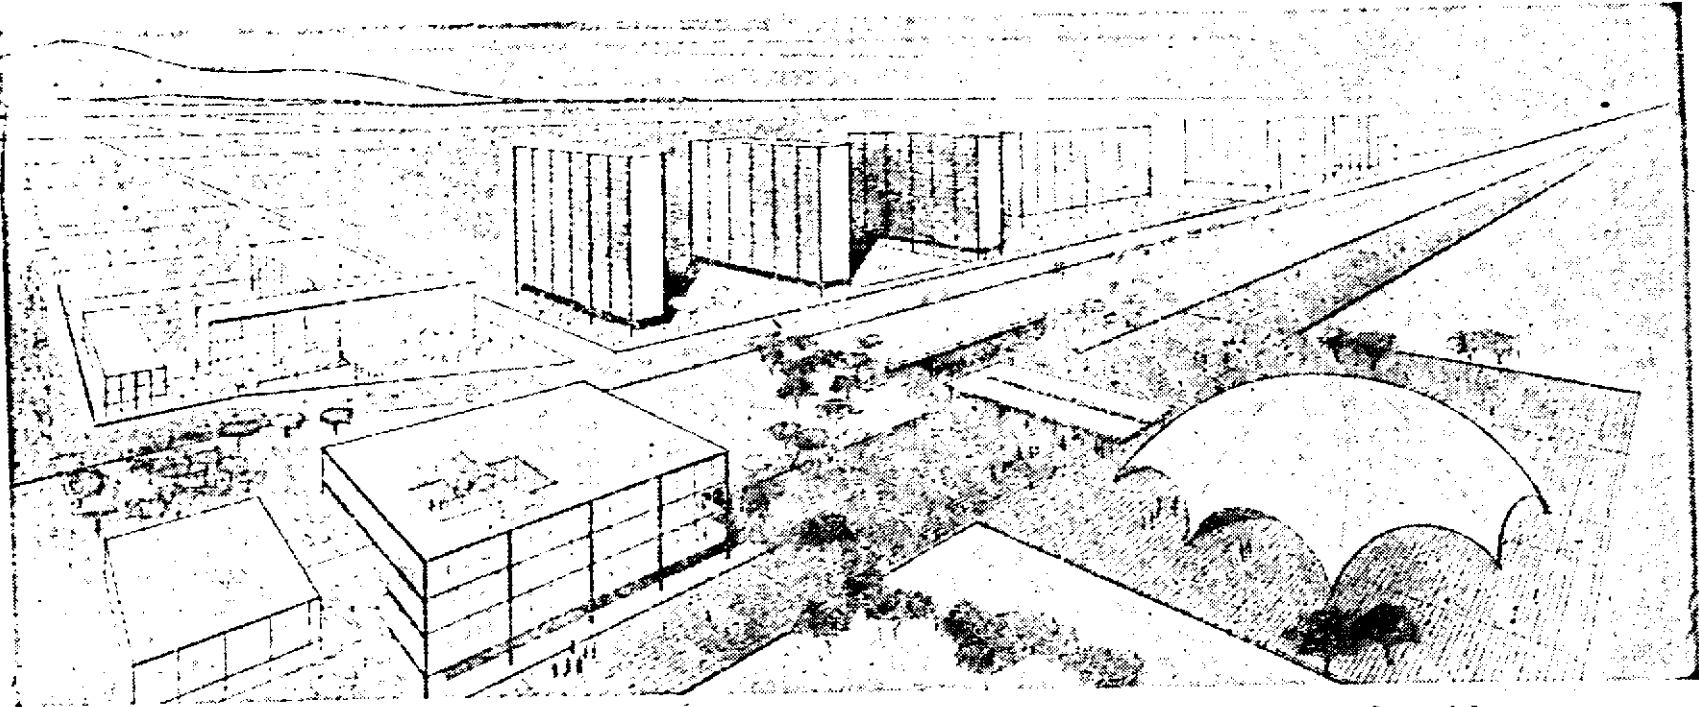

Homes will have an electronically controlled climate. This will eliminate the need for walls and roofs of dwellings. Screens will be used for privacy. Intruders will be kept out by electronic charge. Climate will be controlled by an electronic screen which can cut out light and control air and temperature.

Some home owners who object to the electronic screen will use plastic for their building material. This plastic will have an electronic charge sent through it which will provide varying degrees of capacity. Thus the buildings created with walls of this material will have varying degrees of openness or light as one wishes—with the flick of a switch.

Homes of 2000 AD, Killingsworth believes, will have electronically controlled climate, thus eliminating a need for walls, roofs. Screens will give privacy.

Architect Killingsworth envisions this scene on bluff at Junipero Ave. and Ocean Blvd. in 2000 AD. Lower left Art Center; lower right, recreational structure and in background, well-spaced multiple-story dwelling units.

Another possible development, says Killingsworth, will be an island off what is now Rainbow Pier with a luxury-type hotel and living quarters, with flying field. Such an island would be served from the shore by launches.

You're Going to Live Longer

WHAT WILL THE health situation be in the year 2000?

Barring the unpredictability of man's relation to man—in creating disaster, the year 2000 should find the world a better and healthier place for mankind.

At the beginning of the current century, men and women had an expected life span of about 49 years. At the present it is about 67 years for men and about 72 years for women. With the ushering in of the 21st century men and women may on the average expect to surpass the Biblical three score and 10 which is 70 years.

But it will not be enough merely to live longer. It is much more important to live comfortably, happily, and successfully. We hope that by the year 2000, civilization will have learned not only to increase man's life span, but to insure that his last years will be reasonably free from discomfort, and will be happy and useful.

IN THE YEAR 2000 we can confidently expect to have eliminated the infectious diseases, and that means even the common cold. Most persons tussle with a common cold three to four times a year. This "urchin" of diseases causes much wretchedness, exacts a tremendous toll on industry, and often so reduces a victim's resistance as to make him easy prey to some other and more serious disease.

We can expect to eliminate tuberculosis long before the year 2000. We already have come a long way in our efforts to control this disease. At the beginning of this century, tuberculosis, the No. 1 killer, was rightfully known as "the Captain of the Hosts of Death." The mortality at this time was in the neighborhood of 200 for every 100,000 population. Now, in Long Beach, the mortality from tuberculosis has been reduced to 5.3 per 100,000, which is an insignificant level. Over the state the tuberculosis mortality has been lowered to about 12 per 100,000 whereas nationally the figure is about 13 per 100,000.

THE NUMBER OF tuberculosis cases occurring has been decreased but not as dramatically. In Long Beach 65 cases per 100,000 population occur yearly. This compares favorably with 85 per 100,000 for the state and about 100 per 100,000 for the nation.

Long Beach accordingly rates far below the state and national level in the occurrence of tuberculosis, and deaths caused by it.

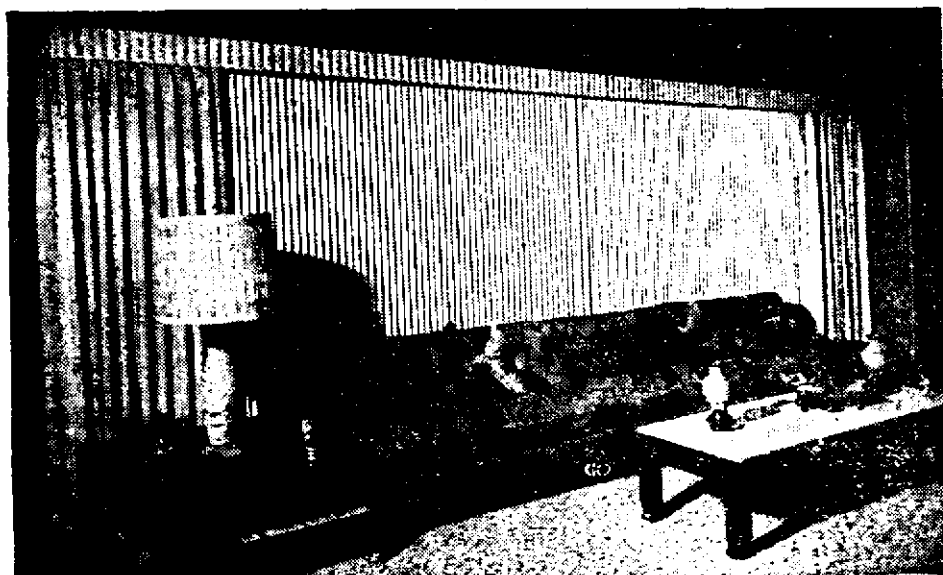

By the year 2000, polio will have been eliminated. In spite of current anxiety and unrest about the polio vaccine, it is a perfectly safe and effective procedure. Thus we believe that polio will be eliminated and relegated to obscurity as have smallpox, diphtheria, cholera, plague, yellow fever, and other infectious diseases for which effective vaccines have been developed.

WE HOPE THAT by the year 2000, we will be able to detect cancer (now the No. 2 killer) long before symptoms are manifest and before the cancer cells can damage the body. With increasing knowledge of the biochemistry of the normal and malignant cells, we can anticipate the development of a blood test that will with great accuracy be able to detect the presence of these cells. We can also anticipate that current research will produce radio-active isotopes that may be injected into the blood stream, searching and destroying the cancer cell wherever it may be.

We have good reason to hope that by the year 2000, we shall (Continued on Page 20)

Contra-Deterio Age Equation

By Garald Lagard

Illustration by Clyde Winslow

I WAS BORN on November 4, 1956, and that would make me 41 in this year 2,000 except for the Contra-Deterio Age Equation which keeps me, and everybody else, just half his true number of years. So I'm 22, and it's tough to be Junior Rocket Dispatcher at the Long Beach Rocket Port, when the Senior Dispatcher doesn't retire on Social Security until he's 130. At 90, Pete Buffle is a legal 45, if you follow me. But you had better follow Pete; nine times out of ten he would lead you to the doll of the interplanetary switch board, just off the hard-top apron of the rocket launching island within the Long Beach breakwater. That doll is Elsie, once voted the female least apt to be affected by U 235, her own temperature being right up there with that of a rocket after-burner.

While Pete is free to spend most of his time in Elsie's office, I have to keep my eyes and fingers on the rows of planetary radar-latch buttons, which will release passenger and freight rockets and send them faster than you-know-what to their destinations. But this does not keep me from thinking about Elsie, and about Pete who would have been 30 years old except for that Independence Day in 1976 when everybody was supposed to get independence from old age.

I WAS AT CAL TECH THEN. I was 20 years old and with a head filled with equations, until I got thirsty and took a drink of that Cal Tech fountain water. After that I would not have known a quondam gerionic-compendium if one grabbed me by the throat. Half my age fell away; I was only 10 years old and I wanted it to be recess so I could play marbles for keeps.

I'm not a bio-chemist; I didn't know that Cal Tech experts had been working with isotopes for years, on the theory that if the nerve force in animals could be strengthened through regression, the life span could be lengthened accordingly. And they came up with this Contra-deterio, and they chose Independence Day to spike the Cal Tech water system with it, and they wound up with a class of seniors who flunked long division. It cut your age right in half, even though you looked the same. But it also cut your mental and emotional age in half.

That was the start of the Contra-Deterio Age Equation, and soon they had it all over the world, and you could carry Contra-deterio concentrate with you to any planet you had to visit. It worked all over the solar system, except on the new planet Theta. Nothing worked on Theta. Nor did anybody. It was our penal planet. We put social offenders in a rocket ship, set the radar latch for Theta and let it go. True, there were other people on Theta, those who preferred the old fashion life time. You got old on Theta. Sometimes, when you got into Theta's orbit, you had been dead for years. But that was a calculated risk.

PETE WAS MOONING around Elsie, and I busied myself in the control room. I fired a few rockets off to Mars and Venus, and then I just looked idly out the window at the hard-top. Then I yelled through the loud-speaker.

"You get away from those launching pits!" It was Marilyn, skipping rope again, right at the pit lips that were still hot from burner blasts. But she just stuck her tongue out at me. Her dad was a rocket super, and they had to live on the island. She was only 11 years old, but that was her Contra-deterio age. She always wore scents and a Y shirt, and she looked a full 22. (Y shirts were called T shirts in the old days, but when you saw Marilyn in one of them you knew right away why they changed the letter!)

That kid looked like a girl in a picture in the ready room of the space pilots. That picture must have been over 50 years old, and somebody had written on it in old fashioned script, "Mrs. Arthur Miller." Nobody remembered who she was, but Marilyn looked like her, except that the girl in the picture wore no clothes at all.

PETE CAME IN WHISTLING. That only showed the lipstick smear more clearly. Pete unpackered, then said, "Richie, old boy, Elsie is going to be mine."

"Congratulations," I mumbled, looking at that lipstick. I knew what it tasted like; I had done all right with Elsie, until she decided she wanted an "older man." So I asked, "When?" fiddling with the bank of rocket release switches. One was a bit tight, and I adjusted the clearances. You had to operate those switches manually, hold them in dual release with both hands, after you had punched the radar planetary fix button.

"Day after tomorrow," Pete said, his wrinkled face set in a broad smile. "Then we'll honeymoon on Mars. And you'll be Chief Rocket Dispatcher until I get back on the job."

"Fine! Fine!" I said. I couldn't go to the wedding. I launched rockets all day, until there were only two in the pits. They were both small ones that the executives used on interplanetary business. I went down the lift to check the one for Pete and Elsie, and there was a big sign painted on it, "JUST MARRIED!" I went back to the control room, just in time to see the wedding party get out of the Yellow Copter Cabs. I groaned. Elsie was beautiful. Marilyn was skipping rope, as usual, right there on the hardtop apron.

"GET BACK!" I YELLED at her. "I'm going to fire a rocket." She went on skipping rope.

"Watch me do red-hot pepper!" she yelled, and she did red-hot pepper. That kid. . . . There was something about her. . . .

Pete and Elsie came into the control room on their way to the lift. Pete looked proud and happy. I put a hand on Elsie's shoulder and kissed her. She kissed me back with enthusiasm, and a numbness crept over me.

"Wish us luck, Richie!" Elsie said.

So I wished them luck, and watched them enter the lift. When Pete's voice came through the speaker, I was looking at a planetary radar lock. And it wasn't Mars. My hands touched the release switches for Theta. If Elsie wanted an "older man," I would see that she got one. And I would be chief dispatcher. My finger went to the Theta button. It would be fun to send Elsie off on a honeymoon, with Pete, and then have him become 90 years old in the orbit of Theta. And she would be only 42. . . . Then I shook my head. I just could not risk killing good old Pete. In the pre-contra-deterio age, Pete might not have survived to become 90 years old. And Elsie would get to Theta with a corpse for a bridegroom. I walked slowly to the Mars switches, pushed the radar latch button and closed and held the switches.

"CLEAR FOR FIRING!" I called, and the rumbling of the rocket shook the hard-top. Marilyn skipped out of blast range just in time and the Mars-bound rocket rose with a massive thrust and was gone.

Marilyn was skipping red-hot pepper again. That kid; I just couldn't take my eyes off her. Then I knew why Elsie's kiss had numbed me. That kid down there, skipping red-hot pepper in her scents and Y shirt. My eyes went bleary. She was only 11 years old! She was against the law! I tried to get my mind off her by looking over the banks of switches, the rows of radar locks. I pushed the idea of her away with all my might. But it was no use. Even if she was against the law, and even if she could get me killed, I just had to have her.

"Marilyn!" I called through the loud-speaker, and my voice was hoarse. "Come up here, will you? Come on, Marilyn," I urged.

When she came into the control room, skipping along with that rope, I looked out of the window cautiously. There was not a soul in sight. I turned to Marilyn and took her hand.

"You—you want to take a little rocket trip, honey?" I asked her. "We'll just blast around, and be home by dinner time."

MARILYN SQUEEZED my hand trustingly, and cried, "Oh, goodie, goodie, Richie! I'd love to."

I was beginning to sweat as I led her to the switch bank. I pushed the radar lock, and then I took Marilyn's jump rope.

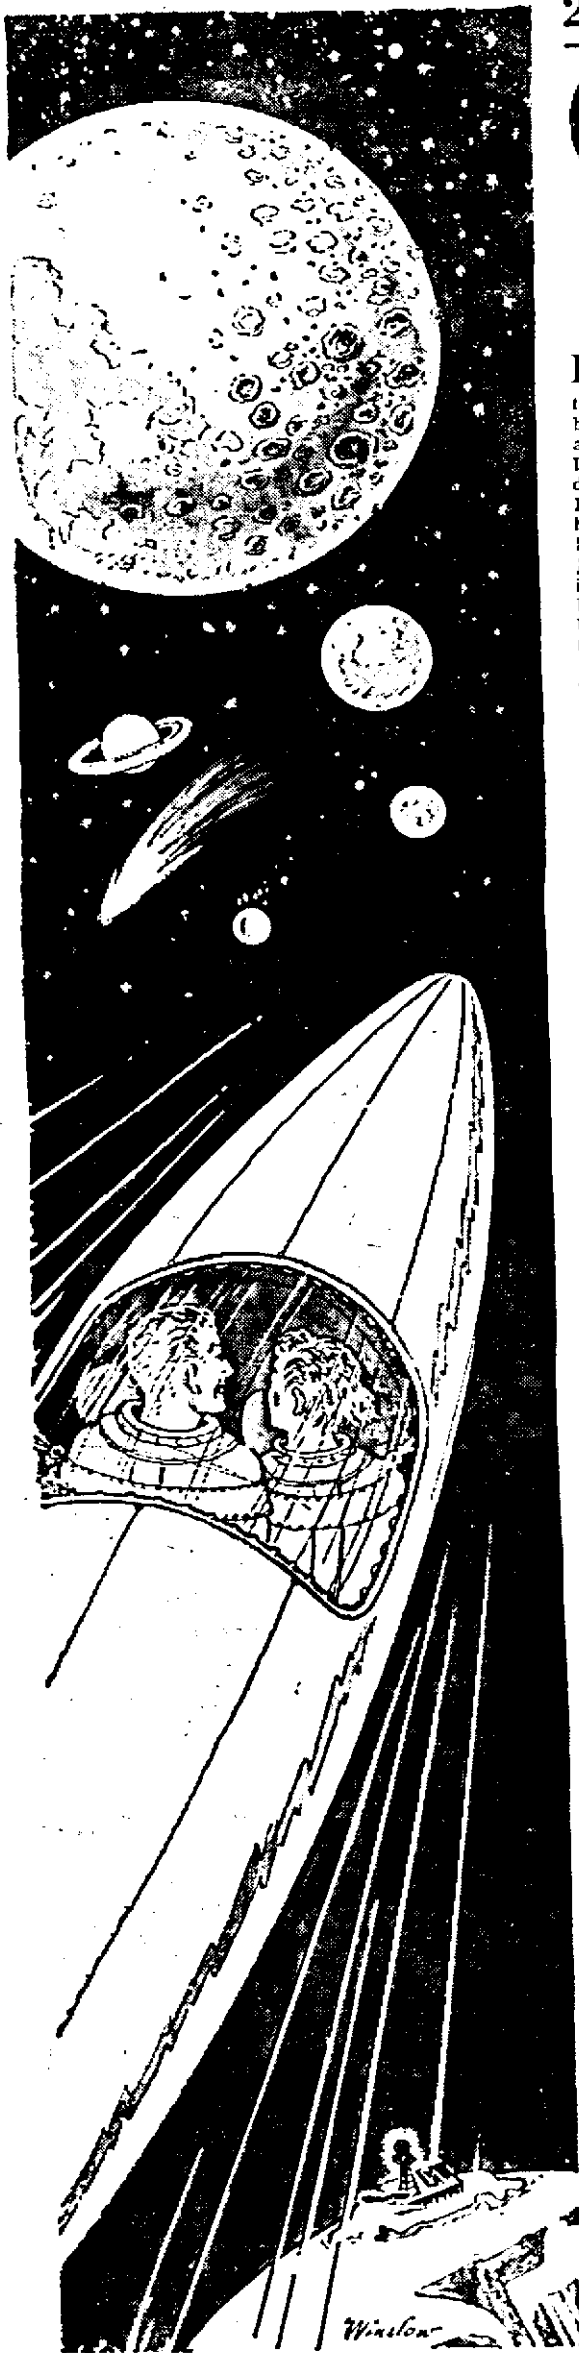

"That's my good jump rope," Marilyn began, but I shushed her with, "You won't need it, honey."

I tied the two switches together, and the rocket in the pit began to shudder. I led Marilyn hurriedly into the lift. We reached the waiting rocket and I pulled the door toggles. Marilyn giggled in excitement as I sealed the hatch inside. I strapped her tightly to me. This was a one-man rocket and the only place she could be was with the pilot. My hands trembled as I surveyed the instrument panel. Everything was positive, and I freed the thrust lever. I held my breath and snapped the rocket out of the pit, and we were thrusting free.

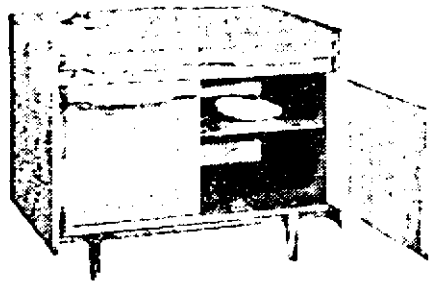

AS WE MOVED THROUGH space I began to worry. I saw a rain of spice pellets through the free-field, striking the sturdy skin of the rocket. That was just to take my mind off the altimeter. I held tightly to Marilyn's hand. There was nothing else to do, until we entered the orbit of the planet. It would not be long, at this speed. I began to freeze in the seat. Soon I would know about me, anyway. And then I'd find out about Marilyn. I looked at the altimeter, and then back at Marilyn. A strange look was on her face. She looked down at her scents and Y shirt, and a full-blown blush spread over her lovely face. She tried to free her hand from mine. She tried to wriggle away from me. But that belt was tight.

"Marilyn!" I pleaded. "Look at me, honey!"

She looked at me, her eyes wide and her lips trembling. And I felt wonderful! There had never been anything wrong with me. And I saw Marilyn's eyes close as I kissed her. We were safely into Theta's orbit, and we were through forever with the Contra-Deterio Age Equation.

"I held my breath and snapped the rocket out of the pit. We were thrusting free."

The Judge Will Still Be Right!

By Blaine Nels Simons
Attorney-at-Law

- Drawing by Diane Demack

WEBSTER, tackling the Herculean job of defining "law," says it is "the binding customs or practice of the community." Room provided, he might also have added that Congress and legislatures make the law, attorneys advocate clients' interests in seeking redress and protection of the law, and the courts enforce and explain the law.

Brief though these descriptions may be of the entire field of the law, they give hint to the perplexities involved in predicting the law as it will be in the year 2000. A well-known Los Angeles judge, upon recent inquiry summed up the thoughts of all of those engaged in the legal field by saying, "Law in the year 2000! I hardly know what it will be in 1957!"

THE JUDGE IS RIGHT. Each year 48 state legislatures, Congress and multifold administrative agencies pour forth hundreds of thousands of new laws and amendments of old. Likewise, courts each year across the land must interpret these new laws and alter former decisions. And all of this is caused by the fact that civilization progresses and, with progress, must have new laws to govern it. New inventions, changes in public opinion, accepted new ideas of life—all are required to be predicted before the law itself can be predicted. For the law, like a tireless angel, faithfully follows these patterns set by the public, for whom laws are made.

Some localized fields within the general scope of the law can, however, be hesitantly predicted if historical background and apparently public acceptance can be trusted. Asking the reader not to look me up in the year 2000 with this copy of SOUTHLAND, I predict:

THE JURY SYSTEM: Maligned by some, juries are, however, here to stay. Heavily prevailing throughout among courts and attorneys is that the jury system is by and large a worthwhile part of our judicial system. With the continued increase in volume of cases, though, has come a slow-up in numbers of available jurors due to reluctance by some to accept jury duty. I predict, then, that to keep available an adequate supply of jurors, and also to speed up calendars, that six-person juries, instead of 12, will be the prevailing custom in most states in the year 2000. In olden days the number was greater than 12; there was some dispute that 12 were sufficient a number but this was accepted. The same arguments will be presented for cutting to six, but this will become accepted.

DIVORCE LAWS: What a completely diversified set of divorce laws exist in the 48 states today! By 2000 the Federal Congress, slowly but surely moving into more and more fields formerly governed by states alone, will control divorce laws. There will be but one divorce law for the entire country. Grounds for divorce will be on a middle ground between the easiest and hardest sets today; "mental cruelty," so termed by many states today, will become "incompatibility" under the national law. Residence for divorce will probably be six months in the state where same is being filed. The interlocutory decree, familiar to California residents, will be a part of this national law, though the "waiting period" will be cut to six months instead of a year. Generally speaking, divorces will be a bit harder to obtain but once obtained law will have progressed to a point where court orders will be allowed to be more adequately enforced.

COURTS AND JUDGES: By 2000 available courtrooms will almost be able to handle the volume of cases to be tried; now, courtroom adequacy is woefully behind. Governing bodies will also have created enough new positions for more judges that available judges will also be able to meet the case load; today there are just not enough judges to handle the work. By 2000 also, the public, through their legislatures, will reflect a new concern and appreciation in the value of a dollar, and finally create adequate salaries for judges and court attaches; they are presently underpaid as well as overworked.

TAX LAWS COURTS: If you are perplexed by taxes now, you will become apoplectic in 2000. Each year new methods of taxation are found, new fields to invade. Each decade taxes will be higher than the decade before. We blame everybody from Internal Revenue to the President for this and often forget it is the public who sets its own taxes through its elected officials. Let us accept then the fact that 1956 taxes and tax laws will be horse-and-buggy stuff compared to those of 2000. To meet taxes, which will then effect everyone, new tax courts will spring up throughout the land to handle tax complaints and litigation. The government, through this new system of courts and easing of requirements to get into court, will make up for its taxes by allowing the taxpayer more leeway and better chance to "tell the judge or jury" about taxes—as he can about other matters today. Attorneys specializing in tax laws alone will number one in every five lawyers; today they may be only one in a hundred.

COURT CALENDARS: New York State's trial calendar is supposedly four years behind today—four years' average from time of filing suit to date of trial. California's varies, depending on the size of the county. Los Angeles County, of course, is behind the others but well ahead of New York; again as to this, the public must shoulder much of the blame for not seeing to it that its legislatures provide more courtrooms, judges and attaches. As said earlier, however, they will have done this by 2000. A really hazardous guess as to Los Angeles County would be that average trials in 2000 A.D. will come within six months after filing of suit. Personal injury suits comprise the greatest number of actions on the dockets today. The number of these filed will diminish, however, as the time until trial is cut and cut; more of these cases will be settled. Juries may also be apprised, by 2000, as to whether a defendant in these cases does or does not have insurance, though it is doubtful the amount will be divulged; this also will cut down an amount of litigation. The feeling that will lead to this rule is growing slowly as, each year, laws requiring liability insurance become more stringent.

SMALL CLAIMS COURTS: In 2000 suits up to $200 will be filed in these courts in Los Angeles County; limit now is $100. Every court will have a judge sitting full time to hear these cases.

PROBATE OF ESTATES: New laws and rules will make this a more technical field than it is today. More judges and courtroom space will, however, speed matters up in probates despite the new maze of laws which the court must interpret.

ATTORNEYS FEES: Higher—but so will income be for the general public. The public, through increased public relations on the part of bar associations, will come better to know and understand fees charged by attorneys.

The opinions expressed in this article should not be considered the opinion or belief of anyone else, living or dead. The writer gives you only his own personal thoughts, some of which may not even be personally favored. In the end, however, laws and courts in 2000 will be as the reader wants them to be for, as part of the general public, his opinions and ideas will make the very laws by which he is governed. To predict this is easy for, after a look around at other systems, the public is well satisfied with democracy—where everyone governs—and anyone can predict what law and courts will be like in the year 2000.

HOLLYWOOD

The International Beauty Brigade

Hollywood searches the far corners of the world in quest of beautiful and talented girls. MGM Studio alone has imported an international beauty brigade that includes ten countries, ranging from Japan to tiny Switzerland. Ten of these beauties from the ten different nations are glamorizing ten different pictures with their beauty of face and figure and their grace and performing ability. This continuing beauty search is self-evident testimony that Hollywood is always striving to build up the quality of its productions and to give the fans glamour and variety. On this page are some examples to prove the point in mind.

From England comes Deborah Kerr, appearing next in "Tea and Sympathy," in which Miss Kerr starred on the Broadway stage.

Loveliness of Italian girls is brought to the American screen by Pier Angeli, who contributes charm to "Somebody Up There."

Taina Elg from Finland's Royal Ballet is featured player in "Gaby." Soon after film was completed, she became mother of a boy.

Anna Kashfi from India makes film debut in "Don't Go Near the Water," humorous movie based on a novel with a Navy background.

Parisian Cinderella is Leslie Caron whose talents in Paris ballet won her a chance in films. Her latest movie is "Les Girls."

Elizabeth Mueller, beautiful Swiss-born actress, makes her American debut with Robert Taylor in "The Power and the Prize."

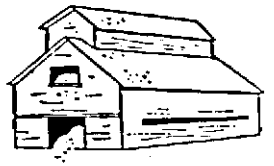

The sultry girl friend of James Cagney in "Tribute to a Bad Man" is Irene Papas, who received her dramatic training in Greece.

Machiko Kyo distinguished herself in many films in Japan before getting U. S. chance in MGM's "The Teahouse of the August Moon."

NO MONEY DOWN EXPERT WORKMANSHIP

AFTER 12 YEARS OF RESEARCH AT A LEADING UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL, MEDICAL SCIENCE FINDS A WAY TO—

Correct constipation without laxatives!

Regutol works on an entirely new non-laxative principle—not irritating, not habit-forming. By softening dry, hard waste in the colon, Regutol corrects a major cause of constipation and establishes regularity... more surely and safely than any laxative can!

▶ If you have to take a laxative—magnesia, oil, salt or bulk—once a week or more, knowing about new, clinically-proved REGUTOL may change your whole life.

Here's why: In most people with bowel irregularity, waste in the colon dries out and hardens. And the drier the waste, the more difficult elimination becomes!

Major Cause of Constipation

REGUTOL's active ingredient, dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate, is the answer to medical science's search for a way to correct this major cause of constipation—without laxatives! It is not a laxative—can't bring on the "laxative habit." REGUTOL works on a completely new, non-laxative principle!

Tiny, golden REGUTOL tablets simply act to moisten and soften dry, hard colonic waste. Then your own peristalsis (muscular contraction of the intestine) promotes normal elimination without unnatural urgency. REGUTOL is so safe that it is recommended for children and expectant mothers.

Promotes Continued Regularity

Because REGUTOL is not a laxative, it is not intended for immediate or overnight constipation relief. But in 2 to 7 days' time, REGUTOL will prove to you that it relieves and prevents constipation—and establishes continued bowel regularity—as no laxative can!

Simply take 1 REGUTOL tablet twice daily until normal bowel action is restored. Thereafter, take 1 REGUTOL tablet once a day, as needed, to prevent return of constipation resulting from dryness of colonic waste.

Get a bottle of revolutionary new REGUTOL at your drug store today. Two sizes—Regular, 30 tablets, only $1.00; Economy, 100 tablets, $2.75.

Who especially should take Regutol?

- Anyone who now uses a laxative frequently.
- Older people—also new or expectant mothers—for whom constipation is a common problem.
- Hemorrhoids sufferers—to maintain easy, gentle regularity.

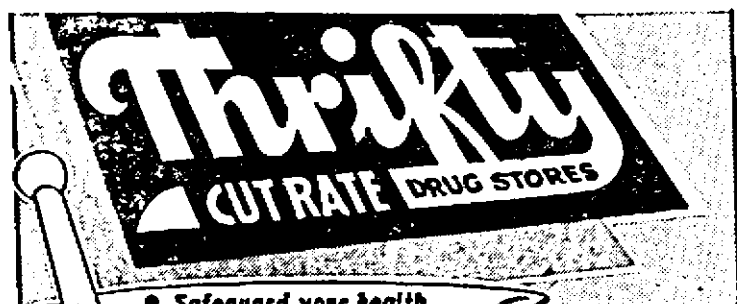

Advantages of Regutol over laxatives:

- Regutol promotes normal, regular elimination...without unnatural urgency.
- It does not irritate the intestine, add bulk or cause gassy fullness.
- It does not upset the stomach.
- It contains no laxative drug...is not habit forming.
- It establishes continued regularity...more surely and safely than any laxative can!

Veal and Lima Casserole requires a minimum of preparation and little watching, but it's invariably a hit when served with salad, rolls and fresh fruit.

Veal and Lima Bean Casserole

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

"VOTE . . . you lucky Americans" . . . is a prize-winning election slogan . . . and truly a worthy one. "Think, while you vote" could be another worthy one, too!

And not only should the wise and busy housewife be thinking about "how to vote" but about "what to eat." Naturally it should be a simple, hearty recipe which requires a minimum of preparation and little watching, such as Veal and Lima Casserole. This robust ragout simmers on top of the stove (or in an electric skillet)—and 25 minutes will do it.

Serve it with a salad, warm brown 'n' serve rolls and a bowl of fresh fruit for dessert. The whole family will cast a solid vote for this menu.

Veal and Lima Casserole

- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 pound veal steak (1/2 inch thick), cut in 4 pieces
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 medium onion, sliced (1/2 cup)
- 1/4 green pepper, slivered (1/4 cup)
- 2 1/2 cups (No. 2 can) tomatoes and juice
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- Pinch of basil or oregano
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1 package (10 ounces) quick-frozen lima beans

Mix flour and pepper and pound into veal steak. Brown veal in hot oil in skillet. Add onion, green pepper, tomatoes and juice, garlic, basil, and salt. Cover and simmer until veal is almost tender—about 25 minutes. Then add lima beans, cover, and simmer until veal and beans are tender—about 20 minutes; stir occasionally. If mixture seems too dry, add a little water. Makes 4 servings.

Thaw lima beans just enough to separate. If desired, use quick-frozen baby lima beans.

Like a Country Cousin in the City

By Eileen Ball

ARCHITECTURALLY speaking, the pretty cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Karste is a little like a country cousin visiting in the city . . . except that its "visit" has been an extended stay of 25 years.

The little house has occupied its lot at 5481 The Toledo all that time, adding a particular note of quaintness to the pretty street it attends. Through this quarter-century it has retained its original feeling of modest sturdiness that neither a succession of occupants nor redecorating efforts ever has quite erased.

The Karstes bought the house last March, finding in it a home they could love. They liked its staunch brick walls, its heavy woodwork, its little welcoming fireplace. They loved its shady, lacy pepper trees, its shy withdrawal from the street. The house had a feeling of calm which seemed to reflect itself in their serenity. When they decided to add onto the house, it was their intent to build a room which would enhance the original structure and in no way "mock" it with incompatible modernness. The house — with its addition — now has a comfortable total of 1,300 square feet.

MUCH OF the original structure was brick. This has been painted pure white on the exterior. The new addition is faced with rough, vertical redwood siding painted rich barn red. A great deal of the house's charm centers around its old-fashioned porch—a small, roofed "sitting spot" overlooking a brilliant green lawn dotted with old-fashioned flower beds. The yard is enclosed with a low and rustic fence of grapestake.

A front door of thick, extra-heavy wood planks (still sporting its original black iron hardware) opens off the little porch directly into the living room. This area has a cool and substantial feeling with its combined brick and paneled walls, heavy dark brown beams and quaint windows. A small fireplace is situated at the far end of the room, seated in a shoulder of white brick, faced 'round its opening with a border of red brick.

Cocoa carpet — together with paneling painted sandalwood — contributes warmth to the room. Adding accent are a sofa in a deep brown and black flecked linen fabric, a pair of gold wing chairs flanking the fireplace, a coral club chair and a handsome occasional chair covered in ice turquoise tweed.

LIVING ROOM windows have received an unusual treatment with drapery fabric (a gold and turquoise print on white) tied back in informal swags. Antiques have been used to accessorize the scheme, finding in this quaint little house an ideal background. A little desk

Spacious kitchen features pine table cabinets; pink and grey "marble" tops service counters.

Heavy brown beams combine with thick walls to give the Gilbert Karste home a cool and ultra-substantial air. Pretty cottage looks rural in pleasant way.

Gilbert Karste home is painted barn red and sparkling white; small structure was expanded only last March.

and a chair upholstered in gold needlepoint stand between the front door and the fireplace, the grouping lighted by a "wired" kerosene lamp. Over this are open bookshelves in dark brown wood, built into a niche in the wall which undoubtedly, at one time, was a window opening.

The placement of the sofa across the living room serves to shorten the long area. Behind it is a small piano standing before a window overlooking the front garden.

French doors, their glass panes dressed with white marquisette hour-glass curtains, open to a secluded little patio surfaced in red brick.

OFF THE living room is the new den-guest room. It, too, opens to the patio. Drapery fabric for the sliding glass doors and the corner windows overlooking the front yard is an interesting copper-colored linen fabric. Blending harmoniously are spreads for the two day beds made of copper and gold tweed. Oatmeal-tweed carpet, walls paneled in ponderosa pine and a massive marble-topped cocktail table complete the scheme.

The kitchen, two steps higher in level than the rest of the house, is spacious and tasteful. Its pine cabinets have been stained dark tobacco brown to match the house's interior woodwork and fitted with copper hardware. A copper hood has been installed over the built-in cook surface. Sink tops are of marble-patterned plastic in tones of pale pink and grey. Delicious pink spatter linoleum makes a rosy "underfooting." The dinette area is large enough to accommodate a large round pine table and a company of captains' chairs. The wallpaper is white with gray '90s figures portrayed in colors of rose, pink, royal blue and golds. Over the table hangs an adjustable light-fashioned like a squatly copper teakettle.

THE MASTER bedroom is off a short hallway leading from the kitchen and past the teal blue and pale yellow bathroom.

The bedroom is a picture of quaint charm with its white and butter yellow flecked paper, its yellow and white striped linen canopy bed. The bed—an oversized affair—has had its old-fashioned white iron headboard fashioned from the welding-together of an old head and foot of a brass bed. Finials on the bed are little brass-plated eagles—tiny souvenirs of a past era.

The bedspread—as well as the high canopy—is made of the buttery-colored striped linen. Built-ins (as old as the house itself) have been painted the same sunny hue. Old brass lamps have shades of starched white organdy, adding the final fillip to this attractive room.

 know more about the cause of heart disease, our No. 1 man killer. We shall, I am sure, develop more effective drugs and other methods to bring this disease under control.

Now, the No. 3 killer—accidents. More persons between ages of 1 to 25 die from accidents than any other cause. We hope through education, awareness, and use of safety measures, we will be able to reduce accidents, and remember all accidents are wholly preventable.

IT IS TO BE expected that the great group of crippling and disabling arthritic and rheumatic diseases will be brought under control.

Venereal disease—I am afraid will never be eliminated entirely with drugs, though effective anti-biotics, such as penicillin, have reduced dramatically the occurrence of this disease. Drugs will not be enough. Ultimate victory lies in family life education and the strengthening of the family as an important social unit. Having developed sound family living, we will have little to worry about VD.

New about mental illness—Our No. 1 health problem. One person in 10, we are told, can expect during the course of a lifetime, to be a patient of a mental hospital as a result of a major mental disorder.

When we further recognize that crime, delinquency, alcoholism, and psychosomatic illness is attributed to poor mental health, the problem of mental illness is staggering.

THE DEVELOPMENT of a number of tranquilizing drugs such as chlorpromazine and those of the Rauwolfia group have and are helping the seriously mentally ill patients in bringing them back to reality so they may be effectively treated. However the need for more well-trained professional people to deal with this tremendous problem is very acute.

In the year 2000 we believe the remaining hazards connected with childbirth will be eliminated. Most of them are gone now. A mother has not died in childbirth in Long Beach for many years. This is an excellent record of progress made by medical science.

But the new babies—that is something else again. We have found that the most hazardous period in an individual's life is the first week—especially the first 24 to 48 hours. If he can safely live through this period the chances are good that he will reach the normal expectancy of living. The normal full term baby has little difficulty, but the problem infant is the one born prematurely. Too little is as yet known about prematurity. The causes of infants' deaths are continuously being studied by the doctors in this community with the view of prevention.

From a health standpoint, mankind has much to expect and hope for as we progress in the second half of this century. Let us pray that this progress to benefit humanity shall not be marred by man himself—unfortunately, a vaccine to eliminate the virus of war is outside of medical fields.

the machine, in which supersonic vibrations will take the place of today's tub-type agitator.

Supersonic gear also will be used in dry-cleaning processes. High-pitched sound waves, above the normal hearing range of the individual, will cause dirt particles to literally drop off the fabric.

While Mrs. Jones is doing her wash in absentia, she can turn on the television set in her living room, switch to the ultra high frequency educational channel and continue work on her college degree.

THE TELEVISION SET—with quality comparable to mid-20th century wide screen, color transmission—occupies a large picture frame on the wall, out of the way when it's not in use.

After the class, Mrs. Jones plans to catch the monorail into downtown Long Beach to do some shopping.

Come supper time, Mrs. Jones will slip a frozen steak, French fries and pie into her short wave cooking range. It'll be the work of a few seconds.

AND IF MR. JONES is going to be late, all he'll have to do is to take his transistorized radiophone out of his shirt pocket and call home. Mr. Jones will be able to carry the radiophone in his pocket because it will be the size of a pack of cigarettes.

However, if the man of the house intends to use the alibi that freeway traffic is snarled, he'd better come up with a more believable story. After all, Mrs. Jones will know that freeway traffic is controlled by an underground electronic cable that regulates a built-in automatic "pilot" in the family sedan.

THE FAMILY CAR is a story in itself.

The Jones' atomic-powered Meteoric 8 was built in Detroit by "automation," a word that just now is finding its way into our dictionaries. When it was shipped from the factory, it was painted a neutral white. And with the car came a device which made it possible to paint the body any color the Jones' chose, through use of controlled electro-magnetic radiation.

The Joneses are highly pleased with their Meteoric 8—and so are the traffic cops. The Meteoric 8, like the other models of the day, has electronic governors which prevent it from following other cars too closely; when the electronic eye sees an electronic stop sign or speed limit warning, it automatically adjusts engine speed to order.

GETTING BACK to the Joneses themselves—

They're more intelligent people than their ancestors. Controlled atomic background radiation has increased their mental capacity.

For Mrs. Jones, the tedium of housework has been reduced by her electronic aids.

Mr. Jones' industrial job is made easier, through automation.

They have more free time, more ways in which to spend it. They're saving their money, perhaps looking forward to their planned visit to Mars when passenger space travel begins in the next few years.

SOUND FANTASTIC!

Ten years ago, yes. But technology has moved so rapidly in the past decade that some of these guesses of the year 2000 now seem conservative.

We've come a long way on the highway of science. Today we know nothing is impossible.

You're Going to Get There Fast

Monorails, such as this one in Houston, may be common in 2000. They will travel at high speed

By Henry E. Jordan

Chief Engineer and Secretary
Bureau of Franchise and Public Utilities

IT IS EVIDENT from our history of civilization that speed has been an important factor. Generally speaking, those nations have advanced furthest in speed of transportation if their people have been the leaders in world affairs.

Because of the shortness of the human life span, man apparently has been motivated to develop increasing speeds that will enable him to accomplish and experience more and more within that span.

In less than 200 years, the United States has gained world leadership in all phases of transportation and outstanding leadership in world affairs.

I VISUALIZE the following modes of surface transportation for our people in the year 2000:

1. Foot transportation for short distances.
2. Small, individually powered vehicles of limited passenger capacity privately owned and operated for use over public streets and roads, where such flexibility is needed for business or pleasure.
3. Medium-speed public transit vehicles for hire of varied capacities, operated over surface streets and roads through residential areas for transporting people between their homes and their respective places of business and interests.

4. High-speed public transit vehicles with high rates of acceleration and deceleration operated over special rights of way on rails below the street surfaces.

5. High-speed rail vehicles similar to the subway equipment operated on elevated special ways above street surfaces.

6. Perhaps, high-speed monorails above the street surface. All such special ways fanning out radially from our most congested business areas and joined together by concentric transit lines connecting the radial lines at greater and greater outlying points.

7. Public transit rubber tired vehicles suitable for operation over street surfaces, freeways and elevated special ways in congested areas.

8. And lastly, moving sidewalks to transport dense groups of people for short distances to stations or points where they may board the wheel type high speed vehicles for distribution to outlying areas.

IN THE YEAR 2000, I visualize the following modes of air transportation:

1. The small capacity privately owned airplane, both propeller and jet type, used by individuals or small groups for pleasure and business where such flexibility is needed for either choice of destination or time of travel.

2. Small capacity, privately owned helicopters powered by both reciprocating and jet engines, used similarly to the privately owned airplanes.

3. Public transportation airplanes of varying capacities of 50 to 250 or more passengers, operating between cities on this continent and to those of other continents. These will vary in their comfort and appointments to meet the public demand from the condensed seating arrangement to the commodious luxury type at premium fares, somewhat similar to the present difference of the short haul train day coaches and the luxurious compartment and parlor car arrangements of the transcontinental Pullman cars.

4. Public transportation helicopters of varying capacities between 10 and 50 passengers for short haul service between the central districts of cities and between the central districts of a city to its nearest airport where the passengers will board high-speed airplanes.

5. Special passenger-carrying planes designed to transport people between the earth and man-made islands established above the atmospheric limits and the range of the force of gravity, to provide interest and thrill to the more venturesome people that will live in the year 2000 A.D.

IN THE YEAR 2000, I visualize both medium-size and large ocean-going liners traveling the seas at average speeds approaching if not exceeding 60 miles per hour.

I visualize that all of these vessels will carry their own radar protection to minimize, if not entirely eliminate the hazards of collision and be guided when desirable by radio beams from shore installations along their entire course.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

My wife and I would like to spend three weeks driving through Mexico. Are the roads safe?

GENERALLY the Mexican highways are good and the back roads pretty bad. Don't drive anywhere after dark.

... is gasoline scarce?

Whenever you buy gasoline (Super Mexolina is best) ask if more is available along the road. Sometimes a town will be loaded with gas at night and dry in the morning.

If you can't get gasoline, follow the truck drivers or ask them. They always know.

We are three students going to Paris. Can you suggest some inexpensive places to stay and eat?

Students should head for the Left Bank immediately. There are a thousand cheap hotels—Raspail, Seine, Des Etats-Unis, and even more cheap restaurants—Raffy's View Paris, Franco-Hellenique. A large and adequate (private baths) Left Bank hotel is the Lutetia.

French railroads give students special rates. Have "student" stamped on your passport. More information from American Youth Hostels Assn., 11 W. 5th St., New York.

Is tipping in England generally about the same as in the United States?

THE ENGLISH POUND runs $2.80 to the pound. It splits into 20 shillings to the pound, 12 pence to the shilling. (No point in buying pounds outside the country. You are allowed to bring in only 10 pounds.) Figure a shilling (11 cents U.S.) equal to a quarter for tipping. There are two-shilling pieces and half a crown, two shillings and sixpence. You get them mixed up easily.

Tip 15 to 20 per cent on the restaurant bills. A half a crown to the wine steward if you use him. An odd tip goes to the man who carves the roast at your table—about one to two shillings. Doormen get sixpence to a shilling for calling your cab.

If you spend several days in a hotel, a few shillings to the room maid and some to the floor porter.

We will be in Honolulu early next year. Can you give us some ideas on gift shopping there?

Hawaiian records make good gifts. Nice selection in several shops on the boulevard. Try House of Music, 2166 Kalaheua Ave. Another nice gift: the monkey pot plates and dishes. The wood has a beautiful grain and soft color.

And don't load up with clothes before arrival. The shops along hotel row at Waikiki have more selection than any place I know in the States.

I hear you have to make reservations for everything in England. Is this true?

THE ENGLISH are terribly upset if you don't reserve. "Book" is the word. Book your table for dinner. Book your hotels ahead even if they are empty. Book your theater tickets, your morning newspaper, your getaway taxi.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplaine, Southland Magazine, Independent-Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Guatemalan Indians of Chichicastenango have own version of Christianity. Here they purify themselves on church steps, burning incense before entering church.

Guatemala Bargain

A LITTLE MONEY takes you a long way in Guatemala.

At least 100 cents to a quetzal, or 100 centavos to a dollar, you get bargains in either denomination without the tourist's usual exchange headaches.

Best bargains of all are the all-expense tours made available to Pan American World Airways travelers in this country of colorful contrasts. Less than 17 quetzals—or dollars—a day pays for trips, sightseeing, first class hotels, meals and transfer to and from the airport.

One $81 package, for example, covers in five days (1) the bizarre market village of Chichicastenango, where Indians burn offerings to pagan idols on their Catholic church steps, (2) an afternoon and night at gorgeous Lake Atitlan, (3) a full day sightseeing Guatemala City and (4) a morning enjoying the ancient glories of Antigua, once Spain's most magnificent colonial capital.

For $96, you can take a six-day jungle trip in which you travel by plane, bus, train, river boat and bay launch.

TOUR ITINERARIES are jugged to catch the market days, pagan rites, fiestas and religious pageantry always going on somewhere in this land the size of Ohio.

Enchanting contrast is everywhere, from the tropical lowlands to the bracing climate of the 13,000-foot Chuchumatanes. You can deepsea fish in either the Atlantic or Pacific and swim in a mountain lake the same day. You can explore extinct or active volcanoes, hunt deer, jaguar or wild bear, see ancient Spanish cities beside the ruins of still older Mayan temples.

Two-thirds of Guatemala's 3,500,000 people are full-blooded descendants of the famous Mayan-Quiche tribes — and mighty proud of it.

Average hotel rate in Guatemala is $10 single, $16 double, with private bath and full meals. But it is less where tourists are fewer.

Keeping House in 'Paradise'

Sunday November 4, 1956

Doris Reider holds a barracuda she caught and a piece of coral she collected while on fishing expedition.

By Betty Hardesty

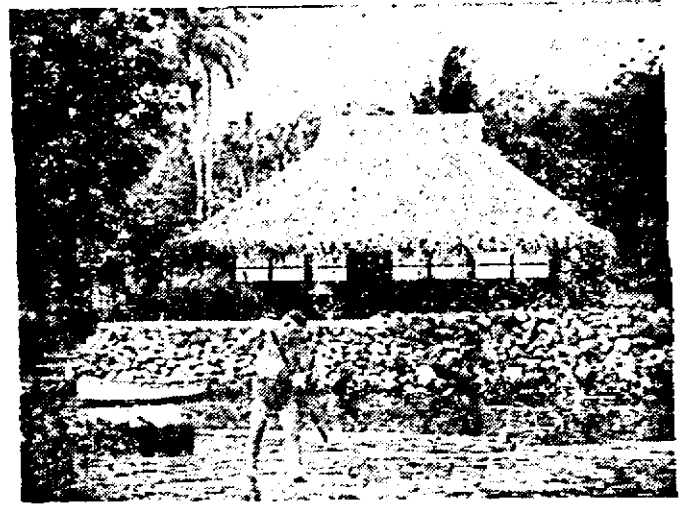

MANY DREAM of living on a South Seas island but few know what life is truly like in such a place. Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Reider of 39 Belmont Ave. do, because they recently spent four months keeping house in Papeete on the island of Tahiti.

The Reiders rented a native hut with a thatched roof composed of layer upon layer of palm leaves. Unfortunately, no ceiling intervenes between the roof and the occupants below, for up there live lizards, spiders, hornets, rats and countless termites. Termite pellets cover everything each morning. In some huts a cloth is hung above the dining table to make eating possible. This is the only protection against termites except to tear out the roof and put up a new one every few years.

equipment with only cold water for showers. A faucet outdoors plus a bucket and plain board constituted the laundry. "Fortunately, the water is soft," remarks Doris, "so washing was not too difficult for our housekeeper, Leona." Arriving at 8 a.m., Leona raked up leaves, watered the garden, cleaned house, washed, ironed and prepared meals.

ELECTRICITY WAS too expensive for cooking so the Reiders used an old fashioned coal oil stove. Without refrigeration, food is kept in a screened cupboard protected from ants. "At first, eating was a challenge," says Doris, "but we soon found we could obtain practically every kind of canned food from the U. S. including canned butter which kept until used up." Fresh fruit was picked from their garden: mangoes, papayas, coconuts, limes and sweet grapefruit called "pamplemous." Bananas and oranges grow wild in the mountains. Reiders bought meat from an English speaking Chinese merchant who had a deep freeze and imported frozen meats from New Zealand. Native meat is slaughtered, sold and cooked the same day but being uninspected, is unsafe for tourists' use. When the native market opens at 5 a.m., the meat and fresh fish are soon sold but fruit and vegetable stalls remain open all day.

This is the home where a Long Beach couple kept house in Tahiti. Francis Reider deepens lagoon near dwelling.

THE THREE-INCH spitters can be frightened away or killed when they appear at night in the most unexpected places. Mr. Reider often hit them in spite of their swift movements, with a swim fin he kept handy. Centipedes are not as numerous but Tahitians have to be alert for them in warm places such as shoes, beds and drawers as a bite is serious.

A spray gun discourages the one and one-half inch hornets but the six to seven-inch fat lizards are immune to assault. But they keep up a continual nocturnal barrage. They play inside the roof structure and feed on insects on the front windows.

THE REIDERS' HUT, called a fore (for-y), is typical native construction except for two features, the glass windows and cement porch on the lagoon side which protect it from ocean spray and storms. The interior is colorful with bamboo furniture and parov cloth draperies. They paid 2,000 franc rent ($63) monthly for this house which is one of the best in spite of poor beds and crude electric wiring. Braided pandanus fronds are fastened to the brown stained, board frame. The high portions are walled with sticks of bamboo set side by side vertically. Everywhere light can be seen through the walls and panel sections pop open on three sides.

YOU AND THE YEAR 2000

The New Age of Entertainment

IN 2000 A.D., we will look back to 1956 when National Broadcasting Company made the first experiment in inter-continental telecasting by, utilizing sun spots to bounce beams from England to New York. It was really quite an achievement in those "early" days of TV.

And in the year 2000, when we see telecasts from all parts of the world, beamed from our satellite stations surrounding the earth, it will be difficult to understand the great excitement that prevailed over the first long-range telecast back in 1956.

All we will have to do in 2000 will be to pick up our electronic wand-microphone and state what channel among hundreds we would like to watch. Immediately, our living picture wall will light up with the program or event. It will be a far cry from the days when only a few channels were available and distance was a barrier.

will be seen in action in one part of the screen, emphasizing the important parts of the speech.

OUR SATELLITES are constantly spinning around the earth and from their vantage point high in the stratosphere we will be able to look down and pinpoint the events of the world.

If the children do not wish to watch this portion of the program they will be able to utilize their own "age-switch" and a series of beams will focus in their eyes the cartoons, or special children's shows they wish to see without interrupting the adult programs.

Nor will TV be limited to the home. When we get in our car and begin the drive to our place of employment we will merely drive to the nearest super-free-way, put our car in the proper lane and turn on the automatic radarscope that takes over control of the vehicle. Then we can watch the last-minute news unfold right before our eyes as we ride to our destination at 80 or 90 mph in perfect safety.

OF COURSE we will carry our own Time-Telecaster with us. It will be a very small instrument, about the size of a cigarette package, and with it we can record any event we desire. There will be no film or tape in the machine; it merely will store up the pictures we will wish to save and at any time we may show them to friends or relatives. Naturally, they are in sound.

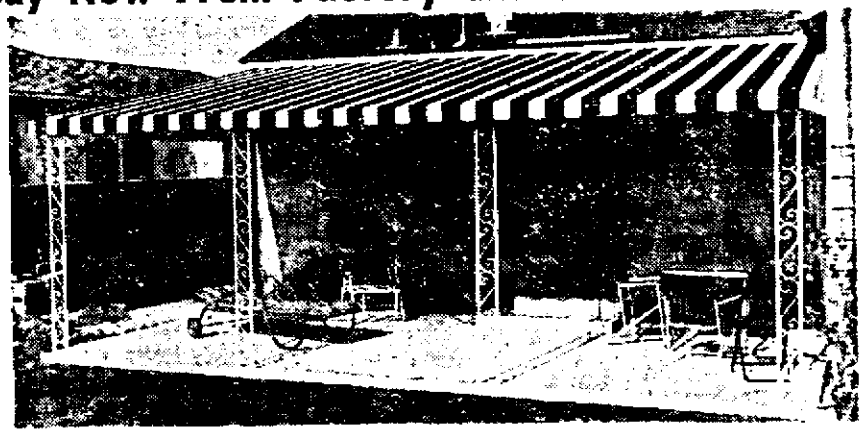

The newspapers no longer will be delivered to the home by carrier; there will be one channel set aside just for the dissemination of news. A flick of a switch and the picture wall will reveal a giant newspaper page which is automatically focused so everyone can read the news, and each story will be illustrated by action scenes featuring the persons involved or the events taking place.

The Time-Telecaster's recording will last forever and it will not be unusual for us to play back a talk by a long-deceased national leader for the image and sound will be electronically stored in proper sequences in the air itself.

LET US SAY that a politician made a speech the night before and our morning tele-paper carries the story. Not only will we get the reaction of the reporter who covered the event but also the reactions of leaders in other parts of the world. The speaker

There are some who will remember the moving pictures of today (1956) and the theatres in which they were shown. The theatres will long since have disappeared and movies, as such, no longer will be entertainment. On the TV screens will be feature shows but instead of being (Continued on Page 20)

School Will Come to the Student

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Today, under the pressure of the Atomic Age, there is a critical shortage of science students in America. In the year 2000 A.D., as this article points out, the school will come to the student, thus speeding up the process of training an adequate force of young scientists.)

By Myron S. Allen

Instructor in Physics, Long Beach City College

problem was occurring, focus on the apparatus and say, "Now, prof, how is the principle of transmutation of uranium 230 to plutonium related to the peculiar difficulties that I am having with this machine that is converting sawdust to cornflakes by nuclear reactions?"

ON ONE DAY a week the student would report to his college in person in his 1,000-mile-an-hour nuclear helicopter for certain types of individual instruction and other experience such as the use of equipment not available at his plant, psychocomputers, etc.

Students who were trained under the plan of 2000 A.D. would not find themselves as unprepared for absorption and utilization as do so many who complete their entire formal education before holding a position of real importance.

Examinations, too, would be far different from the regurgitation type usually experienced by college students. The test of learning adequacy would be, for the most part, taken right on the job under conditions set up by the employer. A sound film recording of the entire procedure would be made automatically at the college and the professor would be able to find out just how well the student had achieved mastery usage of the work of his course.

STUDENTS would profit to a far greater degree from their own efforts and the efforts of their professors. They would have a good idea of the kind of work that they were fitted for, and would be happy and useful in. All schools would carry on a continuous program of visitation. (Continued on Next Page.)

CARING FOR 5,000 college science students in the same number of classrooms now crowded by 1,000 should present no problem at all to the educators of 2000 A.D. By that time there will be available to the students of every technical institution small portable two-way television transceivers about the size of a three-ring notebook and weighing perhaps one pound.

For four days of the week a typical student would be working in some industrial plant in his chosen field. For a total of four hours during the day he would be carrying on the normal activities of his fellow workmen. These four hours might be spread out over a full eight-hour day.

At other times during the day, while busy at his work, the student would hear a signal from his college TV notebook calling him to his physics or other class. He would then go to one of the small booths provided by his employer and open his TV. The physics instructor and his demonstration table would be clearly visible. The professor would start an automatic reflecting device in operation and when the student's personal signal was sent out he would indicate his readiness.

AS THE LECTURE proceeded the professor would pause a moment for questions or comments from his "class," in person or remote. If the student in his distant plant desired to ask a question he would push a button so informing the professor. When ready to answer our student, the professor would flash the student's image on the classroom screen and a two-way conversation audible to all members of the class would follow. The professor would need to be extremely well trained and of wide practical experience because the student would not simply be asking about something presented in a stereotyped textbook. It would be quite possible for the student to be faced with some problem at work that was related to the subject of his professor's lecture.

In this case, he would carry his TV to the place in which the tion to industry, hospitals, agriculture, and to all other fields of occupation via television, and any student would be able to gain as much understanding of the advantages, disadvantages, requirements and opportunities of a possible field of life work as he desired. The cost of giving every person the fullest education of which he was capable of using would then be kept within reasonable bounds and the participation in bearing their fair share of training expense would not be the problem to industry that it now is.

The unfortunate trend for longer and longer periods of formal, isolated training prior to meaningful experience in the fundamental activities of life would be brought to a halt. It is true that a student might be associated with a college for as long as 10 years instead of but four or five. In fact he would probably continue to confer with his professors as long as he was interested in growing in his job. The tremendous advance in the adult education enrollment lends support to this belief. The real purpose of life is growth, and education is what makes growth possible.

Each neighborhood unit, or possibly each building, will have a self-contained energy plant, from atomic or solar power.

Shopping centers, we believe, will be developed in deck style, one upon another for shopping convenience, with under area green belts controlled and grown by electronic sources.

These shopping centers will be connected by rapid transit to neighboring areas of the city.

Only foot traffic will be used in shopping areas.

Transport, we believe, will be by means of movable belt sidewalks and streets. These belts will move cars and other vehicles—the cars will stand still, the belts will move.

What will Long Beach specifically look like in the year 2000?

First, we need a master plan. Now we must plan for the next 100-year period. We must think BIG for the year 2000.

Municipal Airport, with its long runways will be located, we believe, on the breakwater line of the ocean. The site will provide direct access to the heart of the city. Super launches will carry passengers to the shore, to town, and to the hotels. Helicopter service will link Long Beach and other cities.

Fine hotel, apartment and residential areas will be created on offshore islands.

Industrial and commercial areas will be double and triple-stacked for land use, making it possible for industry to stay near its labor source.

The crest of Signal Hill, we think will be crowned with luxury, penthouse, garden type multi-unit structures, the slopes of the hill covered with fine single family homes. Oil production will be under ground.

Multi-storied apartment type buildings will spread from Ocean Blvd. to 4th St., from Alamitos Ave. to Alamitos Bay. This will be repeated on the west side of town from Ocean Blvd. to Anaheim St.

Single family housing will cover the area between Signal Hill and 4th St., Alamitos Ave. to the San Gabriel River and north of Signal Hill.

Bluff areas from Alamitos Ave. to Belmont Shore will be lined with luxury hotels. These will be on the north side of the boulevard from Cherry east with ocean access through large court yards beneath Ocean Blvd. The south side of the boulevard from Cherry west will be developed in the same manner.

The city's business center, we think, will remain in the same general area, with a spread to Alamitos Ave.

Long Beach, many of us think, by 2000 will be one of the cultural centers of the West Coast and we believe that the arts will spread from a beautiful cultural art center on the bluff at Bixby Park.

In the Spirit of Christmas

THIS LUSTY family of carol singers stands more than six feet high, including the cut-out lamp post. They are made of hardboard and it is great fun to splash in their bright colors. Pattern No. 414 gives five large sheets of actual-size guides for cutting and nailing them. It will be mailed for $1. Get orders in immediately by addressing: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent-Press Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

OR CUT THIS jolly fellow from hardboard and paint him in natural colors to stand by your Christmas tree in the house or near your front door. Pattern No. 359 gives actual-size cutting and painting guide and complete directions, and will be mailed for 25c. Just send your order to same address as preceding pattern, not forgetting to give the number of the pattern you desire. Get orders in soon to allow time for making Santa.

NEW AGE OF ENTERTAINMENT

produced in studios with artificial scenery, the actors and actresses of 2000 A. D. will be seen against actual backgrounds to enliven the story.

ROCKET SHIPS will carry the cast and crews to any part of the world in a matter of minutes.

If we become tired of watching, and wish only to listen then there will be the many voice-phone services. Expert readers will present the current novels in dramatic form, give poems or scientific lessons.

The telephone will be entirely different. There will be no dials or long numbers to remember. We will simply pick up the microphone and call a code number into it and immediately the screen will light up and the party at the other end can be seen and a conversation carried on. There will be no eavesdropping by party liners or others, of course, and the telephone will be controlled from either end by the person involved. (This will preclude anyone being caught in the bath when the phone buzzes).

EVEN THEN scientists will be working on more improvements to broaden the scope of man's world and exploring parties will be en route to Mars and the moon to set up temporary telecasting facilities to augment the satellites.

The next 100 years should bring many new facets to the world of communication including the electronic translator that would automatically convert any language or dialect into Americanese, enabling persons everywhere to converse and thereby reach a better understanding.

Tips on Tipping

Theater and movie ushers, unlike their counterparts in the United States, do expect tips in Europe. Tip roughly 20 cents in the local currency. Checkroom and washroom attendants should receive a similar sum.

Another forgotten man on the tipping list is the wine waiter. Tip him 15 per cent of the wine charge.

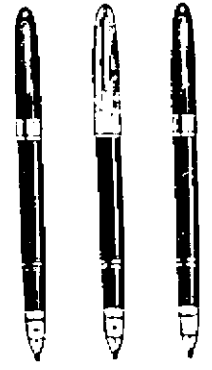

Airline employees, says Pan American World Airways, never accept gratuities, and should not be offered them.

Anyone for a Garchidrose?

—Drawing by Holly Markle

As we watched from the plastic shield, Farmer Jones' robot went about his hired-man chores in the field.

By George Serviss

FARMER JONES stepped to a small black instrument panel at the rear of the air-conditioned plastic "bubble" in which we sat, my wife seated beside me—I had brought her along to write the woman's angle of this interview with a Year 2000 farm family for "Atomic Life." We had just come up a ray-powered elevator from the family's spacious bomb-and-fungus-proofed, solar-conditioned subsurface quarters. We were surveying his fields.

Farmer Jones pressed a button marked "Activator." There was a slight hum and a cylinder rose in the field a few feet beyond the clear plastic wall. A door opened in the cylinder and a robot, closely resembling a 1956 man, stepped jerkily out into the field.

"I must apologize for my hired hand," Farmer Jones said lightly. "Since full parity prices have been removed from our crops, I haven't been able to afford a newer model. But, he has served me well. A couple of new tubes and a paint job will tide him over for another year or two."

FARMER JONES was now operating a small lever that projected from a squarish box that stood up from the floor. The lever seemed to swing around a 360-degree circle and, as I watched, I could see that this was the control for the robot. I turned back to the field to watch developments. I'd already asked about the quality of his crops.

The robot moved swiftly now, under Farmer Jones' guidance. "Carrot, perhaps?" queried Farmer Jones. "Or a turnip; perhaps a tomato?" he asked, turning the robot this way and that in the rows that could be seen beyond the plastic. There was very little foliage to mark the rows, produce being grown these days for the edible roots and fruits with a minimum of green waste. Chlorophyll derivative sprays replaced greenery, as I had already observed in my extensive farm and garden writings.

"PERHAPS WE SHOULD have a leaf or two of spinach, too," Farmer Jones commented, steering the robot on another course to a green section of the field into which the machine almost totally disappeared, so tall was the vegetation.

"I'll bring the man in now," Farmer Jones said, and guided the robot to a belt conveyor box which projected beyond the bubble. "Haven't been out in the fields since we were H-bombed in the last war," he said. He laughed ruefully. "Don't think it would be healthy," he said, "still 'hot'; but you'd be surprised what that bombing did for the soil. Things grow like crazy; and the robot doesn't mind a bit sowing the seeds and keeping the place up."

The impromptu harvest came tumbling into the bubble—through a radiation trap, Farmer Jones explained. "They're safe to handle now," he said, and pressed a "Deactivator" button that left the robot hired-hand standing at attention. The humming stopped.

THE VEGETABLES were all that Farmer Jones had previously boasted that they would be. Carrots three feet long. I took a sample nibble of one; cleaned and completely sanitized by passing through the radiation trap. It was delicious. So was the turnip, four feet in diameter and as tender as butter. I carved a chunk with my electronic pocket incisor and passed it to my wife who has always had a penchant for raw vegetables. She exclaimed with delight at its flavor.

The giant tomato, fully as large as a regulation basketball, gushed red juice of tantalizing aroma when I pricked the skin with my incisor.

The spinach leaves were far larger than palm fronds, but I have persisted in a childhood aversion for this delicacy. I merely examined the leaves for texture.

"No sand," commented Farmer Jones, "and the flavor is very similar to lemon squash. All the old-time vitamins, though."

We chatted on crop prospects and the market outlook while Farmer Jones sent his man after a handful of daisies, which were chilled by dry ice in the hands of the robot before they reached us. One piece was more than enough. Farmer Jones laid his ashtray. I noticed.

As we prepared to depart through the underground to our new jet helicopter, Farmer Jones asked:

"Would your wife like to have a nice, fresh carrot? I've something new I've just perfected."

He dispatched the robot on another guided errand. The carriage that was deposited on the conveyor belt was, indeed, "something new."

"I CALL IT 'garchidrose,'" Farmer Jones said. "I've combined gardenia, orchid and rose in one, together with fern, to grow a complete, multiple-flower corsage on one plant. It does need a bit of ribbon," he apologized, "but I haven't found the way to grow the ribbon yet!" My wife was delighted.

We turned to leave. "By the way," I said. "These vegetables of yours; they must be very high in vitamin content."

"They are, they are," he said. "Extremely so."

"Then you must be a very healthy man," I said.

"Me? Oh no; I never eat them. No roughage for me. I have ulcers. I'm strictly a cottage cheese and pill man, myself."

Color Carpet for a Bulb Bed

Baby Blue Eyes provides a good cover for bed of yellow daffodils, pink tulips.

INTERPLANTING flowers amid bulbs is one way to keep bulb beds attractive, not only while bulb plants bloom, but while bulb foliage slowly dries. A carpet of gay, low-growing annuals above a planting of bulbs is also practical. It keeps the ground cool, protects the growing tops of the bulbs, and camouflages the yellowing bulb foliage until it is dry and ready to be snipped off.

A bulb carpet may be planted in three ways. Broadcast seed over the surface of the bed immediately after the bulbs have been planted, set out young seedlings or put in the little plants after the tops of the bulbs are above the ground.

VIRGINIAN STOCK, Baby Blue Eyes, Convolvulus tricolor, also called Convolvulus Minor, Sweet Alyssum, rainbow-colored Candytuft and Mignonette are suitable for sowing.

Virginia stock grows about six inches high and the plants in bloom are literally covered with fragrant little flowers in pinks, lavender, red, yellow and white.

The California native, Baby Blue-Eyes is another low-growing charmer. Growing just six inches high, one plant often spreads to almost two feet and bears countless cup-shaped clear blue flowers with white centers. Above pink tulips, it is most effective.

Convolvulus Minor, handy, bushy dwarf morning glory growing six to 12 inches tall. Some say it is the bluest of all annual flowers. It has white-fringed center and yellow throat. Each plant usually covers two feet of ground space and blooms all spring and summer.

Candytuft, in delicate pastels, also grows easily from seed and grows nine to 12 inches high. has an abundance of quaint flat-topped clusters of flowers.

Linaria, called Baby Snapdragon is another dainty, easy-to-grow bulb cover, bearing myriads of tiny flowers up its slender foot-high stems.

Mignonette, one of the beloved old-fashioned flowers though not at all showy, makes an unusual carpet above tulips.

The greenish-yellow flower spikes are prized for their sweet scent.

You can obtain small plants of violas in various colors, also Sweet Alyssum. The popular viola, "Blue Perfection," is charming when blended with pink or white tulips. Yellow violas, interplanted with deep lavender alyssum make an attractive combination planted above daffodils. For contrast, apricot violas may be set over a bed of white tulips or for an all-white bed, combine creamy white violas, white narcissus and white candytuft.

Convolvulus Minor, dwarf morning glory is pleasant surprise as cover plant.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week...

Fall and winter rain damage can be minimized by growing plants on raised beds, thus allowing for additional drainage.

Winter flowering sweet peas should be picked frequently. The vines are heavy producers and delaying the formation of seed pods will lead to increased floral production.

Damp nights encourage snails and other nocturnal pests. A few handfuls of pest control will soon clear your garden of these prowlers.

Garden Star for 40 Centuries

Like all lilies, the mid-century hybrid, "Enchantment," requires a well-drained soil for best performance.

For Neater Lawns

YOUR GARDEN will appear well groomed only if you practice a regular lawn edging program. As a matter of fact, a lawn mowing job will look quite incomplete unless finished off with intelligent edging.

THE MAJORITY of the better known edgers work on the same principle. The operator walks the tools and a drivewheel running along the cement walk provides the traction that, in turn, causes the cutting wheel to revolve. Professional gardeners often employ what is known as a half mower.

A half mower is actually a dual purpose tool. The mower is used for trimming small areas such as the lawn around trees and in places that would be difficult for a full sized mower. The tool has a special edging blade that operates when the tool is set at a certain angle.

GRASS SHEARS are also available for the job of lawn edging. Keep in mind though that these should be used only for trimming small areas. They are especially valuable for cutting back the lawn runners from the irrigation basins formed for trees growing in lawns.

One of the best hand grass shears allows the handles to work in a vertical plane. This is easy on the operator for moving the hand in an up and down action is natural and not tiresome.

AN INTERESTING and rather recently introduced tool is a long handled grass shear. It eliminates the possibility of backaches and sore knees because the operator may stand up while trimming the lawn. A single wheel, positioned just in back of the shear provides for added mobility. The unit is operated by a handle that works with an easy, up and down action.

A splendid edger is now available that is self-feeding and self-sharpening. Short, forward slicing strokes make it possible for a child to use this edger with assurance of success. It is not necessary to saw back and forth. The unit consists of a small concave cutting disk which rolls on the sidewalk and also a large disk held against the side of the walk . . . between the walk and the lawn.

THERE WAS A TIME, several centuries ago, when lilies were valued mainly because the bulbs were considered an important source of food. Today, lilies are among the most spectacular of all garden subjects. One or two plants will highlight the garden in a way not possible with the general run of ornamentals.

The lily has enjoyed a long and interesting history. There are definite records that lilies were known almost 40 centuries ago. The ancient Greeks praised the lily both as a flower and for its medicinal value. Throughout the ages, the lily, more than any other plant, has figured largely in painting, sculpture and other forms of art. The Easter lily (Lilium candidum) is possibly one of the most widely recognized flowers in the world.

Lilies are easy to grow if certain basic factors are observed. One of the most important factors is excellent drainage. While the plants are known as heavy drinkers they cannot tolerate having wet feet. Land that has a slight slope is usually ideal for lilies.

Soils of medium texture will prove satisfactory. A sandy loam enriched with plenty of humus is excellent. A well prepared and deep planting bed is recommended. The roots often attain a length of from two to three feet, a factor that provides a clue to the type of environment they want. Shallow soils cannot support healthy root growth and this would lead to retarded development. Hardpan lying close to the surface should be broken up and replaced, if necessary, with new topsoil.

BE VERY CAREFUL about using manure, either fresh or decomposed. Peat will prove better and will not burn the roots. Lily experts also claim that manures often cause basal rot. Whether an acid or alkaline soil is best seems to be an academic question; certain varieties, however, do better in an alkaline soil, others prefer an acid condition.

Feed lilies a well balanced food. It is interesting to note that during the early growing stages nitrogen and phosphorus are more important; later on less of these elements is required while potash becomes more important. A deficiency of these factors will dwarf the plant, cause leaf drooping and discoloration.

BE CAREFUL ABOUT cutting the blooms. The maturing of the bulb for the following season depends on the green leaves and stems. If these parts are removed with the flowers then bulb maturity will be retarded. It may take a full year for the bulbs to recover. When cutting the flowers, leave from 12 to 18 inches of stem.

After your dahlias have yellowed and the growth has died down, cut off the main branches in such a manner as will prevent water from running down into the hollow stems and decaying the plant. Then you may leave them safely until a convenient time to dig them up.

See that you dig each clump without damage to the tuber, and of course shake off the loose dirt. Then store them in a dark place until the tubers dry out. It is best to store them in sand or shavings until ready to make divisions and replant them at the proper time. Before covering with sand, dust the tubers with a nonpoisonous pyrethrum dust (preferably one containing a little sulphur). This protects them from both insect infestation and fungus rot during the storage period.

How To locate and Hang Your Pictures to Prevent Plaster from Cracking

1. REGULAR PICTURE hooks (you can buy them in assorted sizes) are rugged enough to handle almost any size of picture. Long, thin brad slips through metal hanger at angle for support. To prevent plaster from cracking, drive brad through patch of cellophane tape pressed to wall.

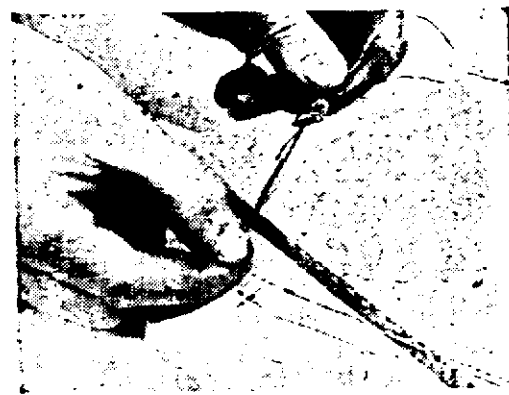

2. FOR HEAVY pictures, use screw eyes and picture wire—or fishline—to support them on hangers. Another way: Fashion brackets from metal and fasten them to frame with screws. Best position for screw eyes or brackets is about one-third length of frame from the top.

3. PILOT HOLE for large nail hanger helps protect plaster against damage. When possible, drive hangers for heavy pictures into a stud. Make "bit" for pilot hole by locking finishing nail in chuck of hand drill. Then clip off head of nail with side cutters or pliers as shown.

4. LOCATING PICTURES on wall is easy when you use a cardboard dummy for the job. Trim cardboard or heavy paper to exact size of picture. With masking tape, stick cardboard to wall until it's in position you want. Drive small nail through it and into wall to mark spot for hanger.

5. DETERMINE WIRE tension by placing cardboard dummy on back of picture and using hole in it to mark position where hanger will touch back of picture (arrow) when it's on wall. Fasten wire on one side of frame, hold it at mark on picture, and secure it to other side.

The Great Lust for Living

WIT, adventure, love, passion, history and saucy anecdotes make "The King of Paris" by Guy Endore (Simon & Schuster, $4) a book that the reader will find difficulty in putting aside. With the same loving care that went into Dumas' own exotic feasts, Endore concocts the King's life and achieves color, depth, beauty and excitement.

Son of the Marquis de la Paillerie, a mulatto dragoon, whose courage took him from private to general under Napoleon, then to banishment and death, Alexander Dumas grew up knowing the uncertainties of poverty. On reaching manhood his hungers were unsatiable. Food, mistresses, literary fame and the lust for living each moment to the fullest were his appetites. He rolicks through Paris, and the sins of Dumas should have put him in the villainous class. Yet in spite of preconceived moral codes, the reader will forgive the obese rude gluttonous and selfish father of an underdetermined number of illegitimate children. He is so deftly drawn that one feels throughout the book a mixture of "he shouldn't have hurt so-and-so," "Oh, but he lived!" and finally a "Poor, poor Dumas," for the reader likes Guy Endore's hero, in spite of himself.

In a conversation with Count Viel-Castel, Dumas gives the reader the summation of his Bohemian way of life: "I want to become a legend... and nothing will erase me..." —M.L.O.

A TINY SALVAGE vessel is almost run down in heavy seas by a ghost ship that emerges suddenly out of shrouds of mist, its bridge deserted. Thus opens "The Wreck of the Mary Deare" by Hammond Innes (Knopf, $3.75), a humdinger of a sea story that gets Gideon Patch, the master and only man aboard the derelict, squarely in all sorts of big trouble. Few stories have a stronger smell of the sea, and a finer element of suspense, than this Literary Guild Selection.

FOR THE READER who appreciates good but casual writing "Tomorrow and Tomorrow and Tomorrow" by Aldous Huxley (Harper, $4) certainly will please with its high standard of style. There are 18 essays here, ranging along the entire fringe of human experiences. Nobody but Huxley could dwell on the origin of the alphabet with the same brilliance as he explains the strange type of civilization which denies its citizens the sexual knowledge that is taken for granted by savage islanders. This is beautiful, witty and wise.

WHEN COL. BARNEY OLDFIELD (no relation to the racing great) was a young Nebraska newspaper man his flair for wearing purple shirts made him an item in Oscar Odd McIntyre's column. In "Never a Shot in Anger" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $5) Barney rolls up his khaki sleeves and emerges with a purple picture of the U.S. press corps in Europe in World War II. Col. Oldfield's narrative is somewhat encumbered by innumerable footnotes and the names of hundreds of soldiers and war correspondents. However, the pace quickens as he recounts the events, both humorous and tragic, surrounding the often rather frantic scribes as they scrambled aboard the Continent and after D-Day. Oldfield sharpens into focus little known facets of the great personalities of the war. His volume is certainly an eloquent and voluminous response to the statement of General Eisenhower, who said: "I know of no thing which so improves the morale of the soldier as to see his unit or his own name in print—just once." —S. J. B.

TWO NEW BOOKS are out for the mystery lovers. "Diamonds Are Forever" by the Englishman Ian Fleming (Macmillan, $2.75) and Earle Stanley Gardner's "The Case of the Gilded Lily" (Morrow, $2.75). Fleming's story begins in Africa's diamond country and winds up in America, with James Bond, British secret service agent extraordinary, learning about American gangsters. It's a story of diamond smuggling on a major scale, and keyed to suspense. Perry Mason seems as young and astute as ever in linking together a series of crimes with a corpse at the end of the chain in Gardner's latest.

STARTLING and sometimes shocking machinations behind the scenes in television studios are recounted by Robin Moore in "Pitchman" (Coward-McCann, $3.95). It is a story about a war, the war between Benton March, pitchman, and television's overlords in their steel and glass bastions along Madison Ave. There are no defined lines and no comrades. Ammunition is the expense account, and a friend is someone who can do you a favor. Moore went into the business in 1919, and has been in some phase of it since then.

A HANDBOOK on small business administration, "How to Run Your Own Business and Make It Pay" (Van Nostrand, $5.95), provides many practical answers for the successful, profitable conduct of operation and management of a small enterprise. Such subjects as selling, advertising, cost control, financing and administration are covered, and author W. R. Minrath even covers the difficult tasks of bookkeeping and tax and personnel reports.

NOT A SINGLE detail in photographing faces and bodies is overlooked by William Mortensen and George Dunham in a revised third edition of the well known "How to Pose the Model" (Camera Craft, 95 Minna St., San Francisco, $4.95). Scores of photographs and drawings help to interpret the exhaustive text.

A COMPELLING new book for the juvenile library is the profusely illustrated "The Book of Reptiles and Amphibians" (Garden City, $2.50). There's a description and illustration of every creature of this curious world, written and drawn by Michael H. Evans.

POISONING RANKS third as a cause of accidental deaths in the American home. How to diagnose the symptoms of various poisons and how first-aid may be administered swiftly to these victims is told in "Dictionary of Poisons" (Philosophical, $4.75).

A Week for Cats

trees, issues a steady barrage of writings on cats, as well as scripts and speeches for radio, television and live audience consumption. Bogart might truly be called the cats' best friend, and recognition of his work on behalf of these animals is fitting at the present time. National Cat Week is being observed now, in the period from Nov. 1 to 7; the 12th annual such November observance. Bogart is president of the National Cat Week movement.

WORK OF THE organization is carried on from a Pittsburgh office, financed by sales of seals at 100 for $1. Seals bear the words: "Better Care, Understanding, Appreciation" around an illustration by Lynn Hamil-

Cats have their health problems in the confinement of city living. Accompanying article gives advice on care.

Hildabruen is the office pal of Guy Bogart of Beaumont, president of organization sponsoring National Cat Week.

By Eleanor Avery Price

REGARDED far and wide as one of the world's top authorities on cats, Guy Bogart, 545 Euclid Ave., Beaumont, carries on an never-flagging campaign on behalf of felines. From Bogart's snug white house, hidden behind cherry ton showing a cat and kitten. Contributions for seals may be sent to Rollin A. Cable, national executive secretary and treasurer, National Cat Week, 1072 North Ave., Pittsburgh 28, Pa. Bogart, who calls cats "man's most intelligent friends," has 23 cats of his own—at least, 23 was the number at last counting. Heading the list are 25-pound Uncle Penelope and Hildabruen who sits beside him when he types.

AS A SIDELIGHT to National Cat Week, below are some questions and answers concerning cat welfare.

Q. Do cats ever have dental trouble?

A. Yes, cats frequently have tartar incrustations that can bring on all sorts of trouble. Having the teeth cleaned twice a year is a wise procedure for cats as well as humans.

Q. When is the best time to have a female cat spayed?

A. She can be spayed any time, preferably around six months.

Q. DO CATS need cod liver oil?

A. Yes. Cod liver oil can be given from the day of birth. Start with one drop in an eye-dropper and increase until the cat is getting at least 6 drops at 10 days. By the time the cat is grown he should be consuming a teaspoon daily. This will help prevent pus from forming and caking his eyes.

Q. What is safe to use in spraying a cat's quarters?

A. Pine oil is effective. If fleas are a real problem, use a chlordane solution, being certain it gets into all cracks. Dust kitty with pyrethrum powder.

Q. Can anything be done to help an old cat see better?

A. Step up his vitamin A intake.

Q. WHAT CAN be done to prevent hair balls from forming in a cat's stomach?

A. Give kitty a few drops of mineral or vegetable oil now and then, especially when he is shedding.

Q. Is there any way to stop neighbors' cats from coming over my fence?

A. Sprinkle cat-and-dog repellent along the top of the fence and be generous where the cat climbs over. Powdered form is probably best, for cats do not like it on their feet.

WHEN YOUR dog has learned his basic lessons in heeling, standing, lying down, and coming when called, he is ready to start the exact same lessons off the lead, but the foundation work must be thorough or the dog will break on an exercise. Try keeping him between you and a fence at first, then eventually train him with people about, with street noises in his ears, with other dogs near, with tempting smells within reach of his sensitive nose. Do not hurry him in the off lead exercises. Should he bolt, go back to the very beginning of the training and patiently build up again. Above all, do not give up.

NOV. 18 is the date for the Riverside Kennel Club unbentched all-breed dog show and obedience trial to take place on the Fair Grounds at Hemet.

YOU ARE INVITED to come out to the Obedience Convention Nov. 11 at Lakewood Country Club. Tracking demonstrations will start at 8 a.m. followed by demonstrations of novice, open, utility, handler, and working trial (police degree). The panel of obedience judges selected to score the demonstrations is made up of the foremost licensed obedience judges in America. After luncheon at 11:30 a.m. ($2 a plate for those who wish it), there will be a judges' open forum at which Scott Roberts will speak. The evening program starts at 7 p.m. (Dinner is $1 per plate) and the guest speaker will be introduced at 8 p.m.

NEVADA RED, whose story appeared in this column Sept. 20, has been elected to receive a bronze plaque and citation by P-u-s 'n Boots for his act of bravery in an encounter with a rattlesnake. Only a very few of the nation's 20,000,000 plus cats receive these awards annually. Red is owned by Col. and Mrs. Victor E. Taylor, 250 Campo Wk.

'On-the-Spot' Family Snapshots

MOST OF US who listen to the radio have come to recognize two different types of news broadcasts: The coverage of "special events" planned and scheduled in advance, and "on-the-spot" reporting of every-day news just as it comes off the wire. And it takes both kinds to give a complete record of what's going on in the world around us.

The same principle may be applied equally well to the family snapshooting we do.

A ROVING EYE and a ready camera—that's all it takes to catch the hundreds of picture opportunities every-day living affords. You know the kind of "spur-of-the-moment" situations we mean—the youngsters' discovery that the bathtub makes a fine sailing pond for a pint-sized fleet, the family pup looking into the baby's playpen, Dad caught unawares in a mid-afternoon siesta.

Here, the important thing is the authentic record such pictures can provide of the way your family lives and how it functions in its day-by-day existence. Slightly cluttered backgrounds, catch-as-catch-can poses, far-from-perfect lighting—these fade into relative unimportance, for perfection (though nice to attain) isn't the essential goal. What really matters is that the snapshots tell a story of daily life as it's lived in your house—an individual family story captured in permanent picture form.

EVER SO OFTEN, however, the family observes "special events"—those planned occasions that are highlights in any picture record. It may be Johnny's first haircut or Kathy's first dance or Susie's first batch of cookies. You have a chance to plan ahead a little—do a better job than usual in your snapshooting because there's time to consider just what subjects you want to picture, against what background and with what lighting.

Now, this doesn't mean that planned snapshots should become posed snapshots—far from it! Spontaneity of action—the effect of catching things just as they happen—doesn't have to be sacrificed simply because you've thought about some details in advance. It's merely a case of "getting set" for something that's going to happen anyway—and then being as casual as ever about your picture-taking.

What are our chances of colliding with a meteorite on the way to Venus? Probably less than our chances of having an automobile accident in 145 days driving around the country.

The problem of schedule is important in interplanetary travel. The situation is somewhat similar to making a rendezvous with an aircraft carrier, except that in this case the landing field is moving through space at terrific speed.

If we are 10 minutes late on a journey lasting 136 days, we will find that Venus has moved 13,000 miles!

FORTUNATELY, this situation is not quite as bad as it seems. In the type of interplanetary orbits we are discussing, the paths of the space ship and Venus are almost parallel, but the speeds are different.

On the Venus voyage, the overtaking speed is 5,400 miles an hour and the 13,000-mile difference would be made up in 2½ hours. As a matter of fact, we are buzzing along at about 84,600 miles per hour in space, but Venus is also hurrying along, and our overtaking speed is reduced accordingly.

The fact that in our orbit we are overtaking Venus is one reason why the orbital route is better than taking a straight shot at Venus. If it were possible to reach a velocity of 71,000 miles per hour before fuel cutoff and drop straight toward the sun, we would intersect Venus at a sharp angle.

In this case, the 10-minute error would truly be a 13,000-mile miss, and we'd certainly start getting hot in a hurry if we missed on this route!

Once started on its interplanetary trip, a space ship sticks to its precalculated orbit with extreme precision.

Instruments with an error of only .1 per cent are commercially available now. An accelerometer system with a .1 per cent error would cause the space ship to miss Venus by almost a million miles. An improvement of the accelerometer to .0015 per cent error would assure meeting Venus at the end of 136 days.

Now that we are hurtling toward Venus at 5,400 miles an hour, sure of a landing, how are we going to get down safely so we can see what the place looks like?

That is a job for the pilot, not the navigator!

PETER G. STATHIS

It's a Secret

THERE'S ONE restaurant in town where epicures can always obtain that famous French sea food stew called bouilla-baisse.

THE RESTAURANT which keeps this unusual dish on its menu all year around is the Sea Food Grotto, 701 E. Ocean
Blvd. But persons desiring bouillabaisse must abide by this important rule: They must always order it by phone two hours in advance of their arrival at the restaurant so the chefs will have sufficient time to prepare the delicacy.

Peter G. Stathis, rotund host at the Grotto, gets constant requests for his bouillabaisse recipe. "Sorry," he smiles, "it's a secret." He is willing to reveal that the stew contains the following sea foods: lobster, crab, oysters, scallops, shrimp, clams, sea bass and salmon.
Certain vegetables and spices are also employed, but Stathis declines to specify what they are.

The price for the bouillabaisse is $3.50, on a complete dinner including lobster bisque (soup), salad, vegetables, bread and butter, dessert and beverage.

ALSO VERY popular right now at the Grotto are such other complete dinners as baked deviled crabmeat, Maryland style, $1.85, and grilled dolphin, $2.25. The restaurant has seeds of other sea food items, including Louisiana frog legs, Monterey abalone, rainbow trout, bar-racuda, lobster Newburg and swordfish steak. Among the a la carte specialties are six Chesapeake Bay oysters on the half shell, $1.60, and six Chesapeake Bay clams, $1.50.

Extra-generous luncheons are served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., providing bisque or chowder,
salad, vegetables, bread and butter, choice of beverage and dessert. Entrees include sand dabs, grilled sea bass, halibut, fillet of sole, barracuda, dolphin or turkey a la king. All are $1.25.

The Grotto is closed Wednesdays. —T.L.D. THOMEX.

Will tomorrow be rainy or fair?

Everybody wants to know — and you will know if you learn . . .

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN WEATHERMAN

To be a do-it-yourself weatherman, you don't need a course in meteorology or expensive scientific equipment. And the only occupational hazard involved is possibly a crick in the neck from looking up at the clouds. The crick might be worth it if you could avoid being caught in the rain like the un-weatherwise lady shown at left.

The fact is that clouds are among the most reliable indications of weather conditions. Once you start studying them, you will find yourself involved in a fascinating hobby — amateur weathercasting. You can learn how “warm fronts” and “cold fronts” are heralded by the ever-changing face of the sky, as illustrated by diagrams and pictures on the following pages. They were taken from a book, Weathercasting,* which tells you how to become your own weatherman.

To read tomorrow's weather in the clouds, you must know their types, height and direction of movement. These factors can give you a fairly accurate indication of what the weather will be like 12 to 24 hours hence.

In general, there are 10 main types of clouds: cirrus, cirrostratus, cirrocumulus, altostratus, altocumulus, stratocumulus, nimbostratus, cumulus, cumulonimbus and stratus.

Cirrus clouds are the high, wispy, fibrous types — you've heard them called “mares' tails.” Composed of ice crystals, they usually are above 20,000 feet. If these clouds do not thicken, generally fair weather lies ahead; but if they thicken and are followed by lower clouds, rain or snow is likely to fall within 12 or 14 hours.

Another form of cirrus is cirrocumulus, small white puffs that form a “mackerel sky.” Cirrocumulus always is accompanied by some other type of cirrus cloud; this usually means rain and warmer.

Sometimes cirrus appears as cirrostratus — thin, sheet-like clouds that may cover the entire sky. If cirrostratus clouds break up into cirrocumulus, fair weather lies ahead. But if they persist in a sheet-like form, expect rain and warmer. Cirrostratus clouds usually are associated with a warm front.

In the region below the cirrus are the so-called middle clouds — altocumulus and altostratus. Their bases can be anywhere between 6,500 and 20,000 feet above the ground. Altocumulus usually are composed of water droplets, and if the formations are thick enough, rain or snow may fall.

Altostratus clouds are the sheet-like type with a gray or blue appearance, from which steady rain or snow may fall. They may precede either a cold or warm front and, when they appear to be darkening, indicate stormy weather.

Just below the “alto” group are the stratocumulus clouds, with their upper level at about 6,500 feet. They often form in the vicinity of thunderstorms and along warm and cold fronts, thus indicating a change in the weather.

When Clouds Are Fog

Closest to the ground at times are stratus clouds, uniform layers of indefinite shape resembling fog. In fact, if they rest on the ground they are called fog. Light drizzle or snow flurries may fall from a stratus layer. Fair weather may follow their appearance, and the sun usually will burn off a nighttime layer of these clouds.

The lowest clouds of well-defined shape are the cumulus. Their bases, on an average, are about 1,600 feet above the ground. These are the familiar clouds of fine weather. They never overcast the sky, and they often turn into stratocumulus or altocumulus in late afternoon to disappear at night.

But not all cumulus you see on a warm summer day promise fair weather. When they seem to swell and boil upward, a thunderstorm may be in the offing, especially if they form early on summer mornings. They sometimes precede a warm front.

Cumulus clouds eventually may build into that most awesome of cloud displays — the cumulonimbus, or thunderhead. This massive formation may pile up as high as 30,000 feet into the freezing level of the cirrus-cloud region. There is formed the “anvil top,” composed largely of ice crystals, which points in the direction the cloud is moving. The cloud's base is ragged, dark and heavy with rain. Hail may fall, lightning

How Tall Will Your Baby Grow?

Food tips for trips

Does your baby sit safely?

WHEN he's fully grown how big will your baby be? Growth studies answer this fascinating question with remarkable accuracy: The average 2-year-old boy and 1½-year-old girl are about half as tall as they'll be when adults—given nourishing food and good health.

AGE	BOYS	GIRLS
	Approx. % adult height
2 yrs.	49	52
1½ yrs.	46	49
1 yr.	42	47
6 mo.	38	40
1 mo.	30	32
Birth	29	31

• How many inches long is your baby now? Add two zeros. Then divide by % shown for your baby's age and sex in chart above. For example, if your 6-month-old boy is 27" now, divide 2700 by 38. He'll be about 71" when fully grown—almost a 6-footer. This is an estimate based on approximate averages. Slow- or fast-growing babies may shoot up or slow down later.

• He suits you—big or little—and he knows it! When you smile and talk happy-talk at mealtimes, that makes him feel good—helps him want to eat all his tummy can hold.

• No new foods on trips—good rule for travel-with-baby. Stick with his favorites. If your baby's tiny, try to go someplace and stay. Don't tour around. On trips, baby food in glass jars is handier than ever. Especially Heinz better-tasting dinners: Strained Vegetables and Lamb, Beef or Bacon—each a meal-in-a-jar.

Little baby, soft and new—
because of you.

• If baby rejects cereal the first time your doctor suggests it, try another flavor next time. Heinz makes four pre-cooked cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Mixed Cereals (wheat, oats and corn)—all fortified with enriching iron that baby needs.

• Giving baby a safe place to sit helps prevent falls. Safest: a seat-in-a-table. Next: a broad-based high chair. Let Dad feed baby sometimes. People get better acquainted fast over good food.

• This daily diet for babies 6 to 9 months is merely a menu guide. Make your own substitutions. If baby is tired of vegetables, offer fruits for a while. Many better-tasting Heinz fruits contain similar minerals and vitamins and the same amount of roughage as vegetables.

6 Tbs. Heinz Mixed Cereal
2 Tbs. Heinz Strained Egg Yolk
1 Can Heinz Strained Orange Juice
1 Quart Milk • 1 Heinz Teething Biscuit
½ jar Heinz Strained Lamb
½ jar Heinz Strained Carrots
½ jar Heinz Vegetables and Bacon
½ jar Heinz Strained Plums and Farina
½ jar Heinz Orange Custard Pudding

• Have you tried tasting baby's food? Heinz chefs have developed recipes to make the most particular little eater enjoy nourishing foods. Heinz kitchens are close to the choicest growing regions, so no goodness gets lost between garden and kettle. Heinz has been noted for better flavor for 87 years.

WEATHER CONTINUED

Studying weather, you'll find 'fronts' cook it up flashes and, under certain conditions, even tornadoes may develop.

Practically all our weather is manufactured on a front, which is the boundary between two different air masses. A cold front is a boundary of relatively cold air of polar origin advancing into an area occupied by warmer air, often of tropical origin. A warm front is a boundary of relatively warm air advancing into an area occupied by colder air. The line along which a cold front has overtaken a warm front at ground level is called an occluded front.

The approach of fronts is signaled by changes in temperature and barometric pressure, as well as cloud appearances previously described. A cold front brings a drop in temperature and a rise in the barometer. Ahead of a warm front, the barometer falls, temperature rises.

Pressure and temperature conditions must be coupled with wind directions. As a rule, winds from the east quadrants and a falling barometer indicate stormy weather; winds shifting to the west quadrants indicate clearing and fair weather.

When the wind sets in from points between the south and southeast and the barometer falls steadily, a storm is approaching from the west or northwest. Its center will pass near or north of the observer within 12 to 24 hours.

When the wind sets in from points between east and northeast, and the barometer falls steadily, a storm is approaching from the south or southwest. Its center will pass near or to the south of the observer within 12 to 24 hours.

Here are some general rules for do-it-yourself forecasting.

Expect a change to stormy when:

- Barometer shows a steady fall.
- Clouds get thicker and darker.
- Lower clouds move in from a southerly or easterly direction at good speed.
- Wind shifts south or east.
- Temperature rises abruptly, moist air flows from south, fog forms.
- After a day or two of westerly or northerly winds, wind velocity drops at sunset and the sun sets clear with a few cirrus clouds in the west.
- You suspect a cold or warm front.

Fair, Warmer, Colder

Expect a change to fair weather when:

- Barometer rises rapidly.
- Clouds appear to break up.
- Wind shifts to west or northwest, indicating passage of a cold front.
- Bases of clouds increase in elevation.
- Expect continuing fair weather when:*
- Barometer remains steady or rises.
- Temperature is normal.

• Stratus clouds or fog dissipate in the morning.

- Wind blows steadily from the west.
- Sun sets clear.

• There is dew or frost at night.

Expect colder weather when:

- Wind shifts to west or northwest.
- Cold front has passed.
- Westerly wind drops in velocity at night and sun sets clear.
- Pressure rises.

• Clouds break up after a storm, northern sky has greenish tinge (in winter).

Expect warmer weather when:

- It is cloudy at night.
- Northeast wind has become calm and later begins to blow from the south.
- Warm front has passed.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN AIR MASSES MEET

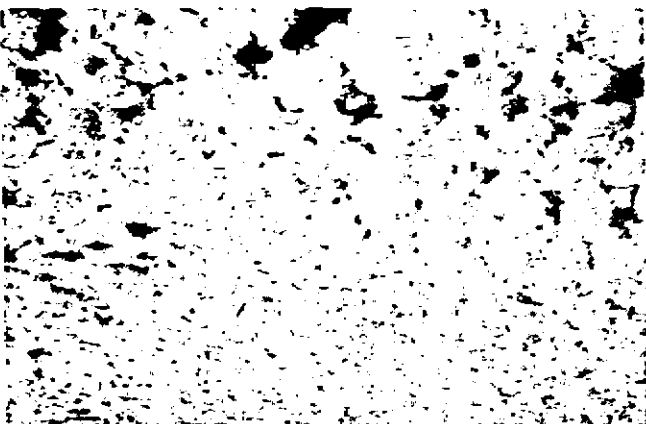

COLD-FRONT occlusion: Cold air (r.) rides up "wedge" of colder air (which is the heavier of the two masses), pushing warm air aloft. Greatest amount of rain or snow will fall behind the surface—or colder—front.

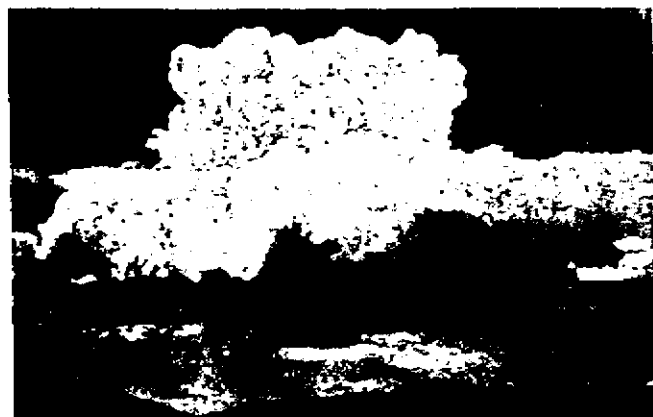

WARM-FRONT occlusion: If cold air advancing from rear (l.) is not as cold as the air it overtakes, it will ride up the colder mass in front of it. Most rain or snow usually falls ahead of this surface front (right).

PRECEDING occlusion: When two cold air masses have about the same temperature, a neutral-type occlusion results. Neither mass exerts sufficient force to lift the warm air. Some precipitation may fall along this front.

ALTOCUMULUS: Bases of these clouds are between 6,500 and 20,000 feet above the earth. This type of cloud often precedes a warm front, may merge into rain-bearing altostratus.

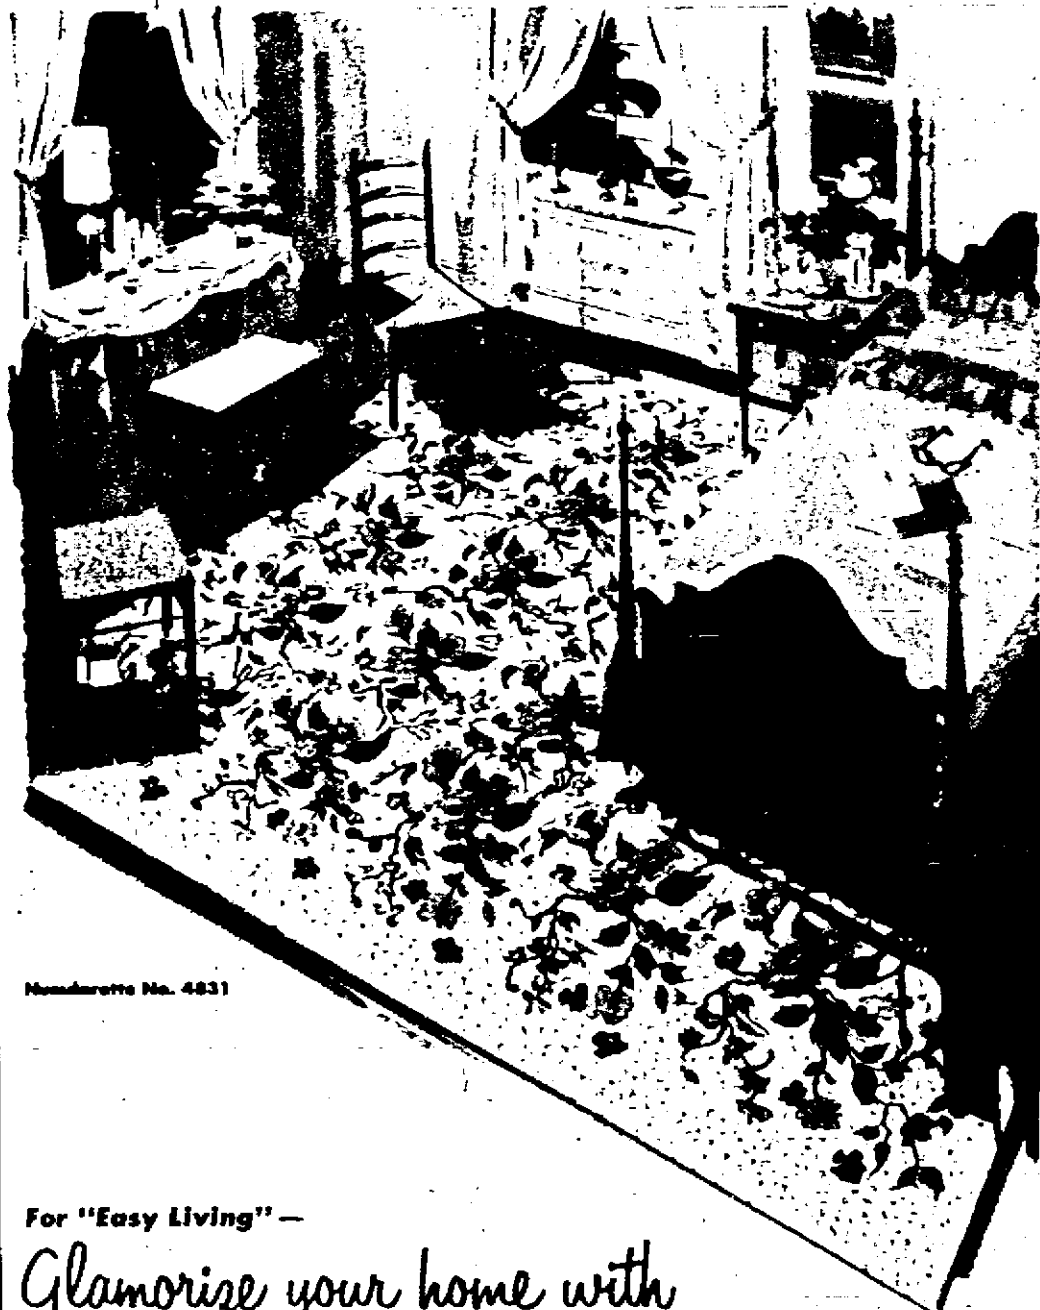

CUMULUS forms over mountain. Shortly after this photo was taken, rain began falling from dark base of the cloud. Cumulus clouds like this sometimes build up into thunderheads.

NIMBOSTRATUS clouds, associated with cold fronts, are composed of thick layers of stratus clouds not very high above earth. They may be accompanied by steady rain or snow.

FAIR WEATHER is at hand when this type of cumulus cloud appears above. These are caused by currents of warm air that rise from heated ground, then condense into visible vapor.

WHAT MAKES A

by JOHN L. SPRINGER

SOCIOLOGISTS LONG HAVE been saying that divorce, desertion, juvenile delinquency and other family problems dwindle when parents and children get along well together. And, as everybody knows, happy families are the sinews of a happy nation — the real measure of progress.

But what makes a happy family? Research at leading U.S. universities recently has probed this question from dozens of scientific angles. Now, for the first time, PARADE brings together the important new facts thus uncovered. Using these findings, you can determine the degree of your own family's happiness, and learn concrete ways to improve relations within the family.

Families — like individuals — have distinct personalities, scientists say. Some families are relaxed, easy-going. Others are tense, uneasy, bickering. But the average family is happy. After studying hundreds of families, social scientists at the University of Pennsylvania rated 71.4 per cent — more than two out of three — as "happy," and another 15 per cent as "medium happy." Only 13.6 per cent could be considered "consistently unhappy."

Researchers in the nation-wide study investigated thousands of actual family case histories. Their findings make up this composite "portrait of a happy family":

1) All the members know how to "give and take." Dr. Luther T. Jansen of the University of Washington asked 284 persons in Seattle: "Do members of your family sacrifice their individual interests and desires for the good of the family as a whole?" When parents and children "would make any sacrifice," the family ran smoothly. When greed or selfishness prevailed, there was constant tension.

Sociologists at Harvard University came to the same conclusion by a different route. They found that, in the happiest families, all members tried to follow "the golden rule."

2) The husband is like his father-in-law and the wife is like her mother-in-law. Dr. Alver Hilding Jacobson of Ohio State University found that when a woman marries she usually has a pretty clear idea of what a husband should be, based mostly on how her own father acted. Likewise, a man seeking a wife often sees her as an image of his mother. Psychologists say this parallel often is not a conscious one but lies buried deep in the subconscious mind.

It hints that the song, "I want a girl just like the girl who married dear old Dad," is more truth than poetry, setting the stage for a happy marriage — and probably the subsequent rearing of a happy family.

3) The happy family runs on rules. In one home, children must be in bed by 9:00 every night. Neighbors put their youngsters to bed at 8:30 one night, 11 the next. In the first home, the children obey the rule without question because they know exactly what it is. In the second, because the youngsters struggle to stay up until 11 every night, bedtime is a period of nerve-racking tension.

Studies prove that, for the sake of happy families, father, mother and children must know what they can do without offending others — and more important, what they cannot do.

4) Parents have "good" interests in common. Says Prof. Purnell Benson of the Department of Sociology, Temple University: "We find that well-adjusted married persons more often have the following mutual interests: home, children, romantic love and religion. Interests which are more prevalent among poorly adjusted couples include: fame or success, drinking, money, travel, commercial entertainment and companionship to avoid loneliness."

Not long ago, friends of one family were shocked when the mother suddenly flew to Reno for a divorce. She and her husband had been seen everywhere together. At parties, theaters, sporting events, they seemed like the perfect couple. Unfortunately, they ran around so much they never sank deep roots. When a serious crisis struck, the marriage crumbled.

No Dictators Wanted

5) Father and mother share responsibility equally. In many happy families, the father may play the dominant role and be the accepted "boss" where major decisions are concerned. However, he does not make them alone. Indeed, in certain areas, he wisely defers to the authority of his spouse — as, for example, where her more intimate knowledge of children and household is concerned. Where the wife "wears the pants," the quotient of family happiness is generally found to be low — but this also is true where the father is tyrannical and dictatorial in his decisions.

Several studies have established that low incomes, in themselves, are not a contributory factor to family unhappiness. There are broken homes in the millionaire set, "perfect homes" among the poorest classes. But, psychologists find, frictions may break out over money when one or more members try to spend more than the family income warrants. A typical example is the wife who tries to "keep up with the Joneses." She wants a new car because the neighbors next door have one, even where she HAPPY FAMILY shown in these pictures shares "good" interests. Children feel security of parental love and harmony.

New studies can help every family to evaluate — and thus understand — itself

knows her husband can't afford it. Her constant wants and complaints are a serious cause of family quarrels and discontent.

In many cases, you can judge a family's happiness by its friends. Research has established that the old saying, "birds of a feather flock together," applies to families as well as to individuals.

Are most of the families with whom yours is friendly close-knit, contented, untouched by threats of divorce? Are they church-goers, interested in their children? If so, chances are that your family will be about the same.

Here are some pointers social scientists have disclosed about family happiness:

- When a mother works full-time, she usually can't devote enough attention to her family. Thus family life suffers. But — here's an eye-opener — families where all the children are teenagers or older generally are happier if she has a part-time job.

Professor Ivan Nye of Bucknell University studied 1,472 high-school students in Michigan. He reported:

"Families in which mothers are employed part-time (from one to 32 hours a week) show, on the average, better adjustment between adolescents and parents than families where the mother works full-time or not at all.

"Two elements may be involved. Mothers of adolescents need something to keep them busy and interested, and keep them from interfering in their children's affairs too much. Secondly, mothers gain status in their own eyes and in those of their husband and children if they make some money.

"Working full-time, however, is probably associated with neglect of the home, and perhaps in some cases with hostility toward other family members. Statistics seem to indicate that it is equally bad for mothers to have too little or too much to do."

- A family's genealogical background is no yardstick of its happiness. Some people pride themselves on the fact that their ancestors came over on the Mayflower or were pioneer settlers in their communities. Psychologists have tried to determine what effect, if any, these "high-class" backgrounds exert on family happiness. The answer: no effect, although, as always, exceptional cases crop up in which entire relationships are based on these flimsy values. Unless these relationships have firmer and more serious bonds, they don't last long.

- The mistakes your parents made mean more than where they came from. If they were divorced, for instance, it often means rougher going for their children in their own marriages. One divorced couple in a Chicago suburb had five children, who grew up, got married and — so far — have had 14 divorces of their own. Psychologists also find, on the other hand, a stubborn reversal in children of divorced parents. They fight divorces, try harder to iron out their problems.

- Families usually are happiest when the children are young. The average "happiness curve" shows a rise as the first child arrives, goes down as more children join the family and become older, rises again when they leave home.

Social scientists at the University of Pennsylvania found that age plays a big part in parents' happiness — and how they feel is passed on to the children. Many mothers have unhappy periods in their 40s and 50s. Some hate to "let go" as their children grow up and become independent. Some fathers pass through a "crisis period" in their 50s. At this age, men who have failed at their jobs may turn against their wives.

10 Years Is a Success Secret

- Stay married for 10 years, and you stand a good chance of being married for life. A review of cases reported to the National Desertion Bureau showed that in 68 per cent of the cases, fathers who desert their families have been married less than 10 years. Two primary reasons given for desertions were infidelity and excessive drinking.

- Happiness is contagious. Seldom is one member of a family happy if the other members are miserable. Starting at the nursery-school level, Harvard investigators found, the happiest children came from homes where parents and other family members were happy together. The same pattern was repeated when persons of all ages were studied.

New research confirms this fact: Relatives and friends may think your life has been plagued by bad luck and illness and that your future looks black and hopeless; but if you think you're happy, that's what matters.

In one family studied, the father has been bed-ridden for years. The mother suffers from arthritis and hardly can move about. Their sole support, a daughter, works long hours for low pay. Yet all three are buoyantly happy, more contented than some families with huge homes, big cars, servants, all of life's luxuries.

Thus scientists have reaffirmed an idea long believed by many persons and probably best summed up by Abraham Lincoln. "Most folks," he once said simply, "are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

HOW HAPPY IS YOUR FAMILY?

Here's a quiz that enables you to rate your family's happiness. Answer all questions as truthfully as possible, then check your score with answers at the bottom of the column.

YES NO

- 1 Did both father and mother take part in the decision the last time your family bought an automobile or other expensive household equipment? ☐ ☐
- 2 Do all family members usually give in cheerfully when the majority decides which television programs or movies to see? ☐ ☐
- 3 Do the youngsters know generally, without asking for permission, which regular TV programs they may or may not look at, and which magazines they may read? ☐ ☐
- 4 Does Dad help, at least occasionally, with the family marketing and the care and disciplining of the children? ☐ ☐
- 5 Do the youngsters do as much or more work around the house than average youngsters in your neighborhood? ☐ ☐
- 6 Do all family members attend church regularly? ☐ ☐
- 7 Is Mother, Dad or both a member of the local Parent Teachers Association or other similar group interested in the community's welfare? ☐ ☐
- 8 Does Dad spend at least half of his leisure time around the house or with the family? ☐ ☐
- 9 Can you say that Mother is NOT the undisputed boss in your family? ☐ ☐
- 10 Is everyone in your family reasonably satisfied with the conditions under which you live, or — if not — does everyone agree what should be done to change them? ☐ ☐
- 11 When in the company of outsiders, are you able to "laugh off" any personality characteristics or bad habits of other members of your family? ☐ ☐
- 12 On the whole, is your family as happy as the average family you know? ☐ ☐

ANSWERS

If you answer "yes" to all 12 questions, yours is the rarity — the almost perfect family. Seven or more "yes" answers mean that your household is fairly typical — and that you're happy more often than not. Six or fewer "yes" answers indicate that you should take steps to prevent further disruption of your home life. Regardless of your score, you can add to your family's happiness substantially by working to change every "no" answer to "yes."

Vote —
American

URGENT MESSAGE to every American is embodied in this one-of-a-kind "pin." The slogan, thought up by a Tennessee grandmother, won first prize among some 500,000 entries submitted in PARADE's contest.

issue: 'VOTE!'

It is almost election eve. The campaigns are as good as over. Remains only the simple act that climaxes it all, when every qualified citizen steps into the voting booth and, alone with his conscience, casts his ballot.

Or does he? Far too often, in the nation that made the word democracy sing around the globe, he stays away. It was to help fight this that PARADE last summer put on one of the greatest slogan contests ever run by any publication. PARADE is proud that the winning slogan—"Vote—you lucky American!"—now has been endorsed by the Presidential candidates themselves.

Says the Republican standard-bearer, Dwight D. Eisenhower:

"Vote—you lucky American!" is apt and pointed in its message... American citizenship is the greatest of temporal privileges and the responsibility of voting is the first duty of citizenship... When the American people know their candidates and understand the issues, I am confident they will make the right decision at election time.

"For the good of the nation, it is essential that each citizen express his decision by voting. But before that, each citizen must get the facts..."

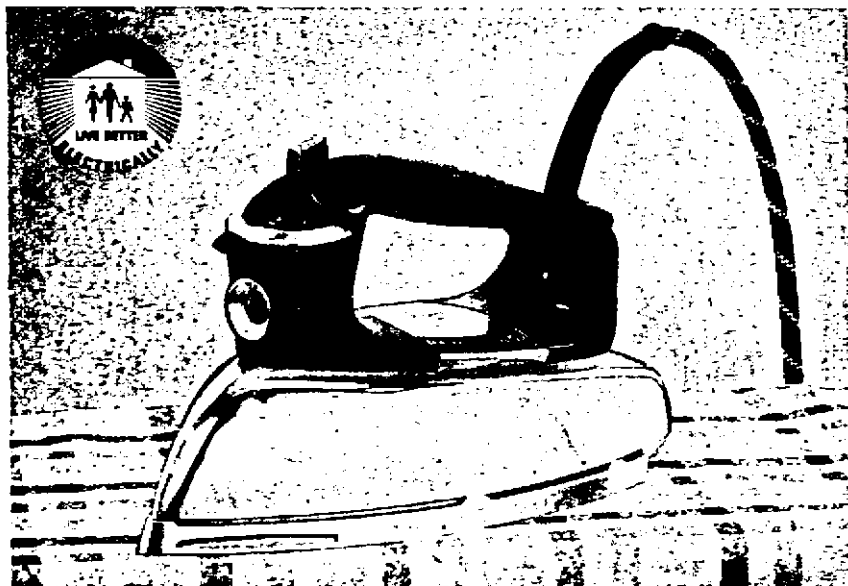

Says the Democratic nominee, Adlai E. Stevenson: "The ballot is the most precious instrument we free men possess to protect our liberty... The world will be watching the polls for a record-breaking vote as proof of our devotion to democratic government. 'Vote—you lucky American!' is a phrase that should stir everyone of every political faith..."

The author of this slogan, Mrs. Will S. Temple of Fountain City, Tenn., is getting further recognition; a week in Washington for two during the Presidential Inauguration in January, arranged by PARADE.

Such can be the reward for a prize-winning slogan. For every American, the rewards of citizenship are countless. And high among them is your lucky moment next Tuesday at the polls. ■

BUSY SCENE shows Father Emmons in the process of deciding he should have stayed at the office.

The notes have it

The man learns that he who reads may run

by DICK EMMONS

Every so often — although not so often that my boss would notice it — I go home from the office in mid-afternoon and supervise the children's play so that my wife can perform the little errands that she won't trust me with.

It is on these occasions that I run into Helen's notes. They turn up in various unlikely places around the house, and sometimes they make unnerving reading. I remember one recent Note Day with distinctly mixed feelings.

The first note was on the mantel. "Tell Ann to change into play clothes. Shirt money under coffee pot. Little man in basement," it said.

I strode quickly into the kitchen and lifted the coffee pot. There was no money but there was another note: "Ran out of money. Pay laundryman $1.65. Little man in basement doesn't want you to turn on water."

Why, I asked myself, is there a little man in the basement? Why can't I turn on the water?

The telephone rang before I could arrive at an answer. As I lifted the receiver, another note fluttered down. "If Millie calls, tell her the tent leaks," it requested.

"The tent leaks, Millie," I said into the receiver. I had to hang up immediately because Ann, our 8-year-old, burst into the house. "Change into play clothes, dear," I told her.

"Mommy said I could wear this dress after school," Ann retorted.

"All I know is that I have a note to back up my order. Unless you can produce one superseding mine —"

"There's usually a note in the refrigerator..." Ann began thoughtfully.

There was. "I knew you'd be poking around here," it said bluntly. "Keep your mitts off the lemon chiffon pie. Set oven at 350 at 4:15. Keep dog out of house."

I withdrew my mitts hastily and checked my watch. I'd just have time to inquire into the little man downstairs. "Tallyho!" I called into the cellar.

"Don't turn on the water!" a tenor voice responded.

The back doorbell sounded, and simultaneously our 4-year-old twins, Dickie and Davie, streamed out of their bedroom, fresh from their naps.

"Daddy!" they squealed, wrapping themselves around my legs as I opened the door to greet the laundryman and our dog streaked past him into the kitchen. I made a fruitless dive, the boys going down with me.

"Let's fight, Daddy!" Davie screeched.

"I'll get the pillows!" Dickie added. I reached wearily for the oven.

"I'll just put your shirts on the table. Your wife can pay me next week," the laundryman said, backing eagerly out the door. From the bathroom I could hear Ann running the faucet.

"No, no!" I shouted.

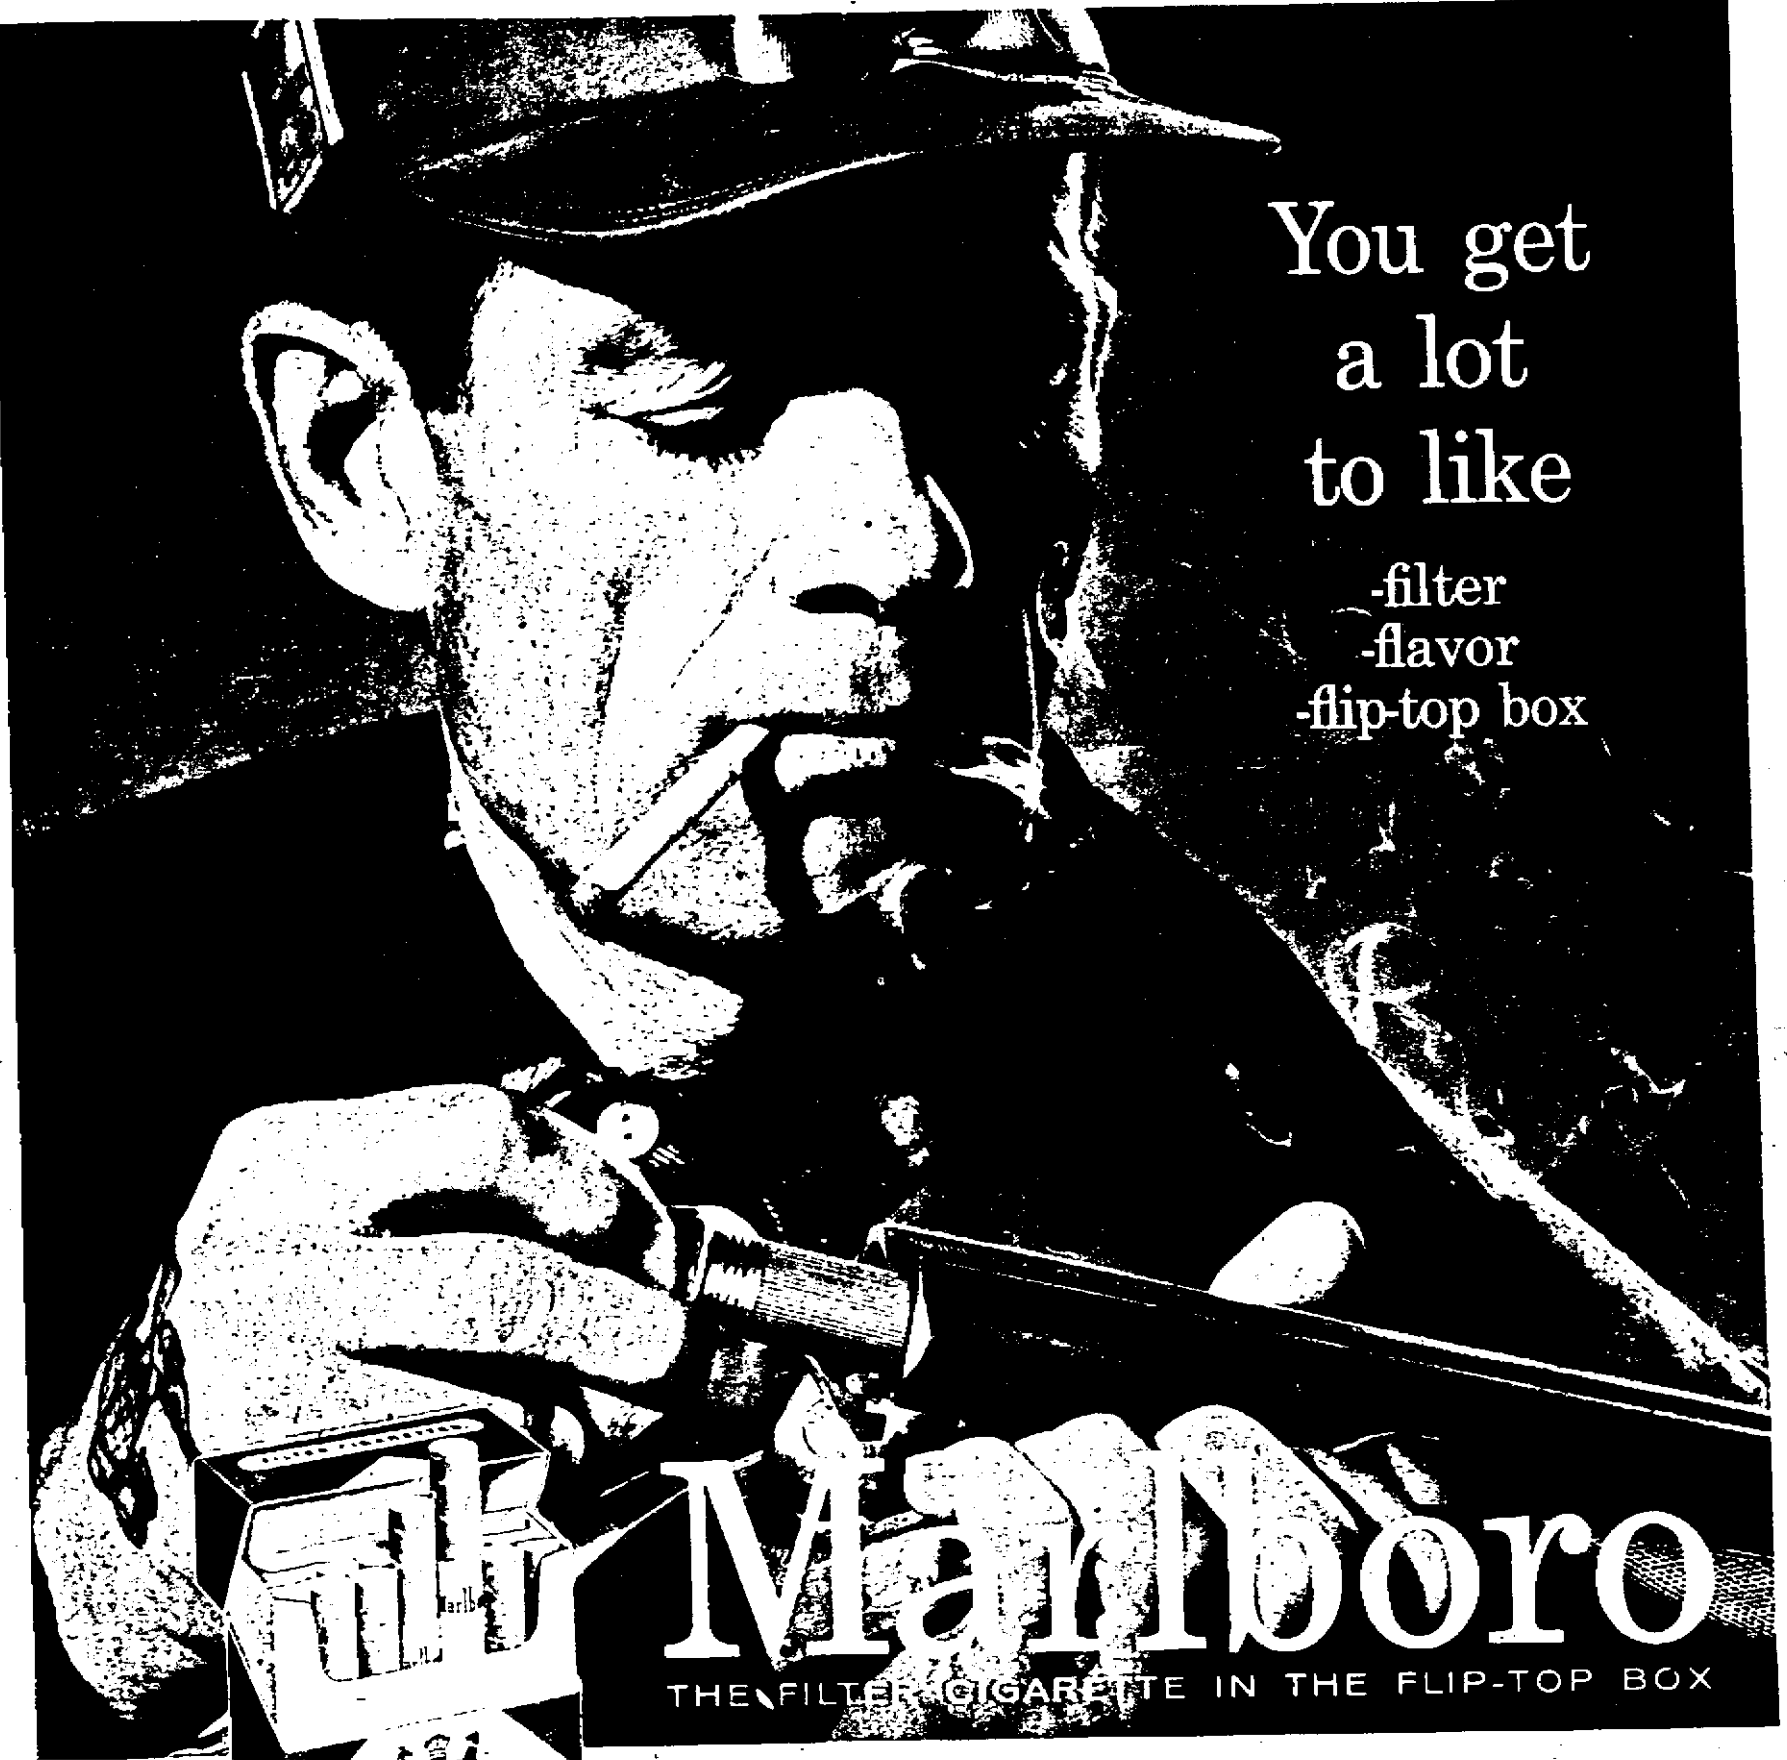

At that moment Helen pushed open the door, her eyes widening as she took in the flying pillow feathers. Dickie licking his finger in the pie and something I hadn't noticed: a short, dripping man standing in the cellar doorway.

In a trice she scooped up the pie, sent the boys scuttling to their room, dried off the dripping man and paid the laundry bill.

"I did my best," I apologized. "I turned on the oven."

"Good work," Helen said crisply. "We have a nice warm oven. Next time why not go whole hog and put the meat in?"

"I'll make a note of it," I said miserably.

A PARADE QUIZ • by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

What's your First Aid IQ?

You or someone you know might become involved in any of the 12 everyday accident situations listed below. Would you know what to do? Fast thinking — plus knowledge — might save a life. Test yourself now. If you miss more than three questions; better take a free Red Cross first-aid course.

QUESTIONS

- 1 A child trips, falls down a flight of steps. Should you try to pick him up?
- 2 An infant is scalded by hot coffee on the chest and arm. The nearest doctor is an hour away. What can you do to help in that hour?
- 3 Your husband runs a fishhook into his palm, causing moderate pain and slight bleeding. Should you try to remove the hook?
What should you do if the following mishaps occur?
- 4 A golfer complains of headache, nausea, weakness. He is pale, sweating and his pulse is weak.
- 5 A woman faints and is caught as she falls.
- 6 A child swallows the contents of a medicine bottle.
- 7 A neighbor's cat bites your child.
- 8 Glass cuts your wife's palm. Blood flows freely.
- 9 Your father complains of a sudden stomach pain, perspires, turns pale and says he is nauseated. He says he has never felt this way before.
- 10 A person is pinned in the wreckage of an auto accident.
- 11 You find your husband in the garage unconscious, apparently not breathing. The auto engine is running.
- 12 Your child grabs the switch chain of a lamp, topples over. You find him unconscious and not breathing.

ANSWERS

- 1 No — not until his injuries have been determined. Moving the child may cause further injury. Call a doctor.
- 2 Prevent air from reaching the burned skin. One way: mix 3 tablespoonsful of baking soda in a quart of warm water. Tear strips from a clean sheet; dip them into the baking-soda solution, then lay them over the burned areas. Add solution to keep strips moist. Put the child to bed; cover him with a blanket.
- 3 No. Guard the hand against added injury. See a doctor.
- 4 Apparently he is suffering from heat exhaustion. Get the patient to lie down and cover him with a blanket. Give him a third of a glass of water containing a half teaspoonful of salt. Repeat this dose about four times. Later, warm coffee or tea may help. If symptoms persist, call a doctor.
- 5 Place her in a lying position. Administer smelling salts or ammonia sparingly. Do not give liquids until she is conscious and can answer questions. If she remains unconscious, cover her and call a doctor.
- 6 Give the child lots of water or milk. Tickle the back of his throat to induce vomiting. Call a doctor.
- 7 Wash the wound thoroughly with soap. Rinse it with running water. Cover the wound with a sterile dressing and take the child to a doctor. Ask your neighbor to confine the cat for 10 days to be observed for rabies.
- 8 Bleeding must be stopped. Place a wad of clean cloth or gauze in the center of the palm. Fold the fingers in a fist around the material. Use a hand towel or cloth strips to bind the fist securely until blood flow stops. Call a doctor.
- 9 Put your father to bed quickly, keep him quiet and call your doctor. An icebag at the point of pain may bring relief. Do not give food or a laxative.
- 10 Unless traffic or fire endangers the victim, do not try to move him. Send for help. Control any bleeding. Make the victim comfortable; cover him to conserve body heat.
- 11 Get him into fresh air immediately and shout for help. Start artificial respiration, if possible placing blankets over and under him. If he is too heavy to pull from the garage, shut off the car motor, open garage doors and windows and then give artificial respiration. Have someone call a doctor.
- 12 Most likely, the child is suffering from electric shock. Disconnect the lamp first; start artificial respiration. Get whatever emergency help (police, fire department) is available.

AN ALL-TIME RING GREAT SAYS:

Today's boxing champs are second-raters

by BARNEY ROSS as told to JOHN DEVANEY

While I was watching a championship fight recently, a friend asked me how I thought each fighter would have made out against Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight champion of 20 years ago.

"McLarnin," I told him, "would have chased these boys right out of the ring."

He would have too, for let's face it: the champions of today just don't measure up to the top men of the 1920s and '30s. In the chart at right, I've listed how I'd rate today's champions against the best I've seen in my lifetime. And though I've included fighters of yesterday who didn't even become champions, you can see that most of the modern titleholders rate pretty low.

Why? There are two obvious reasons: Television has killed the small boxing clubs that used to be the breeding ground for champions; prosperity has lured many promising fighters to high-paying jobs.

But there's one other thing — and it worries me. The young fighters of today take a different attitude toward their careers from the fighters of 30 years ago. Boxing to us was almost a religion, something to be practiced constantly, in training or out.

Today, it seems to me, most young fighters take a careless attitude toward their futures. When not in training for a fight, many pay absolutely no attention to the most elementary rules for good health: they stay up late, they drink, they carouse. When booked for a fight, they have to kill themselves to get back into shape. As a result, they're often too worn out to fight.

An example was Tony Janiro, a promising lightweight of a few years back. Every time I think of Tony, I could punch him in the nose. He might have been one of the all-time greats — but Tony liked the bright lights. He paid for his fun with batterings from mediocre fighters whom he should have beaten easily.

In any case, and for whatever reasons, today's champions just don't stack up with the best since 1927. Here's how I see them, class by class:

HEAVYWEIGHT

Rocky Marciano (listed as current champ since his successor hasn't been picked) is the hardest hitter I have ever seen. Rocky could take you out with one punch even if you had him on the ropes, and none of the greats of my time — Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Joe Louis — could do that.

Nevertheless, in a mythical "prime-against-prime" fight, I think Dempsey — too vicious for Rocky — would have taken Marciano by a knockout and Tunney — more clever — would have cut him up badly enough to win by a TKO. Rocky's mule-kick punch, on the other hand, would have finished Louis.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT

Archie Moore, best of the light heavies, soon will be getting a crack at the heavyweight title — at the age of 40 (and some think he's even older). This, to me, typifies the sad days that have befallen boxing: in my time it was almost unheard of for a man to hold a championship after 30.

Moore is best described as "a good solid fighter." He has no great talent but he keeps rolling along. However, in a fight against the great light heavies — Tommy Loughran, Paul Berlenbach, Jimmy Braddock, Maxie Rosenbloom or Jimmy Slattery — Archie would not be rolling very long, probably less than five rounds.

MIDDLEWEIGHT

It's often said that the current champ, Ray Robinson, is the greatest fighter, pound for pound, of all time. To me, Sugar Ray is a great fighter — probably our best champion today — but I wouldn't even name him as one of the greatest middleweights of all time. In a bout with Mickey Walker, the fabulous "Toy Bulldog," Ray would be out cold within 10 rounds, for Mickey was much too rough and much too strong for Robinson.

WELTERWEIGHT

LIGHTWEIGHT

Champion Joe Brown is a persistent, wily

THE AUTHOR (L.) retains his welterweight title against Izzy Jannazzo in a 1936 fight. Previously he had held the lightweight crown for three years.

fighter. Yet you couldn't mention his name in the same breath with any of the past lightweight greats — Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrolle or Ray Miller. I wouldn't want to see Brown face the Canzoneri that Tony was at his peak; Brown would be carried out of the ring in two rounds or less.

FEATHERWEIGHT

Probably the most vicious fighter in the ring today is featherweight king Sandy Saddler. He hits hard and he knows every ring trick in the book. Yet Saddler would be flattened within five rounds by Mike Dundee, a great fighter who never became champion but who hit harder than Saddler and whose viciousness would make Saddler seem almost gentle.

I take no great pleasure in rating boxing's current champs so low. I remember when a champion was a national idol and I'd like to see that day come again. Today, however, a lot of boxing fans couldn't name even three of the current champs.

When that's the case, is boxing far from dead?

Teen-age Topics

I receive many letters from teenagers—especially girls—on weight problems. Overweight can cause serious social problems, just as a bad complexion might. Here are some letters on these subjects and one on another problem.

Q. At 11, I am overweight and have bumps on my face. My mother won't let me go to a doctor. What shall I do? — R.B., Jackson, Miss.

A. Your mother's idea of overweight and yours probably differ considerably. Consider your frame (is it small-, medium- or large-boned?) and your growth potential. If you come from a family of large, tall people, your mother may be letting you accumulate some weight in anticipation of a big spurt in growth.

A certain amount of complexion trouble is usual during adolescence and most teenagers find that a diet low in carbohydrates and sweets and moderate in fats — plus scrupulous cleanliness — is a big help.

Q. My girl friend, who is very heavy, and I live in the same apartment house, and go everywhere together. The boys around here would like to fix her up with a date, but can't think of anyone who will take her out. Is there anything I can do? — A.L., New Britain, Conn.

A. If she's really fat, she knows it and undoubtedly feels self-conscious. Undoubtedly she already has said something to you about wanting to be thinner and more attractive. Try to help her by building up her positive points — she certainly has some — and tell her that it is possible to lose weight by reducing the intake of food, by increasing physical exercise and by really wanting to be attractive. There should be plenty of material in your library on the modern treatment of overweight.

Q. I am 15 years old and a sophomore in high school. I am quite chubby and haven't been asked for a date yet. If someone should ask me out, I don't think I would know what to say while with him. What if the boy did not respond to my conversation? How can I be more popular? — S.H., Bradford, Conn.

A. I think you will start dating when you are ready — and when you are ready, you will stop eating that little bit more that keeps you chubby.

Don't worry so much about what you're going to say on a date; just be your own natural self and not a stilted little chatterbox for the occasion. Ask the kind of questions that will stimulate your date to talk about himself and his activities. If you are really interested in other people, they will be interested in you. And that, of course, is exactly what we mean by "being popular."

Q. What would be the normal size of a 12-year-old girl? I think I am overweight and should try to lose a few pounds. — M.B., Shamokin, Pa.

A. I cannot give you a "normal" weight for a 12-year-old girl. This depends on the individual — her bone structure and so on.

Have a talk with your school nurse or your family doctor. It's quite probable that there is no need for you to lose any weight at all. It won't hurt, however, to increase your physical activities. Try walking home from school, if you do not already do so. And participate in active sports as a hobby, not just as something you have to take at school.

Q. I am a 12-year-old girl with two problems. First: I want to wear shoes with a small heel. But my 10-year-old sister wants to wear them, too. Since my sister is too young, my mother won't let me wear them either. Second: Everything I get my sister has to get. And even though she has all that I have, she still wears my clothes — which are too long. My mother says this is all right. What do you think? — J.A., Baton Rouge, La.

A. I think you are too young to wear anything resembling a French heel, but you should be able to wear a low Cuban heel.

I agree with you that your sister should not be wearing your clothes. This causes a lot of friction between two sisters so close in size and age.

MONROE-MILLER: Hollywood says NO!

NEWLYWED Monroes pose after marriage last June

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

Marilyn Monroe's marriage to playwright Arthur Miller won't last. Such, at least, is the unanimous opinion of 20 celebrities just polled here by PARADE.

Something over two years ago, when Marilyn wed baseball's Joe DiMaggio, a similar poll showed 19 top names (including Cary Grant, Betty Grable, Jane Russell and the like) saying yes, they thought it would go swimmingly. Only Marilyn's dramatic coach, Natasha Lytess, thought the union was doomed.

Marilyn's colleagues spoke lovingly of her — then. Many of them knew the circumstances of her birth and childhood, and there was understanding and admiration in their voices as they spoke of her struggle to reach the top and her essentially fine character. Marilyn and Joe, they felt, were both simple, physical types with the same pleasant, live-and-let-live outlook on life.

Natasha Lytess was a lone holdout. "This marriage can't possibly succeed," she said. "Marilyn has lived with me, and I know her well. She is intensely ambitious. She hungers for intellectualism, for the world of arts and letters. She wants to be stimulated mentally. She is not for DiMaggio, and DiMaggio is not for her."

As it turned out, Natasha Lytess was right. Natasha, incidentally, is no longer Marilyn's drama coach.

Today the question concerns Marilyn and another husband: lanky Arthur Miller, 41, author of All My Sons, Death of a Salesman and A View from the Bridge. The answers reflect a startling about-face in Hollywood's attitude toward Marilyn. She no longer is generally well-liked here. Many of her co-workers feel she is selfish, calculating and deceptive. Under the circumstances, none of the 20 would be quoted by name.

Says an actress who's played with Marilyn: "This kid has climbed the ladder of success lad by lad. She used a policeman named Dougherty when she was 15 to get her out of a lousy home setup. Then she divorced him and latched on to agent Johnny Hyde. After Hyde helped her get started in pictures she moved to DiMaggio. Joe married her, and she was no longer dependent on the 20th Century-Fox studio. After Joe, she quit the Charley Feldman agency and went with Milton Greene, the photographer. Greene helped her set up an independent production company. Then she married Miller.

"I'll bet you dollars to doughnuts that, sooner or later, Marilyn gets Miller to write a play for her. In Marilyn Monroe's life she comes first, after that comes her career, after that comes Arthur Miller. This is just my opinion, and I hope I'm wrong. Only I don't think so. I give the marriage two years."

Says a director: "Arthur Miller should have his head examined, marrying an actress. From this point on he's got to play second fiddle. He's Marilyn Monroe's third husband. He's living in a fishbowl. Look what happened to him in London. He had to become another policeman protecting his wife from the crowds. That's no life for a playwright."

"What appealed to him about Marilyn in the first place was probably the legend. Supposedly she's the most desirable girl in the world. She's starved for culture, for a little of the affection denied her in childhood. All this she finds in Miller. Naturally his ego is flattered; I'm sure he thinks he can improve her mind, make her over, make her grow."

"If he does, though, she may not find him as desirable as she does now."

From a press agent: "I know Marilyn pretty well, and for my money Miller is nuts. He breaks up a marriage that lasted 15 years. He loses custody of his two kids. He loses the anonymity that gave him free working habits, helped make him great. What for? For Marilyn? Here's a dame that outgrew her first marriage, didn't like her second or security marriage, has now embarked on a third marriage, the culture marriage. Miller doesn't know it, but he's just a marker along the road."

The Girl Has Changed

From a reporter: "Marilyn used to be one of the squarest-shooting actresses in this town. Never lied, always leveled with you. Last time she was out here making Bus Stop, I asked her about Miller. 'I have absolutely no marriage plans,' she told me. 'Besides, Arthur Miller is a married man.' Years ago Marilyn would never have pulled that stuff."

"Nowadays her sweetness, the facade of innocence, is gone. She's hired herself a high-powered press agent with the result that more newspapermen dislike her than ever before. Years ago we protected the girl. From here on in she's just like any other actress. When she gets in a real jam, she'll find out how much that press agent can do for her."

"As for Arthur Miller, I feel sorry for the guy. He's become Mr. Marilyn Monroe III."

A producer speaks: "Marilyn's marriage to Arthur Miller is very simple to understand. It's a question of mutual flattery. Marilyn was flattered to think one of America's finest playwrights was actually interested in her. By the same token Miller must have been flattered that this beautiful physical specimen could fall for him. Once the mutual enchantment fades, and it will, the telling factor will be the effect each has on the other's work, because above all these are career people."

"My personal opinion is that Bus Stop marks the zenith of Marilyn's career. After this I expect it to go down. There has been a perceptible decline in Marilyn's popularity with the public. They don't like her to have any connection with Communism, however remote. Miller was hauled before the House Un-American Affairs Committee and testified that he had once belonged to various Communist-front organizations. There was all this publicity about his getting or not getting a passport; eventually the House held him in contempt. So already the shadow of her husband's politics is entering Marilyn's life."

"One of the best popularity guides in this business is the fan-magazine poll. The latest polls show that Marilyn isn't even in the first 10. The kid is definitely slipping."

"The other side of the coin is that she must affect her husband's work. Miller's first wife, Grace Slatery, was a nonprofessional. She made no extraordinary demands on her husband's career. Marilyn is different."

"She's got to have a drama coach around. She lacks complete confidence in her own acting ability. She suffers from such a deep inferiority complex she can't possibly get through a picture on her own. She used to have Natasha Lytess interpret the script for her. Now she's got Lee and Paula Strasberg from the Actors' Studio in New York. Paula coached her all through Bus Stop and all through The Sleeping Prince.

HONEYMOONER Marilyn is guarded by police—and temporarily cut off from her husband—on arrival in London. She is used to mob scenes; he isn't.

"Miller likes the Strasbergs, but how about all the other hangers-on that gather around a star: reporters, photographers, press agents, tie-in men? Can Miller get used to this?"

"He's always been a playwright of social significance. Marilyn may alter his outlook, lighten him up. I'll make a prediction about Miller: his future plays will lack his old intensity, his fire."

"I wish the Millers every happiness, but I honestly don't think their marital happiness will be long-lived."

In all fairness to Marilyn, it must be added that Hollywood never has viewed with favor her move from film circles here to stage circles in New York. The above remarks may well be tainted with jealousy, envy and industrial pique. Are they an accurate forecast? Wait and see.

A two-way play table

Here's fun for all the family — a combination model-railroad and Ping-pong table. For youngsters, it permits trains and accessories to be stored and operated in one safe place — off the floor. For grownups, it is quickly convertible to a regulation-size tennis table — or a useful work surface. (Box sides provide clearance under the Ping-pong panels for most miniature-railroad equipment.)

The materials needed to build the table include two $\frac{1}{2}$ " plywood panels, each 5' x 9' and one $\frac{3}{4}$ " panel, 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ' x 8' — plus 40 feet of 1"-x-6" lumber.

For pattern and complete building instructions, just fill in the coupon below.

LEGS OF TABLE interlock with the end rails of the table-top support and are fastened to the sides with $\frac{1}{2}$ " bolts, flat washers and wing nuts.

PATTERN aids in outlining the train passages at adjoining ends of the table-top boxes. You can cut out the arches with a keyhole or coping saw.
